[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Republicans and Democrats in the senate today joined in a running attack on the Roosevelt administration farm dictatorship bill. They denounced its proposal to subsidize nonproduction while throwing away the farmers' foreign market, and compared its compulsory provisions to the Russian method of dealing with kulaks.

Senator J. P. Pope.

Senator James P. Pope, co-sponsor of the bill, who is known to his colleagues as "the other senator from Idaho," was constantly bombarded with questions and demands for explanations as he held the floor for the second day in a general discussion of the measure.

The chief target of attack was a provision for compulsory marketing quotas on corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco, and rice when approved by two-thirds of the producing farmers. Farmers who wish to go on their own, planting whatever they choose in whatever quantities, are subjected to penalties. They may be brought into Criminal court for not keeping the records demanded by the secretary of agriculture.

Provides Fine of $100.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] called attention to the provision under which a farmer may be prosecuted and fined up to $100 if he does not furnish proof of his acreage, yield, storage, and marketing in such form as may be "prescribed by regulations of the secretary."

"It appears to me that if the farmer fails to understand the rather, complex records, marketing cards and reports—which I confess that up to date I have not been able to understand—he may be cited for a misdemeanor and taken into criminal court," said Senator Vandenberg.

"Is not this a terribly complicated thing, and is it fair to hold him to a criminal court if he does not meet the secretary's requirements? I have tried to study the bill, and it is still as inscrutable as anything on earth to me. I just pity the poor farmer who confronts the ultimate net result of all this legislation in the form of a questionnaire with a demand for reports. I should hate to see him prosecuted for something which I confess I am guilty of at the moment—namely: A total inability to understand what in the world it is all about."

Vandenberg and Pope Clash.

Senator Pope asked whether, "assuming that the philosophy of the bill is correct, Senator Vandenberg knew of any way in which the necessary information could be obtained without some form of penalty."

"The senator stumps me at the outset, because he asked me to assume that the philosophy of the bill is correct," Senator Vandenberg replied.

Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.] said the penalties would apply to every farmer in the country, including the farmer out in Kansas who says, "I do not believe in this restriction of production at all, and I do not want to have anything to do with it."

"It is evident," said Senator George McGill [D., Kas.], the other cosponsor of the bill, "that the senator

The International Live Stock show opens today as the symbol of the great agricultural region of which Chicago is the economic capital. From the plains and plateaus of the great southwest, from the rich pasture lands of the Mississippi valley and from the rolling prairies of Canada have come the finest cattle of the western world for eight days and nights of exhibition.

Here, at this supreme court of the live stock world, the champion of them all will be chosen next week. There will be many lesser champions, too, who will wear the ribbons of the Chicago show, which carry more weight than those of any other show in the nation. And this is fitting because since 1900, when it was founded, the Chicago show has done more probably than any other to advance the industry.

Standards Raised Constantly.

Under its critical judging standards have gone ever higher. The information disseminated here each year has sent the exhibitors home better equipped to compete the year following. The Chicago show has made the cattle industry a thing of interest among people who once thought of cattle only in terms of steaks and chops or milk and butter.

Attendance at the early expositions averaged 50,000 a year. Last year's show passed the 450,000 mark and this year B. H. Heide, general manager, expects more than half a million persons to pass through the gates. The spectacle that will open today is the culmination of many years of building, dating far beyond the organization of the International association at the turn of the century.

The first exposition of this kind in Chicago was held in 1878, nearly 60 years ago. Known as the Chicago Fat Stock show, it was housed in old Exposition hall on the lake front near the site of the present Art institute. It was launched to keep the cattlemen of the central west loyal to Chicago; to keep them away from Kansas City and other markets.

Show Killed by Politics.

Though it filled a great need, this show was unfortunately controled by politics and finally was abandoned. Meanwhile, Chicago had become the great railroad center of the middle west and consequently the greatest packing center. The cattle industry now was part of the city and the city part of it. The International Live Stock show therefore, is basically a part of Chicago.

Last night in the International amphitheater at 43d and Halsted streets, preparations were almost complete for the 38th renewal of this pageant of an empire. A symphony of the ranges and the open spaces filled the great hall as the choice cattle of many states and provinces were led to their stalls. Only the finest are here and their owners spent the evening hours making them look even more like champions.

The animals entered this year number 13,000 and are valued at $5,000,000. Before the show has closed, $100,000 in prizes will have been awarded. It is certain, according to Mr. Heide, that a fair portion of this prize money will go to Canadian exhibitors who own a fifth of the animals displayed.

Although the show opens officially

CHEER UP, CHILDREN! TEACHER SAYS DICKENS IS WEAK IN GRAMMAR

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt and Charles Dickens are in the same boat now. Dr. Janet Aiken, the Columbia university professor who in a recent address scolded the President because he used like instead of as for a conjunction, told the National Council of Teachers of English today that Dickens made approximately one mistake in English usage for every thirty words he wrote.

Dickens' most common error, according to the Columbia professor, was capitalization of common nouns. But he sank [in her eyes] to far greater depths because of his use of the split infinitive end the use of plural for singular. However, Dickens had at least one redeeming grace, Dr. Aiken admitted. He knew how to spell.

SALESMAN SLAIN IN ROBBERY; $745 FOUND IN POCKET

William M. King, 7324 Dante avenue, a furniture salesman, was wantonly shot to death by two gunmen almost in front of his home last night. Robbery obviously was the motive, police said.

King was about to turn into his home when an automobile drew up. Two men jumped out. According to Mrs. Hazel Smith, 7331 Dante avenue, a witness, they began searching King. One of them fired a shot and King, she said, pleaded "Don't do that." The two men then struck him over the head and shot him again. King was found to have been shot in the head and under the left arm.

The killers fled, one disappearing on foot and the other escaping in the waiting car, in which a third man was the driver. Grand Crossing police found $745 in King's pocket, indicating the killers had missed the loot. The wantonness of the killing puzzled police. Two empty holsters were found on King's body, but police said he apparently did not draw a gun.

Mrs. Alice Dransoff, 38 years old, a pretty widow and grandmother, with whom King roomed, said he had told her he once belonged to the Board of Trade. King, who was 40, was employed by the South Side Furniture store, 7096 South Chicago avenue.

Diving Suicide Flyers Wreck Six Jap Ships

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 27 [Saturday].—An attempt by fifteen "suicide pilots" of Chinese bombing planes to sink Japanese warships in the Yangtze river at the Kiangyin forts was described today by the Sin Wan Pao, leading Chinese paper in Shanghai. Six Japanese ships, including two cruisers, were disabled, the paper said, and other warships were seriously damaged in the raid. Most of the fifteen planes and pilots were reported lost.

The planes, it was said, used the unorthodox method of diving into the decks of the Japanese war vessels with cargoes of heavy bombs and with auxiliary tanks filled with gasoline to cause fire simultaneously with the explosion of the bombs.

Ask Tow for Warships.

The Chinese paper claimed the incident became known in Shanghai when the Japanese requested a British salvage firm to send vessels to the Kiangyin forts to tow disabled Japanese warships down the river. Officials of the British company would not comment.

Ten additional Chinese planes appeared after the first 15 had attacked and dropped bombs on other Japanese warships which sent up dense smoke screens, the Sin Wan Pao account said. Bombing continued until several of these planes were disabled after Japanese anti-aircraft units forced landings on the river bank, it was said.

The Japanese warships had been shelling the Chinese forts at Kiangyin. These forts have impeded Japanese progress up the Yangtze.

BRITISH SHIED AT DEATH SQUAD.

The existence of an Italian "death squad" of 125 men pledged to die was reported in the fall of 1935. Diplomatic observers credited this information with influencing the British admiralty against risking conflict with the Italians in the Mediterranean to halt Premier Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia. Each flyer of this Italian group, it was reported, had agreed to dive his plane, equipped with a huge bomb, into an enemy warship. It was claimed each of the bombs was sufficient to sink a warship.

MAYBE POSTMAN ONLY RANG ONCE; LETTER IS BACK AFTER 22 YEARS

An envelope containing a letter mailed Jan. 21, 1916, was returned yesterday—nearly 22 years later—to its sender stamped, "addressee unknown at this address." It was mailed by the Walker Vehicle company, then located at 545 West 39th street, and addressed to Mrs. M. C. Cummings at 5816 Blackstone avenue. Postal authorities were at a loss to explain the delayed delivery. Mrs. Cummings does not now appear in postal records. Opened at the firm's office, 101 West 87th street, it was found to be an advertising letter announcing the 1916 Chicago auto show, with illustrations of electric models in vogue at the time.

PRESIDENT WILL START FLORIDA TRIP TONIGHT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—(AP)—President Roosevelt expects to depart from the capital by special train tomorrow night for four or five days of fishing in waters off Florida.

On Monday at Miami he will board the yacht Potomac and cruise leisurely in eastern coast waters.

Altogether, the President will be away nine days. On his way back to Washington he will stop at Warm Springs, Ga., for a dinner with the infantile paralysis patients undergoing treatment there.

LONDON AUDIENCE VIEWS TWO-WAY TELEVISION TEST

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Television history was made tonight when Londoners saw and heard a conversation between two men more than seven miles apart. Gerald Cook, television director of the British Broadcasting company, talked before the screen at the corporation's television station at Alexandria palace, and Walter Mycroft, film director, was before the television set in the Elstree studios. Both could see and hear each other.

Ex-President Machado of Cuba Seized

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Gerardo Machado, now 68 years old, once the strong man president of Cuba, was in the custody of federal authorities tonight—a pitifully weak and sick old man. He was seized here in a hospital, where his condition was reported so critical that his death may be imminent.

Gerardo Machado.

His countrymen, to whom he was first a popular iron man and later a cruel despot, want him returned to Cuba for trial on charges of mass murder and other crimes. They have trailed him relentlessly throughout various parts of the world since he fled his realm four years ago during a revolution.

A twenty-four hour guard was placed over Machado, although his lawyer and nurse said his broken health made this unnecessary. He has been under treatment in the Murray Hill hospital for two weeks, having come here from exile in Canada.

Attorney to Fight Action.

His attorney, Francis A. O'Neill, expressed confidence Machado would not be extradited to Havana. He said he would oppose the efforts of Cuba every step of the way.

Since he was driven from office in the summer of 1933, Machado has sought a haven in many places. He moved frequently, driven by fear of death at the hands of his enemies.

He first sped by plane from Havana to the Bahamas and then came here. While efforts were being made to extradite him, he hurriedly left on a specially chartered schooner and went to Santo Domingo. President Trugillo there refused to honor a request for his extradition.

However, Machado apparently deemed it best to go elsewhere. He stayed for a time in Haiti, then went to Europe, where he visited numerous cities. He finally sought refuge in Canada and made occasional secret trips here.

His Downfall Dramatic.

The events which caused Machado's flight in 1933 teemed with drama. From a supreme dictator who was in high favor in foreign countries, especially in the United States, he suddenly became a fugitive hunted by mobs who sought his life.

Machado had come into office as a reformer and was so insistent upon forcing his ideas on the people he finally became a dictator. His successors in government charged he lured his subjects into an extravagant program of public works.

His overthrow followed a riot in Havana in which police used machine guns on a crowd, killing 26 persons and wounding 160. Other killings occurred as the revolution spread. Then Machado's army turned on him and took possession of most of the country, forcing his flight.

The charges which he must face if he is returned to Cuba include homicides, murders, frauds, swindles, and misappropriation of public funds.

PURGE VICTIMS NAMED IN 'PLOT' TO KILL STALIN

Mystery Veils Fate of Other Diplomats.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Dictator Stalin's purge of political opponents in soviet Russia was reported here tonight to have hit a new high spot with the execution of an ambassador, three ministers, and a military attaché.

The victims were among a long list of bolshevik diplomats who were recalled from their posts abroad early this month in connection with an investigation of an alleged plot by German agents to assassinate Stalin. Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov was reported to be compromised seriously in the plot.

The five latest executions in Stalin's purge, which has sent hundreds, perhaps thousands, to death in recent months, was reported by Le Matin. Le Matin attributed the report to the newspaper, Nya Dagligt Allehanda of Stockholm.

High Diplomats Named.

The victims were reported to be:

Y. H. DAVTIAN, soviet ambassador to Poland.

E. A. ASMUS, soviet minister to Finland.

VICTOR PODOLSKI, soviet minister to Lithuania.

S. I. BRODOVSKY, soviet minister to Latvia.

Mystery Veils Fate of Others.

The fate of numerous other diplomats recalled from their posts was still a mystery. Among these were at least two ambassadors—K. K. Ureniev and Michael Karski, envoys to Germany and Turkey, respectively, and at least one other minister, M. Stark, who was recalled from his post in Iran [Persia].

Nicolai Krestinsky, vice commissar of justice, also was among the higher-ups reported to be involved. In addition to these, numerous lesser soviet diplomats were accused of complicity in the alleged plot.

The latest reign of terror in Russia first came to public notice on Nov. 12, when the mass movement of diplomats back to Moscow was revealed.

Litvinov Hurries Home.

Three days earlier, on Nov. 9, Foreign Commissar Litvinov had bolted the Brussels conference on the far eastern war and hurried back to Moscow.

It was learned later that Litvinov's ministry during his absence had been the object of an investigation by the GPU, the dread soviet Russian secret police. Immediately upon Litvinov's departure for Brussels agents of the GPU descended on the foreign commissariat and began going through its archives. The ministry was thrown into a panic.

Evidence was said to have been unearthed by the investigators implicating the foreign service in a plot, instigated by Germany, to kill Stalin and separate the Ukraine from the soviet union.

Nicolai I. Yezhov, the new chief of the GPU, was said to have discovered evidence upon which to base charges that German intrigues are responsible for Russia's present unstable internal conditions.

Charges GPU Frameup.

Litvinov, upon his return to Moscow, went before the political bureau of the communist party and attempted to convince it that he was the victim of a frameup conceived by the GPU and that his trusted assistants were innocent of the plot charges. Last reports from Moscow were that Litvinov was fighting the greatest diplomatic battle of his career, and that his future, if not his life, depended upon the outcome.

Yezhov strengthened his campaign against Litvinov by arresting Michail Bondarenko, president of the council of people's commissars of the Ukrainian socialist soviet republic. Like his predecessor, N. N. Lubchenko, who committed suicide last August, Bondarenko was charged with plotting to separate the Ukraine from Moscow.

Minister to Estonia Dies Suddenly.

That some of the diplomats involved in the GPU inquisition foresaw what was coming was indicated when A. M. Ustinov, soviet minister to Estonia, who had been ordered to return to Moscow, died suddenly in Tallinn, the Estonian capital. Soviet officials there reported that he had shot himself rather than face the GPU.

Another diplomat who chose the "easy way out" was Boris Pohkwalinski, first secretary of the soviet legation in Riga. He ended his own life.

The German consul general in Leningrad also was reported to have been implicated in the alleged plot. He was recalled to Berlin at the request of the soviet government. Shortly afterward the German embassy in Moscow announced its government's decision to close the German general consulates in Leningrad and Tiflis and the consulates in Kharkov, Odessa, and Vladivostok.

Prior to these closings, the German ambassador had repeatedly protested that the GPU had made it impossible for the consular representatives to function. Callers at the consulates, he charged, were subject to arrest and persecution by the GPU in its hunt for evidence of espionage activities.

Moscow explained the closings as a result of "diplomatic negotiations" under a reciprocity agreement which provided for the same numerical representation in each country.

Other countries which have closed consulates in Russia in recent months are Poland, whose consulates in Kharkov and Tiflis were shut; Italy, and Japan.

KING OF BELGIANS CONFERS HONOR ON DR. NEYMANN

Dr. Clarence Neymann, associate professor of psychiatry at Northwestern university medical school, was notified yesterday that he has been made an officer of the Order of the Crown of Belgium.

The insignia was sent to Dr. Neymann by Emile Rosier, acting consul general for Belgium in Chicago, as the representative of King Leopold III., in recognition of his scientific work with artificial fever in mental disorders.

Dr. Neymann has been closely associated in the work with Prof. A. Bessemans, director of the Institute of Hygiene of the University of Ghent and a former rector of the university. In 1935 Dr. Neymann was an exchange professor in Belgium and gave lectures at the universities of Ghent, Louvain, Liege and Brussels.

CRASH IN BRITISH FOG KILLS THREE GERMAN FLYERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Three German aviators were burned to death at Croydon airport tonight when a Lufthansa plane, loaded with mail for Cologne, Germany, took off in a dense fog, crashed into a hangar, and burst into flames.

The plane was a Junkers three engined monoplane similar to that which crashed into a chimney in a fog at Ostend, Belgium, on Nov. 16, killing five members of the grand ducal house of Hesse bei Rhein and six others.

The fog blanketed most of the Midlands and southern England, tying up road and rail trafic. Shipping was brought to a standstill in the Thames river and the English channel. Many accidents were reported, with a heavy list of casualties.

2 ARMY AVIATORS KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES IN FOG

Greenwood, S. C., Nov. 26.—(AP)—An army plane crashed near here tonight and Lieuts. T. C. Morgan and L. C. Woods from Randolph field, San Antonio, Tex., were killed. A witness said the plane circled a CCC camp several times, apparently out of gas, and crashed into a woods. A heavy fog hung over the area and rain was falling. The aviators were said to have left Fort Benning at Columbus, Ga., today.

ARREST OF DUKE LINKS BIG NAMES TO FRENCH PLOT

Former Premier's Rich Aid Held in Prison.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The methodical police investigation of the monarchist-Fascist conspiracy against the French republic tonight appeared on the verge of producing some real national and international sensations.

Two developments indicated that the investigation is heading toward something bigger than the daily "thrills" over discoveries of arms caches and the unmasking of obscure conspirators which have characterized the efforts of the Sureté Nationale [secret police] in the last ten days.

Trace Plot to Germany.

The new developments were:

FIRST—The revelation by an evening paper that certain documents discovered by the police in their raids clearly established that the secret headquaters—or at least one headquarters—of the revolutionary organization is on German soil.

SECOND—The arrest and questioning by the Sureté Nationale of Duc Pozzo di Borgo, wealthy, socially prominent and politically active monarchist sympathizer.

Pozzo's house was searched this morning, and when he refused to go voluntarily to Sureté Nationale headquarters for questioning the police obtained a warant for his arrest.

A Friend of Andre Tardieu.

Pozzo is not a front rank political leader, but he is very prominent in Nationalist and monarchist circles. His arrest, besides adding a ducal crown to the assortment of titles the police have bagged so far, is important because it brings the investigation dangerously close to former Premier Andre Tardieu, outstanding leader of the opposition to the present leftist Popular Front government.

Though no proof of Tardieu's complicity in the plot has been produced so far, Pozzo's arrest makes it impossible to keep his name out of the affair. Pozzo co-starred with Tardieu in a recent exposure of Col. Francois de la Rocque, fallen angel of reaction in France. De la Rocque is head of the French Social party, successor of his banned Fascist Croix de Feu [cross of fire].

Tardieu and Pozzo testified in a recent libel action that De la Rocque had accepted bribes from the very régime he was fighting.

De la Rocque Makes Charges.

De la Rocque countered with the charge that Pozzo, Tardieu, Charles Maurras, and several outstanding figures of the French financial world had conspired to blacken his name because he refused to participate in an impending coup d'état. Their object, he insisted, was to alienate his still numerous and powerfully organized followers and lure them into the camps of the royalists and Jacques Doriot's rightist French Popular party.

Whatever may have been the cause of the misunderstanding among these various defenders of occidental civilization, it is a fact that the men who now are being exposed as members of "Les Cagoulards" [the hooded ones] are enemies of De la Rocque.

The organization known as Les Cagoulards is thought to be a section of the Comite Secret d'Action Revolutionnaire, known as "CSAR," and headed by Eugene de l'Oncle, a consulting engineer, now under arrest.

Hint De La Rocque Bared Plot.

Long before Pozzo was arrested it was whispered that it was De la Rocque himself who, in a spirit of revenge, exposed the whole plot to the police. Pozzo's arrest certainly is not calculated to curb these rumors.

Nor is the fact that a couple of days before the police began swooping down on prominent members of Les Cagoulards with ancient names and known monarchist sympathies, the duc de Guise, pretender to the throne of France, issued a manifesto disowning his more enterprising French champions. Col. de la Rocque's brother, Pierre, is chief aid to the duc de Guise.

If the rumor is true that Col. de la Rocque, in return for an unofficial pardon for his own subversive activities, is aiding the police to expose a right wing revolutionary conspiracy in France, some highly sensational arrests may take place shortly. They will include deputies, ministers or former ministers—maybe even a former premier or two—generals and admirals.

Gen. Weygand Issues Denial.

One of these—Gen. Maxime Weygand, former chief of staf and general inspector of the French army—has been gossiped about so freely that today he dictated a statement to the press denying that the police had raided one of his estates in Brittany.

Vice Admiral Lecaze, a royalist and one of the "immortals" of the French academy, is the object of considerable unwholesome curiosity on the part of the left press.

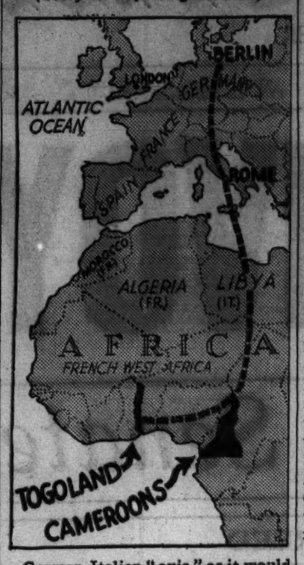
Even more illustrious military names are whispered in connection with the conspiracy.

Probably few if any of these highly placed suspects have any direct connection with Les Cagoulards. They were, however, in a position to know through friends exactly what Les Cagoulards was doing.

Pozzo was locked up at Sante prison—notorious for harboring Serge Stavisky, central figure in the pawnshop scandal which shook France in 1934, and other crooks—where he will sojourn with such other distinguished names as Count Jean Dominique Moreau de la Meuse and Count la Motte de St. Pierre.

German-Italian Axis

(Story in adjoining column.)



German-Italian "axis" as it would extend from Berlin via Rome and Italian North African possessions to Togoland, provided France gives back to Germany her portions of the mandated territories of Togo and the Cameroons. This line would cut French land and air communications between Algeria and equatorial Africa.

FRANCE EXPECTS STALEMATE ON NAZI COLONIES

Fears Air, Naval Threat to Possessions.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 26.—THE TRIBUNE learned tonight that the French government expects little or no progress regarding Germany's colonial demands through the impending visit to London of Premier Camille Chautemps and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos. The chances that Britain will give up anything worth while are considered slight, and the French attitude is similar, but for different reasons.

If France were to give back her portions of the mandated territories of Togo and the Cameroons, the German-Italian "axis" would extend from Berlin via Rome and Italian North African possessions to the Cameroons. This line would cut French land and air communications between Algeria and equatorial Africa.

Threat to French Possessions.

Germans would be within easy air reach of Tripolitania, in northwest Africa, and furthermore could establish excellent naval bases on the coast of the Cameroons. There would be a constant threat situated in the heart of the French possessions.

It is believed here that Chautemps and Delbos may be presented with a proposal for an air pact with Germany, but that as a price for such a pact, Germany probably would ask an improved position in Central Europe.

Conversations are said to be going on between Berlin and Vienna constantly. Berlin is reported to be insisting on a legal status for the half-million Germans residing in Austria, and also wants to organize the German youth in Austria to affiliate them with the Hitler youth movement in Germany.

Demands Kinship Recognition.

Furthermore, according to diplomatic circles here, Germany is asking Austria to recognize cultural kinship and to accept German ideas regarding German destiny in Europe.

In addition, it is said that Berlin wants Austria to accept the return of Austrian Nazis who now are in exile in Germany, together with the restoration to them of all citizenship and other rights. Finally, Berlin demands that Nazis in Austria be called to participation in the responsibilities of government.

Joseph White, Ex-Swanson Bailif, Found Shot to Death

Joseph White, once personal bailif to former Judge John A. Swanson, and later an investigator for Mr. Swanson when he served as state's attorney, was found shot to death last night in his bachelor quarters at 7000 Chappel avenue. Friends said he was despondent over ill health.

NAZIS WILL TAX TICKETS TO PAY ACTOR PENSIONS

Theaters to Collect 2 Per Cent Levy.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—On every theater ticket sold in Germany a surtax of 2 per cent henceforth will be charged to provide old age pensions for actors and actresses, Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister for national enlightenment and propaganda, announced today at the annual meeting of the national chamber of culture, held in conjunction with the strength-through-joy movement at the German opera house in Berlin. Goebbels said theater owners will be authorized to add the tax to the ticket.

As chairman of the national chamber of culture, Goebbels declared that all Jews now have been removed from newspapers, theaters, and the motion pictures. He added that "apart from Jews who emigrated when we came to power, approximately 3,000 were removed from leading posts held in Germany's cultural life."

Reports on Holiday Trips.

Reporting on activities of the strength through joy movement, Dr. Robert Ley, leader of the German Labor Front, which sponsors the movement, said that 9,000,000 persons had participated in holiday trips arranged by the movement in the last year as against 6,000,000 in the preceding year and that 3,000,000 persons had spent holidays of one to three weeks and in most cases received their full pay. The others had joined in hiking trips lasting several days. On strength-through-joy liners 180,000 people went on cruises to Madeira, Norway, and Italy. On the occasion of the meeting today it was announced that trips "to the most beautiful district in Germany" were being arranged to enable "even the poor" to participate in them.

Cost to Depend on Length.

Trips extending more than one week are to cost from $4 to $6, depending on the length of the railway trip.

In honor of the meeting of the cultural chamber, the D minor concerto of Robert Schumann was performed in public for the first time since it was composed 84 years ago.

Schumann's heirs have prevented its public performance until now. The German press describes the concerto as a masterpiece of romantic character "showing only in parts the nerve crisis under which Schumann was suffering at the time he wrote it."

ITALY SENTENCES EIGHT ACCUSED REDS TO PRISON

ROME, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Eight persons, including one woman, were sentenced to prison today for anti-Fascist activities. The convictions, by the special tribunal, brought to 109 the number sentenced for subversive action in the last few weeks. Those sentenced today were accused of communist activity at Florence and Empoli. The woman was sentenced to three years in prison and the other sentences were from one to 12 years.

HITLER APPOINTS DR. SCHACHT AS HIS OWN ADVISER

Accepts Resignation as Economics Minister.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The resignation of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, "financial wizard" of Germany, from his post as economics minister was announced officially today. Reichsfuehrer Hitler accepted the resignation in a friendly letter to Schacht. The letter revealed that Schacht would retain his post as president of the Reichsbank and would remain in the cabinet as minister without portfolio. Hitler also revealed that Schacht will be his [Hitler's] personal adviser.

Schacht's resignation is the culmination of a long period of difficulties with Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, chief of Germany's four year plan for economic self-sufficiency, which often required Hitler's intercession. Schacht frequently had protested against expensive Nazi enterprises under the direction of Goering. Now the economics ministry will be combined with the four year plan organization.

Out of Office Since August.

Today's events were foreshadowed by Schacht on Oct. 26, when he said in an interview: "I have resigned from my post in the [economics] ministry. I have been giving a lot of advice, but people have not been taking my advice as much as they should."

He added that he had been out of the ministry since Aug. 11.

Funk Named Successor.

Hitler named Walther Funk, national press chief of the government and state secretary of propaganda, to the post of minister of economics as Dr. Schacht's successor. Until Funk takes over the job, Col. Gen. Goering will be acting minister of economics.

Dr. Otto Dietrich, press chief of the Nazi party, was appointed Funk's successor as state secretary of the propaganda ministry and national press chief of the government. Karl Hanke, a high official on the propaganda ministry staf, also was raised in rank to state secretary in the propaganda ministry.

Ex-King's Son and Wife in Court for Divorce Hearing

HAVANA, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The count of Covadonga, eldest son of former King Alfonso of Spain, and his Cuban commoner wife appeared in court today to sign papers in the third divorce action between them. He said he would return to Miami, Fla., next week and would await the time for his second court appearance about Jan. 7, 1938.

ALBERT PHILPOT, 81, BADLY BURNED IN MYSTERY FIRE

Albert Philpot, 81 years old, a retired south side real estate dealer, was seriously burned early today in his room in the Woodmere hotel, 4641 Woodlawn avenue. He is a brother of Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell, 70 Cedar street, well known in social affairs, and widow of the investment banker.

Mr. Philpot was saved from burning to death by Policeman Henry Larson of the Hyde Park station. Larson also lives in the hotel. He noticed smoke coming from Mr. Philpot's room, got a master key, and entered. He found Philpot lying on a burning mattress.

Police took Mr. Philpot to the Chicago hospital where physicians said he had suffered probably fatal burns. Police were mystified as to how the mattress fire started.

JAPANESE SEIZE COMMUNICATIONS IN SHANGHAI AREA

SHANGHAI, Nov. 27 [Saturday].—(AP)—Japan today seized control of all Chinese communications facilities in the Shanghai area, in which most of China's means of communicating with the outside world hitherto have been concentrated.

To do this Japanese representatives entered the International settlement to assume charge of postoffices, cable and radio administrations, and broadcasting stations hitherto operated by the Chinese government.

Fear Foreign Complications.

Whether this meant establishment of Japanese censorship on all Shanghai's postal and telegraphic outlets was not immediately clear. It was feared serious international complications might arise if Japanese tried to control operations of foreign cable and radio companies.

Such control, however, would be a logical result of Japan's contention that it falls heir to all Chinese communications rights in the Shanghai area.

The foreign companies, including the American Commercial Pacific Cable, Radio Corporation of America and Mackay Radio, British eastern extension and Danish Great Northern Cable, by contracts with the Chinese government agreed to receive outgoing messages only from the Chinese cable and radio administrations and to submit to Chinese censorship.

Seize Chinese Ferries.

Japanese army units seized ferry properties on the Whangpoo river belonging to the expelled Chinese city government. The Japanese also indicated they would appoint their own appraisers and examiners to extend Japanese influence in the customs service at Shanghai.

The Japanese armies, meantime, smashed their way nearer Nanking, the nearly deserted former Chinese capital, while Japan's commander in chief here gave a Japanese news agency a statement indicating Japan's intent to dominate any future Chinese régime.

The United News, a Japanese organ, quoted Gen. Iwane Matsui as saying that unless China ceases resistance the Japanese may be forced to continue their advance to Hankow or even Chungking, the new capital nearly 1,500 miles up the Yangtze river. Gen. Matsui said Dictator Chiang Kai-shek's régime soon would collapse and bring about "various troubles" to be settled under Japan's guidance.

Japs Take Chinkiang.

Japanese reported the capture of Chinkiang, in northern Chekiang province on the southwestern shore of Lake Tai. Other Japanese columns continued to advance north of the lake.

Chinkiang is 100 miles southeast of Nanking, but only 85 miles from Wuhu, Anhwei province port on the Yangtze. The objective of this Japanese column may be Wuhu, capture of which would make impossible the upriver withdrawal of the 300,000 Chinese troops in the Nanking area.

Lin Sen, chairman of the national government and therefore titular head of the nation, arrived at Chungking to establish his new capital. Throngs seeking to demonstrate China's unity gave him a tumultuous welcome. Dictator Chiang remained at Nanking.

Seventy Killed or Injured in Manchukuo Train Wreck

TOKIO, Nov. 27 [Saturday].—(AP)—The Domei [Japanese] News agency reported today from Hsinking, Manchukuo, that 70 persons had been killed or injured in a head-on train collision 30 miles north of the Manchukuo capital.

Echo of Whoopee Era

John T. Miller, former sanitary district employé who last Monday began serving a sentence of six months in the House of Correction for graft during the district's whoopee régime, began a career as a farmer yesterday. He was transferred to the Bridewell farm on route 66 in Western Springs, where he will finish out his sentence.

Miller was sent to the farm because he said he knows all about pigs. There are fifty or more young pigs on the farm needing attention, and when a call for volunteers was sent in to the Bridewell proper from the farm superintendent Miller held up his hand. So for the next week at least he'll help care for pigs.

U. S. ENVOY ASKS TOKIO TO EXPLAIN ITS AIMS IN CHINA

Three Other Nations Also Quiz Nipponese.

TOKIO, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The American and other ambassadors today expressed their government's interest in Japan's intentions in China, while Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe said Japan was ready to deal China "a fatal blow" if the latter did not yield.

The premier said Japan was prepared, however, to accept any peace move from China, provided China "shows concrete evidence it is ready to abandon its policy of opposition to Japan."

He rejected the possibility of outside intervention in the war, which he said must be settled by negotiations between Japan and China alone.

May Advance to Hankow.

He hinted that Japan might advance as far as Hankow, if necessary to impose its will on China, and he intimated that an "independent" régime would appear in March, 1938, in North China, now almost completely conquered by Japan's legions.

Joseph C. Grew, American ambassador, conferred with Foreign Minister Koki Hirota. Giacinto Auriti, the Italian, and Mikhail M. Slavutsky, the soviet ambassador, also visited Hirota, as did Sir Robert L. Craigie, the British ambassador.

A foreign office spokesman said Craigie's visit concerned "the Shanghai situation" and it was believed the others discussed the same topic.

Premier Prays at Shrine.

Premier Konoe was interviewed aboard a train carrying him to the grand shrines of Ise, 250 miles southwest of Tokio, where he was to pray for victory in China to the sun goddess Amaterasu, who the Japanese worship as the divine ancestress of their race.

His comment on the Shanghai situation was:

"I have heard nothing about plans for Japanese hegemony in managing Shanghai. I believe the first stage for military operations in China has ended. The whole question now is whether the Japanese must continue to Nanking, although some sources believe we may be forced eventually to advance to Hankow."

He said Japan's fundamental aims were unchanged—namely, elimination of all anti-Japanism from China and readjustment of Chinese-Japanese relations on a basis of "permanent peace."

"We must maintain strict watch on the domestic situation of the soviet union until March, 1938," the premier said. "Some opinion holds that the Stalin régime will be strengthened by the coming [Dec. 12] elections and consequently the soviet attitude toward Japan might become more positive."

May Abrogate Treaty.

The premier said Japan "may be obliged" to abrogate the nine power treaty [the 1922 pact in which Japan and other nations agreed to respect China's territorial integrity].

"I think Japan should have abrogated the treaty long ago," he added.

Newspapers published alarmist reports of Russian-Japanese friction. The newspaper Hochi in a dispatch from Tsuruga said the soviet union was concentrating 1,500 planes in far eastern Siberia and sending 1,000 bombers to help China against Japan. It added that the soviet submarine flotilla at Vladivostok was being strengthened by shipping of parts and assembling them at that port.

Serious friction along the border between the Russian and Japanese owned halves of the northern Island of Sakhalin was said to have inspired sterner Japanese police measures against Russians in that area.

SPANISH REBEL LEADER HALTS ARMISTICE TALK

Expects to "Impose" Will by Victory.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The Havas [French] News agency published an interview with Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel leader, today in which he declared: "I will impose my will by victory." Franco's statement was considered to have put at rest the rumors of armistice negotiations which had arisen from the long lull in the civil war.

"I would refuse even to make contact with the republican government," Franco was quoted as saying at Burgos.

"I will win the war by arms," he declared. "I refuse to receive any proposition for mediation. I accept no compromise with the government at Valencia."

Prepare for Southern Drive.

HENDAYE, France, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The Spanish insurgent base of action tonight was transferred from the cold ridden north of Spain to warmer territory for a smash against Almeria, government held port on the southeastern coast.

Insurgent officers at Irun, across the Spanish frontier from Hendaye, said preparations were complete for a southern offensive to start within a few days. The date for the start of the often postponed drive was a military secret, but insurgents at Irun said: "Watch for important events next week."

An early cold wave, accompanied by heavy rain, forced both sides to delay action on the Aragon front, in northeastern Spain.

Wants to Avoid Winter.

Rebels indicated that Gen. Francisco Franco had shifted his planned major offensive to the south because of the approach of northern Spain's bitter winter. Apparently the delay in starting operations was caused by shifting forces across the length of Spain.

Trains of troops and supplies have been moving south for the last few days. The base of operations was expected to be Motril, on the coast, halfway between Malaga—conquered in last winter's campaign—and Almeria.

A further objective was believed to be Valencia, 200 miles northeast of Motril. The offensive was believed designed to isolate Madrid and leave Catalonia the last insurgent objective.

18 Die in Two Shipwrecks as Gale Buffets Finland

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 26.—Eighteen lives had been lost tonight in two shipwrecks resulting from a gale which still is blowing. An inland passenger steamer capsized and ten were drowned and a small boat went down with eight schoolchildren.

WOMAN BOOKKEEPER ACTS ON HUNCH AND IT SAVES BOSS $500

Mrs. Herbie Rodge had a hunch. As bookkeeper for the Superior Steam laundry, 216 West Ontario street, she was a little nervous about the $500 pay roll she had just drawn from a bank. So when the hunch came she slipped the money out of the brief case and into her own purse without telling Edward Noonenbruch, who had driven her to the bank. Then she got out of the car at Ohio street and Michigan avenue and let Noonenbruch go on alone.

When he walked into the laundry hallway the hunch came true. He was seized by two men. One jammed a pistol against him and the other took the brief case. Both escaped.

Every one was excited when Mrs. Rodge, who is 28 years old, walked in. "A robbery?" she asked. "Well, they didn't get much. Just an old brief case. As to the $500, here IT is."

FINDS WIFE WITH CHOIR DIRECTOR; THEN SLAYS HIM

Winston-Salem, N. C., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Walter Lee Smith, barber and choir director, was shot and killed here tonight in what police said was a love triangle. John A. Hartle, grocer, was charged with the slaying.

Police said Hartle related he went to his home, about a block away, to get change for his grocery and found his wife and Smith in a darkened room. Hartle was quoted as saying he shot twice into the floor and then fatally wounded Smith when the latter advanced on him. Hartle told police he had thought his wife was at choir practice.

PRIZE LIVE STOCK AWAIT OPENING OF SHOW TODAY

Expect 500,000 Persons to View Exhibits.

this morning, the ceremony of greeting was held at noon yesterday in the loop. Several thousand farmers who are exhibiting animals or have come to buy, were made welcome by Mayor Kelly at the city's famous downtown cowpath. The strip of land was purchased in 1833 by Willard Jones, who provided in his will that a cowpath should always be left open at this point.

And it has been, although an office building towers above it. Soon after the ceremonies began the mayor unveiled a bronze marker, commemorating Mr. Jones' thoughtfulness. Then down the path came a bearded gentleman dressed in the 1835 manner. Behind him followed a big boned, sullen looking cow—the type that furnished the beef of a century ago. Around her neck swung a cowbell 100 years old.

Leads Present Day Cow.

Bringing up the rear was Miss Ocie Schuman, a pretty 4-H club girl from Columbia City, Ind. She led a sleek short horn cow of the type that furnishes the beef of today.

Eugene Funk Jr. of Bloomington, Ill., representing the modern farmer, responded to the mayor's address. Mr. Funk is a great-grandson of Isaac Funk, who settled in McLean county in 1824 and drove thousands of cattle to Chicago, thus helping to establish it as a packing center.

Last night as bands and drum corps rehersed for the entertainment features of the eight day exhibition the first judging got underway. Noncollegiate teams from twenty-three states participated. In addition, horsemen and horsewomen went through their paces in a dress rehersal. The horse show and riding exhibitions will be a nightly feature. More than 300 horses will compete for prizes.

Student Judging This Morning.

Shortly after the gates open this morning, 125 students, representing twenty-four states and one Canadian agricultural college, will begin appraising cattle, sheep, and hogs in the intercollegiate judging contest.

At the same time, Alexander Ritchie, famous British live stock judge, will begin judging the baby beeves entered in the junior feeding contest. Mr. Ritchie, who is here by special permission of King George VI., will select the championship steers and the grand champion beef animal next week. He succeeds Walter Biggar of Delbeattie, Scotland, who has picked the grand champion at the last twelve shows.

There will also be judging of the hay and grain, one of the most important single features of the show, next to the cattle. Canada is also well represented in this exhibition. Ministers of agriculture and their assistants from several provinces are expected to attend.

Meanwhile, more than 2,000 farm boys and girls were coming into Chicago to remain throughout the show. Many of them have animals on exhibit. Others will take part in associated contests and all will attend sessions of the 16th annual national 4-H club congress which is being held concurrently.

STUDENT JUDGING CONTEST

A team of three farm boys from Muskogee county, Oklahoma, won the noncollegiate live stock judging contest last night at the International Amphitheater on the eve of the International Live Stock show. The judging was held in connection with the 16th annual 4-H club congress which opened yesterday.

Teams from twenty-three states participated. The first five teams and their standing by points follows:

Oklahoma—1,589 points. Harry Synar, 17 years old; Charles Adair, 16 years old, and Steve Synar, 16 years old, all of Warner, Muskogee county. Coach, Ira J. Hollar.

Michigan—1,519 points. Homer Moore, 19 years old, and Harold Knirk, 16 years old, both of Quincy, Branch county, and John Stanton, 16 years old, Sherwood, Branch county. Coach, Gordan R. Schlubatis.

Minnesota—1,486 points. Robert Putnam, 17 years old; Joe Carson, 20 years old, and Duane Wilson, 16 years old, all of Pipestone, Pipestone county. Coach, Clement C. Chase.

North Dakota—1,483 points. Rowland Reiten, 17 years old, of Hastings, Barnes county; Raymond Stangler, 16 years old, of Lucca, Barnes county, and Kermit Harstad, 17 years old, Sanborn, Barnes county. Coach, T. X. Calnan.

New York—1,480 points. Earl Wagner, 18 years old, of Altamont, Thompkins county; Russell Udell, 19 years old, of Voorheesville, Thompkins county, and Douglas Stanton, 15 years old, of Greenville, Thompkins county. Coach, H. G. Willman.

Harry Synar of Oklahoma, member of the winning team, also was first in individual judging with 549 points. His award will be a $250 scholarship payable to any college he chooses.

MARIE MURRAY.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Miss Marie Murray, 17 years old, Philadelphia high school pupil, was dressing for Thanksgiving dinner yesterday when she accidentally swallowed an open safety pin which she had placed between her lips for a moment. A doctor removed the pin, but Marie's appetite for turkey was gone. Today, however, fully recovered, she caught up with the rest of the country and enjoyed a hearty meal of turkey and trimmings.

SENATORS UNITE IN ATTACK UPON FARM COERCION

Assail Compulsion in Proposed Bill.

Compares to Russia.

Senator Burke, replying that he was certainly not in favor of the compulsory provisions, declared:

"The man in the one-third minority is compelled to do all these things although he did not want to go into it. I do not know whether you will find anything worse than this provision in Russia."

Senator Royal S. Copeland [D., N. Y.] pointed out that the bill not only imposes fines upon farmers who do not make such reports as the secretary of agriculture demands, it levies penalty taxes of 75 per cent in the case of cotton and 50 per cent in the case of corn or wheat for exceeding the compulsory marketing quotas. It further penalizes the noncoöperators by limiting the amount of storage loans they may receive, the senator declared.

He pointed out that "coöperating" farmers may receive loans up to 85 per cent of the "parity" price, while the "noncoöperators" may borrow not more than 70 per cent.

Provisions Are Threats.

"So it would seem," said Senator Copeland, "that provisions are set up in the shape of threats, or lack of ability to have all the benefits, in order that the man who is inclined to be a noncoöperator shall be forced to vote with the majority."

Senator Edwin C. Johnston [D., Colo.], a former consistent supporter of the administration's policies who came back skeptical after meeting his constituents during the last recess, demanded to know whether the agriculture committee obtained "any evidence from any source whatsoever on the loss of foreign markets."

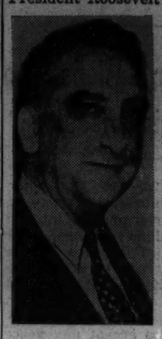
"O, yes," replied Senator Pope. "Interestingly enough, the farmers desire to keep our foreign markets. But some of them who were in favor of that immediately protested against the importation of farm commodities from other countries."

Senator Vandenberg then charged that the committee hearings were held under circumstances, dictated by the department of agriculture, which invited "friendly witnesses."

Senator Pope, who previously had admitted that the hearings were dominated by the American Farm Bureau federation, which in turn is dominated by the AAA, said he had no knowledge "of the acts of the secretary of agriculture."

PRESIDENT NAMES REP. FRED M. VINSON TO APPEALS COURT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today nominated Representative Fred M. Vinson, Kentucky Democrat, to be an associate justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.



Rep. Fred M. Vinson.

Vinson, chairman of the house ways and means subcommittee now studying tax revision, would fill a vacancy on the bench.

The post carries a salary of $10,000 a year—the same as paid a representative. The appointment is for life and carries retirement privileges.

The President also nominated Associate Justice D. Lawrence Groner of Virginia to be chief justice of the court, filling another vacancy. Croner would be succeeded by Henry White Edgerton of New York, whose nomination also went to the senate.

Vinson is 47 years old, and serving his seventh term in the house. He served three terms before his service was broken by defeat in 1928, but he returned to the 72d congress and each succeeding one. His home is Ashland, Ky.

Edgerton is a professor of law at Cornell university.

PRESIDENT GIVES IN TO DEMANDS FOR TAX RELIEF

Discloses Five Moves to Stimulate Business.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Manifesting grave concern over the current depression, attributed to the policies of his administration, President Roosevelt today discussed five moves intended to restore confidence and stimulate business at his semi-weekly press conference.

He disclosed as his first move that he wants tax revision as soon as congress is ready to go ahead with it. Such a pronouncement had been eagerly awaited on Capitol hill, where agitation for modification of the undistributed surplus and capital gains tax needed only presidential benediction for crystalization into action on the levies, which, because of the fetters they place upon enterprise in business, have been charged with a large share of the blame for the present recession.

Seeks to Stimulate Housing.

In further efforts to reassure business, Mr. Roosevelt announced as a second point that he will send a message to congress Monday recommending legislation aimed toward spurring the program he launched to enlist private capital in a housing program.

His third plan will be submitted in a second message to congress Tuesday in which he will propose a slash in the federal outlay for road building as a step toward budget balancing.

He discussed as a fourth point the speeding up of federal supply purchases for the last seven months of the present fiscal year, which would throw 245 million dollars into circulation over the winter.

The depth of the presidential concern was indicated by the fact that he volunteered this information to newspaper men this afternoon instead of waiting for it to be pried out of him by questions.

Utility Parleys to Continue.

The fifth of his encouragements to industry came in response to a question. He said he would continue his conferences with utility heads. The conferences began Tuesday with Wendell Willkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, and continued Wednesday with Floyd Carlisle, chairman of the board of Niagara Hudson corporation. In both conferences Mr. Roosevelt extended an olive branch to an industry paralyzed by fear over uncertaintity as to how far the administration will go in its competition against private power enterprises.

On his tax revision stand the President urged a rereading of his message to congress at the opening of the special session in which he came out for tax revision to help small business and curb monopolistic practices. In other words, he added, he wants tax changes when congress is ready to make them.

Takes Dig at Critics.

With a dig at his critics, Mr. Roosevelt said he did not want to fly into the face of the editorial writers who have complained in the past of undigested legislation—legislation handed to congress by the White House and rubber stamped through. He laughed as he glossed over criticism of the profits and capital gains tax as undigested and rubber stamp legislation which had risen to torment the administration.

With the same attempt at lightness he met questions on references made by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] to the Charleston, S. C., speech of September, 1935, in which the President said recovery was coming back because his administration had planned it that way.

It was perfectly true at the time, Mr. Roosevelt said of the Charleston speech. The government was trying to give as much stimulus as it could by spending to restore values, he said. The money was going out and the stimulation was certainly taking place at the time and the statement was absolutely true then, he concluded with an inflection which appeared to betray secret bewilderment over failure of the system to work now.

Cites Road Allotments.

In discussing the message which will seek to curtail highway allotments, the President said that up to 1929 and 1930 the government had been giving the states between 80 and 90 million dollars for state aid roads, and allotments have now grown to 200 million dollars.

That, he said, is a grant which should be cut down because the main arteries are in good shape. In addition, he pointed out, a lot of money has been given out through the WPA for the improvement of farm to market roads.

The President said his message will recommend abolition of a practice which has grown up of making tenders to states of their share of congressional authorizations of road funds. All the states have had to do under the practice is to accept the tenders and thus virtually complete a contract with the federal government, whereas in other instances authorizations do not necessarily have to be followed by appropriations.

The proposed message curtailing highway funds was seen as a direct result of the recent speech of Secretary of the Treasury Henry A. Morgenthau which promised an end of federal pump priming through huge expenditures and held out a promise of budget balancing by a 700 million dollar cut in expenditures.

Asked whether he intends to follow the Morgenthau program through with messages seeking reduction of relief and farm aid, Mr. Roosevelt said the other things do not need legislation as does the tender feature of highway aid.

Evades Pay Roll Query.

Asked whether he plans to cut the federal pay roll, the President said that is a problem for congress. If the budget is revised downward, the number of federal workers will drop, and if it is revised upward, the number will increase. He dismissed a question as to whether he believes the civil service to be over-manned at present by saying it was too difficult to answer.

On speeding up supply purchases, Mr. Roosevelt revealed that he had made his decision in a conference with Admiral Christian Peoples, head of the procurement division of the treasury. Instead of spreading 245 million dollars over the remaining seven months of the year, the government will contract for all in the next month or two.

Fido Snarls at Trafic and Trafic Snarls Itself

Trafic in Western avenue at Roscoe street was snarled for fifteen minutes yesterday morning when a bulldog scampered under a street car. Car crews, passengers, and passersby tried whistles, hoots, and finger snapping, but Fido would not budge. Finally a surface lines wreck wagon was summoned, lifted the front truck of the car and the dog raced away.

CHICAGO STORES JAMMED AS YULE SEASON OPENS

The Christmas shopping rush began in earnest yesterday, the first day after Thanksgiving, which for many years has signalized the start of holiday buying. Chicago stores everywhere in the city were generously packed, and in some places the milling scenes resembled those usually found in the last frantic hours before Christmas day.

"Look at 'em come!" exclaimed one overworked trafic policeman at a busy intersection yesterday. He knew what these immense throngs meant. "I've never seen such a heavy early start in years."

Large Sales Reported.

The charge of the shoppers on counters was truly impressive and sales were heavy. Good weather and the extra school day holiday helped increase the turnout. Thousands of children accompanied their parents.

To meet the seasonal rush the stores not only have stocked up bountifully with both old and new lines but have worked up an inviting atmosphere with decorations. Silver, red, and gold contrasted cheerily against green and white Christmas trees. Myriad lights gave a dazzling effect.

As usual, the toy departments received heavy attention from both adults and youngsters. The girls crowded the doll counters, the boys the mechanical displays.

Lingerie Sections Swamped.

The lingerie sections were swamped. Women, many on preliminary inspection tours, examined the garments, checked proportions and returned to look again. Purchases ran up heavily. The story was similar in other departments. Even so-called luxury purchases made a fine showing although the noticeable trade in those lines does not generally occur until the last week of the season.

Loop store managers expressed high satisfaction over yesterday's inaugural shopping rush.

All we can add to that," observed one manager, "is that there are only 24 shopping days before Christmas."

U. S. REFUSES G-MEN TO MINNEAPOLIS TO HELP SOLVE KILLING

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Attorney General Homer S. Cummings today denied the request of Gov. Elmer Benson that federal agents be assigned to help solve the assassination of Patrick J. Corcoran, labor leader. Local authorities have failed so far in efforts to track down the killers.

The attorney general notified the governor that the department of justice cannot enter the case unless evidence is produced that a federal crime has been committed. Mr. Cummings suggested that any such facts be laid before United States Attorney Victor Anderson at St. Paul.

The governor would not say whether such evidence will be submitted. He had told Mr. Cummings the government might base an investigation on statements from both C. I. O. and A. F. of L. leaders that racketeers from other states had been imported here.

ARRANGE DINNER HONORING ALD. SONNENSCHEIN

Leading public officials will attend a dinner in honor of Ald. Henry Sonnenschein [22d] in the Medinah club Wednesday evening. The occasion will be his completion of twenty-five years of public service.

Attorney General Otto Kerner will be toastmaster. Among the guests will be Mayor Kelly, United States Attorney Michael L. Igoe, Judge John J. Prystalski of the Superior court, and Patrick J. Nash, chairman of the Democratic county central committee.

Sonnenschein is serving his second term as alderman of the west side ward, where the late Mayor Cermak lived. He was Mayor Cermak's secretary, has twice been ward committeeman, and served two terms as state representative from the Ninth district.

ENGRAVING PLANT OFFICIAL KILLED BY COAL TRUCK

E. A. Le Gros Struck in Hubbard Street.

Emil A. Le Gros, vice president of the McGrath Engraving corporation, 160 East Illinois street, and well known in the photo-engraving business in Chicago for many years, was killed last night by a coal truck at St. Clair street and Hubbard [Austin] avenue. He was 63 years old and lived at 826 William street, River Forest.

Mr. Le Gros was crossing Hubbard street when the truck, driven by George Kane, 22 years old, 4814 Strong street, an employé of the Hoskins Coal company, struck him. Kane was held by police.

Mr. Le Gros entered the engraving business in 1889. He had been with the McGrath corporation since 1920, and vice president since 1924. He was greatly interested in Boy Scout activities, and was vice president of the Oak Park Scout area. In 1917-18 he served as chairman of the Chicago Photo-Engravers' club. He was a former president of the Bohemia club and a leader in Chicago Bohemian affairs.

Surviving Mr. Le Gros are his widow, the former Jessie Zeman, retired opera singer, and three sons, Emile, a student at Brown university; John and Robert. Funeral services will be held in the home Monday.

Driver Held in Highland Park.

Harry Momberg, 26 years old, of 424 South 1st street, Rockford, was held by the Highland Park police on a manslaughter charge yesterday in connection with an automobile accident Thursday in which two persons were killed. Momberg said that he had spent Thanksgiving afternoon drinking and gambling before the accident which occurred at Deerfield and Central avenues in Highland Park.

The victims were Arthur Orsi, 27 years old, 1200 Deerfield avenue, Highland Park, and his wife, Lucille, 25.

Joseph Smith, 66 years old, 7050 Rhodes avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Oct. 21 when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home.

Third Victim of Crash Dies.

Robert Sieffert, 4 years old, of La Salle, Ill., died yesterday in the Berwyn hospital, the third victim of an automobile crash in Lyons on Thursday in which his brother, William, 6 years old, and Mrs. Emilie Koncel, 60 years old, 2448 South Spaulding avenue, were killed. Eight other persons were injured in the accident, which occurred at 47th street and Joliet road.

Charles Walter, 62 years old, colored, 3338 South State street, a Stock Yards laborer, died in the Provident hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Nov. 20 when he was crushed by a truck near a loading platform in the yards.

Willie James Hawkins, 4 years old, colored, 241 North Paulina street, was fatally injured yesterday by a store truck in front of 237 Paulina street. The driver, Henry Marek, 37 years old, of Bartlett, was held for the inquest.

Chicagoan Killed Near Morris.

Mrs. Hilda Burde of 1261 North Dearborn street was killed yesterday and two other persons were seriously injured when their car struck a culvert near Morris, Ill. Mrs. Burde's son, Joseph, 24 years old, and Kenneth Gunderson, 18, of Marseilles, Ill., were taken to the Morris hospital.

Edward L. Bradley, who founded and for forty years headed the Allendale Farm school for boys at Lake Villa, was killed yesterday at Santa Barbara, Cal. by an automobile, according to dispatches from the coast. Mr. Bradley was 76 years old and retired from active management of the school four years ago.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 976 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 733 were killed in Chicago, where 20,728 were injured in the same period.

YOUTH LOSES PARALYSIS FIGHT; DIES IN IRON LUNG

Succumbs After Dash to Chicago.

James Helmer, 23 years old, infantile paralysis victim, lost his fight against death yesterday. After more than 33 hours in an iron lung in St. Luke's hospital the youth, former student manager of the football team at Marquette university in Milwaukee, Wis., lapsed into a coma and died yesterday afternoon.

At his side were his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Helmer, and his sister, Harriet, 28 years old. His father, Dr. P. A. Helmer, a Kewanee, Ill., dentist, who returned home after a vigil near the victim since he was brought here from Stevens Point, Wis., in a special train early Thursday morning, arrived at the hospital twenty minutes after the youth succumbed.

Infection Spreads Swiftly.

A swift spreading of the infection was the cause of death, according to Drs. E. C. Pearson and Arthur Elliott. Like the case of Frederick B. Snite Jr. the diaphragm was paralyzed completely and normal breathing was impossible. Unlike Snite, however, the deadly virus coursed upward through the body and affected heart muscles and vital nerve centers in the brain.

The youth's death ended a frantic attempt to save him. Stricken last Tuesday in Stevens Point, he was ordered taken to the St. Luke's hospital respirator when the infection spread rapidly from his legs to his abdomen.

Rushed in Special Train.

In a chartered two-coach Soo line train, the youth was rushed over 249 miles of cleared track to Chicago, arriving at the Grand Central station at 5:10 a. m. Thursday. Seven minutes later he was in the hospital respirator and for several hours his condition seemed to improve.

Despite frequent injections of poliomyelitis serum through the night and yesterday morning, he grew worse as the infection got out of control. Further efforts of physicians were futile and the youth died at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

KEELEY PATIENTS FOR ALCOHOLISM AT 30 YEAR HIGH

The Keeley institute at Dwight treated more patients for alcoholism in the first ten months of this year than in any corresponding period since 1907, the institute's all time big year. This was announced yesterday by Martin Nelson, Keeley secretary, who set the increase over the 1936 period at 7.7 per cent and over 1933, the last year of prohibition, at 80 per cent.

The number of women taking the treatment increased 33 per cent over last year, according to Nelson. He said the number of lawyer patients has also increased substantially, but salesmen, farmers, merchants, and physicians still are the largest groups. The average age of patients is between 42 and 43.

WOMAN DIES AFTER FALL.

Mrs. Amanda Hebron, 79 years old, 523 West 81st street, died yesterday in the Holy Cross hospital as the result of a fall in her home on Nov. 14.

TWO JOHN WILSONS LOSE USE OF CARS BY SAFETY COURT RULING

It was a bad day for the John Wilsons yesterday in the safety court where two men of that name were among sever motorists fined or sent to jail for reckless or drunken driving. All were deprived of driving privileges for various periods.

First came John Wilson, 9517 Richmond street, who was fined $50 by Judge J. M. Braude for reckless driving and was ordered not to operate his car for three months. The second John Wilson, 3313 South Halsted street, who is not related to the first defendant, was fined $10 for reckless driving and lost driving rights for ten days.

Found guilty of driving while intoxicated, Edward Stack, 18 East Grand avenue was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail, and Emil Peters of East Chicago, Ind., received a ten day sentence. Both men were suspended from driving for a year. Joseph Pluta, 12342 Wallace street was sentenced to five days in jail and suspended for six months for reckless driving.

William Crigler, 1040 East 43d street was fined $5C and Henry Welsch, 7722 Loomis boulevard, was fined $10, both on reckless driving charges. Crigler was barred from driving for thirty days and Welsch for five days.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

WORLD CUFF NOTES

By, CALEB

OUR buyers who are much abroad come to know the ins and outs of many countries. The varying details they observe as they buy out over the world intrigue me.

ENGLAND: Instead of most homes near business centers having private telephones, enclosed booths every block or so in the streets. Householders can call others up, but cannot be called up. PARIS: Certain restaurants with racks in which customers keep their napkins, reminiscent of the old barber shop rack for mugs. When customers are numerous in stores, they are given numbered slips so they will be handled in rotation. In stores, no smoking permitted. Men only vote in France. Minimum period for leasing apartments three years. SWEDEN: Hotel in Vaxjo. You lock your hotel room and hang the key on the door frame when you go out. LEIPZIG: Street cars not new, but they are hardly audible. VIENNA: Each policeman wears a badge stating the foreign language he speaks. ITALY: Only one broadcasting station in operation—owned by the government. MILAN: Railroad station seems superior to Cincinnati's famed station. FLORENCE: Burials are at night. EGYPT: Arab workers along the Suez toiling in the sun, 25 cents per day. Morning after passing Suez, shorts suddenly appeared on men and women aboard ship. SINGAPORE: Gasoline 38 cents per gallon. CANTON: Bought sturdy paper umbrella, 30 cents in Cantonese money, 3 cents in United States. SHANGHAI: New department store—with escalator. Most modern fixtures and mechanism. Part of structure twenty stories high—the Wing On Company. (This is where war bombs killed many people a matter of weeks later.) NANKING: City is within walls twenty-two miles long, from forty to sixty feet high, and twenty to forty feet thick. PEKING: Suit pressed 10 cents Mex., 3 cents American money. KYOTO, JAPAN: The date here is not 1937, but 12th year of present emperor. NAGOYA: Nagoya castle 325 years old, surpasses Tower of London, Doges' Palace in Venice, Meissen in Germany. Japanese law prohibits smoking prior to twenty years of age. Short-sightedness now affects approximately 50 per cent of university students. HAWAII: Tourist business is rapidly developing into Hawaii's third industry, following sugar and pineapples.

SIFT COLLUSION IN ESCAPE OF KIDNAPING TRIO

Prison Board Also Finds Laxity in Penitentiary.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Hints of the alliance between crime and politics, frequently voiced when prisoners involved in large scale robberies escape, were contained today in a report by the New York state prison commission. The commission, after an investigation, found laxity in regulation and control over prisoners at the Onondaga county penitentiary at Jamesville, where three convicted kidnapers escaped Nov. 16.

The three—John Oley, Percy Geary, and Harold Crowley—are under sentences of long federal prison terms for the kidnaping in 1933 of John J. O'Connell Jr. of Albany. They were captured within three days after Geary sawed his way out of his cell and forced guards to liberate his companions. The three, who were convicted last August with five others in the O'Connell abduction, were being held in the Onondago county prison pending an appeal of their sentences to Alcatraz prison.

Suspect Cash for Bribery.

Reports of inside help or coöperation in the escape have been supported by the fact that the men are believed to have been members of a gang that stole $427,500 in a holdup of an armored truck in Brooklyn in 1934 and that they have plenty of money for bribery.

The prison commission in its report emphasizes the fact that the prisoners had knives and guns to help them in their escape.

"The conclusion is inescapable," says the report, "that these knives and weapons could not have come into the possession of the prisoners except through gross carelessness or collusion on the part of the personnel.

Criticize Laxity of Control.

"The entire system of supervision obtaining at this institution indicated a laxity in regulation and control which should not, under any circumstances, be permitted to continue.

"It is our further contention that had the personnel [of the Onondaga penitentiary] been adequately trained, they would, as a result of this training, have acted with more decision and directness."

The wives of two of the recaptured prisoners, Mrs. Agnes Oley and Mrs. Josephine Geary, are held with their husbands in the Albany county jail. The women were arraigned in federal court here today and denied aiding the prisoners' escape. Their bond was set at $15,000 each.

DESCRIBES USING OF RAIL SPEEDER TO BLOW UP MINE

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 26.—(AP)—The prosecution's attention switched back to southern Illinois today with testimony that a group of the coal field bombing conspiracy defendants stole a railroad gasoline speeder and used it to carry dynamite down the tracks toward a Peabody mine during the 1932-'35 union war.

Mrs. Oscioa Poyner of Eldorado said four of the defendants took the speeder belonging to a Big Four railroad signal inspector. She named them as Earl Evans, present Saline county sherif; John Costello, Eldorado; Curly Jones, alias Henry Johnson, Eldorado, and Herman Stoval of Alton.

Big Four officials told how their tracks on the Harco branch a mile and a half from Peabody mine No. 47 had been blown up and the speeder wrecked on Dec. 2, 1934, when the gasoline car was started toward the mine with a load of explosives.

12,000 "NUISANCE" STRIKERS UPSET MEXICAN MINES

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26.—Approximately 12,000 of 18,000 employés of the American Smelting and Refining company, largest mining organization in Mexico, have joined a movement of nuisance strikes, an innovation in strike technique.

The company operates on three shifts, and the workers strike one hour of each shift, sabotaging mining operations. They demand a blanket contract, which the company refuses to give on the ground that contracts for each mine, made a year ago after Washington began to buy silver, have a year to run.

The strikes are embarrassing the government, which obtains 13 per cent of its income from mining.

LOUIS F. SWIFT ESTATE LISTED AT $4,000,000

Boost First Estimate by 300 Per Cent.

An estate of approximately $4,000,000 was left by the late Louis Franklin Swift, pioneer meat packer, an inventory filed yesterday with Probate Clerk Mitchell C. Robin disclosed. This estimate boosts by 300 per cent one made shortly after Mr. Swift's death on May 12 when a will was filed. At that time the value of the estate was placed at $1,000,000.

The principal holdings, according to the inventory, were mortgage notes, $1,000,000; real estate, $800,000; life insurance, $444,429; accounts receivable, $176,742; Swift & Co. stock, $263,176, and large blocks of other stocks, unlisted.

The Unlisted Stocks.

Among the unlisted stocks were 14,000 shares of capital stock of the Chowchilla Farm, Inc.; 11,656 shares, Consolidated Rendering company; 10,000 shares Eastern Oregon Livestock company; 4,555 shares A. C. Lawrence Leather company; 7,118 shares North Packing and Provision company; 8,406 shares John P. Squires & Co., and 2,000 shares of stock in the Swift Family Trust.

Among the valuable real estate holdings shown in the inventory were the two Swift estates, Westleigh, at 170 South Green Bay road, Lake Forest, and Southleigh, at Santa Barbara, Cal.

Mr. Swift gave the bulk of his estate through his will to a son, Louis F. Swift Jr. of Wheaton; a daughter, Mrs. Ida May Swift Minotto of Phoenix, Ariz., and the widow and three children of another son, Alden B. Swift.

Shirt Inventor's Estate.

Jacob M. Schollenberger, reputed inventor of the coat-style shirt for men, left an estate valued at $63,000 to a number of relatives by the terms of a will filed yesterday in the Probate court. He died Sept. 28 at the age of 81.

The will of Mrs. Mary G. Woodin, widow of Charles E. Woodin, dry goods merchant, was admitted to probate yesterday. It disposes of an estate valued at $165,000. Securities of $80,000 face value are left to George Baumbach, 1514 East 67th place, and Mrs. Anna M. Welch, 616 15th street, Wilmette, her financial advisers. Some $20,000 more goes to fourteen relatives and friends. Mrs. Woodin died Oct. 15 at the age of 86 years.

TWO SENTENCED TO DIE IN CHAIR; ONE A MOTHER

Fifth Death Penalty for Woman in State.

Belleville, Ill., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Marie Porter, mother of four children, and a young man she hired to slay her brother for his insurance, were sentenced today to die in the electric chair on Dec. 17. Another defendant was ordered to serve ninety-nine years in prison for the crime.

In imposing the death sentence on Mrs. Porter and Angelo Giancola, 22 years old, Circuit Judge Dick H. Mudge said he expected the life of the woman might be saved, because of Gov. Henry Horner's opposition to the execution of women.

"The chief executive has said on two occasions that no woman will be electrocuted as long as he is governor of Illinois," the judge commented. "But, if he commutes the sentence of Mrs. Porter, he should commute the sentence of Angelo Giancola, for she conceived this crime and agitated it."

Penalties Fixed by Jury.

The penalties had been fixed by a jury that convicted the three defendants on Nov. 6. Judge Mudge formally imposed the sentences today after he had denied a motion for a new trial.

Mrs. Porter of St. Louis, a widow of 37, was found to have engineered the killing of her brother, William Kappen, St. Louis electrician, on his wedding day last July 3. It was charged she sought to collect his $3,000 in insurance before his fiancée was made the beneficiary of his policies.

Angelo Giancolo said he took Kappen to a field near a Belleville tavern and shot him in the head while Mrs. Porter looked on. Angelo's brother, John, 20 years old, was given a 99 year sentence for helping to take Kappen to the scene of his death.

Tries to Shield Brother.

Angelo tried to take all the blame for the killing and save his brother. The other brother confessed his part in the crime, but Mrs. Porter maintained her innocence throughout the case.

Mrs. Porter is the fifth woman in Illinois to be ordered executed since 1840. The others either won acquittal or commutation later.

BUS LINE STRIKE CRAMPS SERVICE IN 16 STATE AREA

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—All operations of the Greyhound Bus Lines were tied up in Philadelphia and service over sixteen states partially crippled today by striking drivers of the company. The lines' terminal here, a key city in their system, was picketed by strikers.

Disorders flared in several cities. A bus driver was beaten in Springfield, Ill., and five men arrested. Four other men said to have been guards on buses also were seized by Springfield police. Other bus drivers were beaten in Boston and Washington, D. C.

PICKET CHICAGO DEPOTS.

Striking Greyhound Bus drivers picketed the lines' depots in Chicago last night. Company officials said that although patronage had dropped off, regular bus schedules were being maintained in the Chicago area. Union leaders insisted about 98 per cent of the regular drivers had joined the strike.

THIEF AT AGE 15 FACES TRIAL FOR MURDER AT 18

Jailed for Shooting of Woman and Son.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Virgil Boyce, automobile larceny, sentenced to two years in the Bridewell; Charles Davis, larceny, sentenced to one year in the Bridewell; Laddie Kovarik, robbery, sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary under the habitual criminal act by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

Paul Reeder, 18 years old, whose criminal career started with the theft of bicycles and led to a holdup shooting, in which he wounded a mother and killed her son, was held in the county jail last night on a murder warant. The warant was sworn out by Edward Sedlacek after the death of his son, Raymond, 20 years old, in the Oak Park hospital early yesterday from the wounds inflicted by Reeder.

Raymond's mother, Mrs. Rose Sedlacek, 46 years old, is in the same hospital suffering from two bullet wounds in her arm and the shock of her son's death. An inquest into young Sedlacek's death was opened yesterday and continued to Dec. 10 pending his mother's recovery.

Hearing Set for Dec. 14.

Edward Sedlacek obtained the murder warant before Justice of the Peace Alfred T. Brennan. Reeder was arraigned immediately and a continuance was granted to Dec. 14 at the request of Oak Park police.

Reeder lived with his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Buckler, at 2612 North Moody avenue. He had been sentenced to St. Charles reformatory twice for small thefts, the last time in 1934. Freed on parole six months ago, he went to the west coast and bought a pistol at Cheyenne, Wyo., on his return trip to Chicago.

According to his story told to Lieut. Harry Wilson of the Oak Park police, Reeder left his home Wednesday evening, looking for a place to commit a holdup. He entered the Sedlacek grocery at 1121 Madison street, Oak Park.

Tells of Warning Victims.

"A woman [Mrs. Sedlacek] came from behind the counter," Reeder said. "I told her to keep quiet and open the cash register and she would not get hurt. But she ran to the front door, locked it and yelled to someone in the back room. A man young Sedlacek] ran out and I told him to get out.

"He kept coming so I fired a shot toward the ceiling. I fired several more shots. I don't know how I shot the woman. The man fell on the floor and the woman went behind the counter, so I unlocked the door and ran out."

Reeder returned to the scene of the shooting Thursday because he knew police would be looking for a hatless youth, and he wished to recover the hat unobtrusively. A reporter saw him fingering scratches on his face, received in the schuffle with Sedlacek, and he was seized.

EX-CONVICT HELD IN $50,000 BOND ON KIDNAP CHARGE

John Wesley Johns Jr., 34 years old, an ex-convict who shot and seriously wounded himself on Nov. 6 when police surrounded his apartment at 1041 Belden avenue, was held in $50,000 bond on a charge of kidnaping when arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday. The ex-convict, still disabled by a bullet wound below the heart, was carried into court on a stretcher.

John W. Johns.

Johns was charged with kidnaping Bernard Marthen of Kalamazoo in that city on Aug. 6, 1936, and forcing his victim to drive him to Blue Island.

With Johns when he was located at the Belden avenue address was Miss Joyce Karle, 26 years old. She has been indicted on three charges of robbery with Leonard Johns, brother of the ex-convict.

Johns will be held in the Bridewell until his return to Michigan. He served five years for robbery in the reformatory at Pendleton, Ind., and was paroled in January, 1934.

UTILITIES PLEDGE TO EXPAND IF U. S. STOPS INVASION

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Wisconsin public utilities would undertake a ten year building program designed to double their present output of electricity if they were assured the withdrawal of political competition financed by taxpayers' money, utilities representatives said today.

Members of the Utilities association, comprised of all the principal privately owned utilities in the state, met and pledged their companies to the expenditure of many millions of dollars for expansion if they are relieved of what they termed "political short measure yardsticks."

They declared Wisconsin utilities would give the best coöperation to any plan for business revival that will benefit all the people and the users of electric and gas service.

Gets Jail Term

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

MRS. JEAN ANDERSON.

Despite tearful pleading, Mrs. Jean Anderson, 34 years old, oft-married widow of Hugh H. Thomasson, millionaire St. Louis real estate dealer, was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail yesterday by Judge John V. McCormick in the Women's court on charges of contributing to the dependency of Carl, 12 years old, and Jean, 14, her children by her second marriage.

The sentence, imposed Oct. 23, had been withheld pending her trip to St. Louis for a legal fight for her dower share in Thomasson's $4,000,000 estate.

Her attorney, James P. Byrnes, told the court the Missouri state Supreme court had found for Mrs. Anderson but that further litigation prevented her from obtaining any money. He said he would file an appeal from the sentence in a few days. Thomasson was the fourth of Mrs. Anderson's six husbands.

NEW COSMIC RAY SECRET WRESTED FROM THE EARTH

Surface Is Penetrated by Mystery Force.

An important contribution to man's knowledge of cosmic rays was made yesterday at a meeting of the American Physical society at the University of Chicago by Dr. V. C. Wilson, a graduate student of Dr. Arthur H. Compton, noted University of Chicago physicist. Dr. Wilson's experiment, completed last summer, has shown that the rays can penetrate the earth's surface to a depth of at least 1,600 feet.

During the last year Dr. Compton has sent cosmic ray detectors into the stratosphere in balloons and almost around the world in ships, but the experiment described yesterday by Dr. Wilson is the first successful one completed below the earth's surface.

Descending into a mine of the Seneca Copper company at Mohawk, Mich., Dr. Wilson set up his apparatus at the foot of a shaft that slanted into the earth 34 degrees off perpendicular. The slanting shaft was chosen to make certain the rays woud penetrate rock 1,600 feet thick to reach the instruments.

Stronger on Surface.

Repeated readings showed that though the rays, which are impulses of electrical energy, do penetrate, they are 20,000 times stronger on the surface. The balloon tests have shown that the rays, originating beyond the milky way, also lose much of their power in penetrating the earth's atmospheric layer.

Another experiment considered of great importance in atomic research was described during the day by Dr. Newell S. Gingrich of the University of Missouri, and Dr. Frank H. Trimble of Northeastern Missouri State Teachers college. They told of their use of the X-ray to determine that atoms in liquids have the same arrangement as those in gas. This has long been debated by physicists.

Measure Electrons' Speed.

Drs. A. L. Hughes and Marvin Mann Jr., of Washington university, St. Louis, described an ingenious method by which they measured the speed of electrons in an atom. A swarm of invisible electrons of known speed were shot at invisible atoms and after the collision, the speed of the rocketing electrons was measured by the scientists. Their experiment is considered a contribution to solving the mystery of what is inside the atom and what goes on there.

Other papers were read by Prof. Arthur H. Dempster of the University of Chicago, Richard L. Doan of the Phillips Petroleum company, William P. Jesse of the University of Chicago, Dr. G. W. Stewart, University of Iowa; H. A. Bethe, Cornell university; G. E. M. Jauncy, Washington university; J. M. Cork, University of Michigan, and J. C. Slater, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The society's annual dinner was held last evening at the International house, with the Physics Club of Chicago as host. Dr. Paul D. Foote, of the Gulf Research and Development company, known for his application of science to the petroleum industry, was the principal speaker.

Not since "North to the Orient" has America greeted a woman's story with such warmth and enthusiasm.

THIS IS MY STORY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

The autobiography of a shy, awkward girl who became one of America's most distinguished women. "You follow with absorbed, perhaps amazed, attention the story of a woman who is the child of America's old and formal social traditions. A personal story, vivid, interesting, touched with humor, arresting in its combination of frankness and charm."—N. Y. Times Book Review.

Daughter Tells Inspiring Story of Mme. Curie

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Madame Curie," by Eve Curie; translated by Vincent Sheean. [Doubleday-Doran, $3.50.] Published yesterday. December choice of the Literary Guild.

"Madame Curie" is a life story more inspiring in its facts than any imaginative fiction could be. Told simply, as her daughter tells it, the story of Marie Curie is a classic of human integrity in its devotion to a great work and of human courage in a life at times incredibly hard.

Eve Curie occasionally reaches heights in her writing. In the introduction, for instance, fine thinking translates into fine writing a fine understanding of "the immovable structure of a character; the stubborn effort of an intelligence; the free immolation of a being that could give all and take nothing, could even receive nothing; and above all, the quality of a soul in which neither fame nor adversity could change the exceptional purity."

Eve Curie calls her mother "the eternal student." She had that insatiable desire for knowledge, for "light, more light," that haunts genius, as it did Goethe, even in the arms of death. Her life long, against all odds, Marie Curie worked straight toward the goal of more light.

The story of her youth is a touching one. Materially poor, intellectually rich, she worked with passion as a governess for the opportunity to go to Paris to study science. Once in Paris she almost literally starved and froze, but she was fed spiritually and warmed at the breast of knowledge. She became the wife of the one man in her world who complemented her passion for science. Together they worked under the most gruelling physical and economic difficulties.

But when a fabulous fortune was theirs merely for the taking if they had patented their discovery of radium, she and Pierre Curie both chose to take no material reward. In 1902 they gave the world one of its richest blessings. They did not even get a decent working laboratory until many years after hundreds of others had made fortunes from radium.

When Pierre Curie was tragically killed in 1906, Marie Curie was left with no money and with two young children to support. Never to the day of her death did she have anything but a hard life. As a girl she had tuberculosis. She was undernourished so many years that her body suffered many preventable pains. Her hands were burned with radium. She faced blindness when cataracts grew over both eyes. But never, even when her eyes failed her completely, would she permit either the world or herself to admit defeat.

Chinese Author Mixes Wisdom With His Wit.

"The Importance of Living," by Lin Yutang. [John Day, $3.] Published Tuesday. Joint choice of the Book of the Month club for December.

Lin Yutang's "The Importance of Living" is a unique book, for it is a volume of essays on its subject, an exposition of the Chinese mode of li and its enjoyment, a comparison of eastern and western culture, a criticism of American foibles, and the statement of a philosophy. And it is full of wisdom and of delicious wit, the rarest of literary bedfellows.

Lin Yutang.

Lin Yutang's "My Country and My People" has done more than any book printed in America to acquaint the average reader with the essence of Chinese life and thought. Here he convinces American readers that its author is a man with not only a telescopic vision of his own race and its relations to ours, but with microscopic vision of the minutiæ of the two civilizations. In this book he is concerned with details, not the broad outlines and physical and psychological planes.

Lin Yutang writes with the most engaging frankness. There are 426 closely printed pages in this essentially serious and always wise book. But there is scarcely one of these pages that is not quickened with gayety. The serious business of living must be done gayly, he says, not too efficiently. "Four thousand years of efficient living would ruin any nation," he declares, in pointing to China's long life, with its "wise and merry philosophy of living."

Variety Shown in 3 Books of Short Stories

BY CARL WIEGMAN.

"A Pedlar's Pack," by Elizabeth Goudge. [Coward-McCann, $2.50.]

"Little Children," by William Saroyan. [Harcourt-Brace, $2.50.]

Three types of short stories—dramatic, romantic, and autobiographical—are represented in these three collections.

Dorothy Canfield's work is dramatic in the true sense of the word. It is never theatrical. She can deal with sentimental subjects without being tawdry, point to a moral without seeming to moralize. She is remarkably skilful in the art of telling one story while writing another.

The stories in "Fables for Parents" deal with the relation between parent and child, but a reader doesn't have to be a parent to enjoy them. Several are unforgettable, especially "Murder on Jefferson Street."

Elizabeth Goudge has written a group of stories in the romantic class. Like Dorothy Canfield, she writes about parents, children, and lonely old people. Unlike Dorothy Canfield, she has a tendency to look at life through a veil of pink georgette. She is careful to provide a Prince Charming for every girl, a rich and full life for every old man and woman, and a happy ending for all. Her most effective stories are the three laid in the Channel Islands and the tale which gives the book its name, "A Pedlar's Pack."

"Little Children" might well be titled "Little Saroyans," since William Saroyan always writes about himself. He is not a story teller, but a character sketcher, an episode writer. The stories in "Little Children," however, show more maturity and greater writing facility than some of his earlier work. It doesn't take him so long to say what he is trying to say, and every now and then the little boys he writes about get away from him and become real little boys at Sunday school, in first grade, worshiping heroes and dreaming dreams, instead of just little Saroyans bemoaning their fate.

Two Russians Give Views on America.

"Little Golden America," by Ilya Ilf and Eugene Petrov; translated by Charles Malamuth. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.75.]

Most American travelers in the soviet union come home depressed by the propaganda, the drabness and insecurity [see latest total of executions], and the sameness of thought.

During the winter of 1935-'36 Ilya Ilf and Eugene Petrov, soviet humorists, visited the United States, traveling 2,000 miles in two months in a small automobile. Then they went home to write a book for their countrymen on "Little Golden America." The viewpoint of the book is fresh, keen, and extremely innocent. They believed anything anybody told them.

For the first thousand miles westward across the continent the eyes of Mr. Ilf and Mr. Petrov popped as they saw a standard of living almost beyond their dreams. On the way back they were more critical, possibly because they recalled the urgent necessity for digging up some anti-capitalistic propaganda.

As they departed for home and looked back on America they were depressed by the propaganda [advertising], the drabness and insecurity [many people are out of work], and the sameness of American thought.

An Editor's Life and the Life of His Son.

"Time of Our Lives: The Story of My Father and Myself," by Orrick Johns. [Stackpole, $3.]

George S. Johns, a retired St. Louis editor, is almost anonymous, like most editors, but for fifty years he was a power in his city. He fought fraud of all kinds, helped drive out a generation of boodlers, and delivered many a mighty swat against a variety of public enemies.

Orrick, his son, had a rather different career. He worked on William Marion Reedy's Mirror in St. Louis, wrote poetry, and then went to New York. There he wrote plays, held advertising jobs, and lived among the Greenwich Village liberals. Dissatisfied, he went to Europe to try to drown himself in the middle ages. When that didn't succeed he returned to the United States and became a social reformer.

Orrick knew a lot of the literary great and near great of the last twenty years, and he tells about them all. It's too bad he didn't leave them all out. The half of the book devoted to his father is by far the more interesting.

Looking Over Latest Books

A Vivid Word Picture Given of West Point.

"West Point Today," by Kendall Banning. [Funk & Wagnalls, $2.50.]

In "West Point Today," Kendall Banning paints a vivid word picture of the United States Military academy, involving all phases of the institution. He covers the subjects thoroughly, the routine of the curriculum, the life of the cadet, the atmosphere of the surroundings, the esprit de corps.

Mr. Banning takes the entering cadet through his college days with such realistic description that after twenty years I feel that yesterday was graduation day. Nowhere can be found a single statement that does not entirely coincide with memory. In addition to being accurate, the book is well written.

Those particularly interested in West Point can go through the place in this book without the four gruelling years on the Hudson. M. C.

His Dream of Russia Turns to Nightmare.

"Assignment in Utopia," by Eugene Lyons. [Harcourt-Brace, $3.50.]

A Socialist from the time he could read, Eugene Lyons obtained the United Press assignment to soviet Russia and early in 1928 entered the land of his dreams with his wife and baby daughter. The six years he labored there as one of America's most able foreign correspondents comprise the major part of his autobiography, "Assignment in Utopia," a title reflecting only the enthusiasm with which he entered on this new job.

For two years Mr. Lyons did his utmost as an apologist for the soviets. Believing in the Socialist dream, he tried to rationalize the brutality of Russian burocrats who spread like a fungus growth over the whole people, the callous disregard of human life, the wretched, widespread poverty and terror, and the immense power of the Stalin dictatorship.

In the end, however, Mr. Lyons no longer could justify Stalinism in terms of a highly improbable better life for future generations. So he writes now to explain and correct his former bias and to tell what he calls the truth of modern Russia. J. H. T.

Potemkin Depicted as Master Press Agent.

"Catherine and Potemkin, an Imperial Romance," by Jerome Dreifuss. [Covici, Friede, $3.]

Potemkin's great share in creating the legendary "Catherine the Great" appears from this work to have been rooted in what we recognize today as superior, if ruthless, press agentry. Erstwhile lover, lord chamberlain, and public relations counsel all in one, the more astounding the deception to be attempted the greater his relish in trying it, and although he fooled few of the other hangers-on at the fantastic court at St. Petersburg, the empress and, indeed, the world at large were ever delighted by his fabulous impostures.

This was the secret of his hold upon the dowdy but romantically inclined German woman who came to the throne of the czars after the murder of her half-idiot husband, Peter, which she condoned. Potemkin entered her life as one of her long line of lovers, but, unlike his successors, he retained a hold upon her even after he had ceased to attract her as an unwed consort. The rest came and went according to her caprices, but Potemkin remained almost to his death her closest friend and adviser. P. W.

Novel Built Around a Fantastic Dream.

"On Borrowed Time," by Lawrence Edward Watkin. [Knopf, $2.50.]

This may not be a great book, but it is one of the year's most charming. It is a fabulous dream that might well be called "Logic Takes a Holiday."

The story concerns an old man and a little boy—Grampa Northrup and his grandson, Pud. Early in the story Gramp is summoned by Mr. Brink, a courtly but grim gentleman who is Death. Mr. Brink is chased off the "propity." He takes some one else instead and returns later for Gramp, only to be humiliated a second time by the tough old civil war veteran. Gramp is pretty sure the feller will get him the next time, and he probably would have, too, if one of Pud's games of make believe hadn't given the old man an idea that changed history. It trapped Death in the top of a yellow apple tree and kept him there until Gramp was ready to let him down.

This first novel is refreshing and fascinating. It is by turns tender and satirical. The touching comradeship of the old man and the boy is something you'll remember, but there's many a laugh. C. L.

More Volumes Added to Stack About Napoleon

"So Great a Man," by David Pilgrim. [Harpers, $3.]

Epic historical material which never seems to lose its fascination for readers [and for writers] is the life and times of Napoleon Bonaparte. Already some 23,000 volumes of Napoleana have been published, and it is easy to see how they pile up that total, for there have been seven volumes published in New York since last June.

Napoleon in the gaudy, triumphant days between March, 1808, and January, 1809—when the lovely and tender Walewska became his intimate; when "at the height of his power" Napoleon made his first tentative step toward his own destruction; when Talleyrand first saw that ambition was becoming Napoleon's master instead of his tool; when Napoleon dreamed of all Europe beneath his heel, or, as he saw it, beneath his nobly guiding hand; when Fouche caught the first glimpse of the end and, with Talleyrand, made a mistake in timing their plots—is material for this thrilling rewriting of history.

"David Pilgrim" [the jealously guarded pseudonym of a famous writer] has written a swiftly moving, zestful tale. He has made a kaleidoscopic picture of one of the world's most spectacular men, with shifting, colorful highlights. The tale has an added thrill for those who know their Napoleonic period well, but it is an exciting story in its own right, and for those who like to apply the past to the present it is the tale of one of the most powerful dictatorships of all time.

Napoleon Is Pictured as a Family Dictator.

"No Hearts to Break," by Susan Ertz. [Appleton-Century, $2.50.]

Napoleon is the family dictator, a motivating power, in Susan Ertz's excellent novel about Betsy Patterson of Baltimore, who married Jerome, Napoleon's youngest brother, but never spoke to the emperor.

Napoleon's refusal to recognize the marriage, his iron-willed separation of the two, and his insistence on Jerome's second marriage forged into steel Betsy's own iron will, and Miss Ertz's memorable book carries Betsy through the long years when she was determined to win for her son, Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, the glory which had never been hers. In "No Hearts to Break" Miss Ertz has written a fine novel, re-creating history and portraying an ambitious woman.

Doctors and Others Interpret Napoleon.

Of the four other recent books about Napoleon two are written by doctors who offer medico-psychological interpretations of him. "The Riddle of Napoleon," by Raoul Brice [Putnam, $3.75], and "Napoleon, a Doctor's Biography," by Boris Sokoloff [Prentice-Hall], do not agree about the cause of Napoleon's death. Dr. Brice refutes the theory that he died of cancer of the stomach. Dr. Sokoloff accepts it, and both writers go into the subject at length and vividly. But they both agree that Napoleon was far from having the "iron health" that so many of his biographers ascribe to him, and both bring to the interpretation of Napoleon's character and actions modern theories of glandular reactions and psychoanalysis.

"Napoleon and Talleyrand," by Emile Dard [Appleton-Century, $6], is a historian's scholarly analysis of two great historical figures and of their divergent political ideals and dreams and accomplishments. The reader cannot help concluding as he finishes this minute analysis that the face of Europe might have worn the smile of perpetual peace if Napoleon had listened to Talleyrand.

"Napoleon and His Son," by Pierre Nezelof [Liveright, $3], shows the dictator dictated to—by his love for his son—and offers the unusual theory that it was to regain his wife and be with his son that he escaped from Elba and gave history the famous hundred days. F. B.

"His best book."

—N. Y. Times Book Review

Meet Mike Hawks, just an ordinary guy who made good in politics, neither crook nor idealist, but 'one of the boys' who liked work, a drink, women, a good fight—who figured that "in politics if you want to get up you have to pull someone else down." Find out how they actually 'get up' in this authentic and truly American epic of Mike Hawks' fascinating career.

"A huge revelatory mirror held up to the American political scene at every level... with all the care of a political scientist and the life-giving skill of a talented story-teller."—N. Y. Herald Tribune "Books."

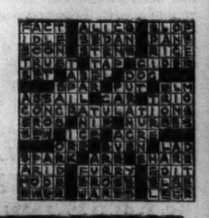
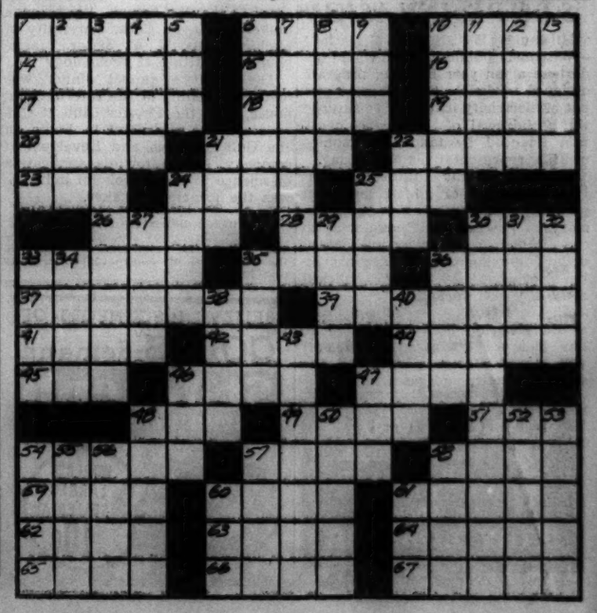
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





CITY'S BUDGET TO PROVIDE FOR BIGGER AIRPORT

Expect Action Next Week on Land Price.

Mayor Kelly announced yesterday that the city's 1938 budget, now in the making, will provide for expansion of the Chicago airport. He said he expects to hear soon what price is fixed for property owned by Raymond E. Herman, real estate man, which is needed for enlarging the port.

"As quickly as I learn this price, an amount for the airport program will be set up in the new budget," the mayor said. "It may mean that we will have to cut out other necessary items, but Chicago must be ready for the 40 passenger planes now being built."

Program to Cost $810,000.

The total cost of enlarging the airport has been estimated at $810,000 by the mayor's engineers. Payment of $220,000 could be deferred if the city paid interest on this amount to cover increased operating costs for the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad when its tracks are moved out of the way.

Ernest H. Lyons, appraiser for Herman, said he will start negotiations with John R. O'Connor, the city's appraiser, next week. He said he could not yet name an asking price in reply to the city's bid of $20,000.

"My main concern is what effect the nearness of the airport will have on the remainder of Mr. Herman's land, after the city buys five of 105 acres," said Lyons, who is secretary of the Chicago Real Estate board.

70 Other Parcels Needed.

After the city acquires a strip of land through Herman's tract, it must condemn 70 smaller bits of land from property owners north and west of the proposed airfield. Then the C. and W. I. tracks may be moved from 59th street to 54th street, to adjoin the tracks of the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad.

The city would not wait until the condemnation proceeding were carried to the higher courts. After rulings by the lower court it would go ahead with its construction program, putting up bonds to cover any price differential between the findings of the lower and higher courts.

Expansion of the airport would take in the square mile bounded by 55th and 63d streets, and Central and Cicero avenues. This area would allow for runways from 5,200 to 6,400 feet in length.

SECTION OF TALL CLIFF CRASHES; BURIES DRIVE

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP)—A section a block in length of Buena Vista, the sliding hill in Elysian park, crashed across Riverside drive tonight and surrounded several buildings with debris. No one was believed injured.

Lights in the immediate neighborhood were extinguished several minutes before broken power lines were restored.

The slide renewed fears that some 4,000,000 tons of the hill's face, which has been slipping gradually for more than a month, would fall.

Judge Vindicates C.R. Jones in Fatal Michigan Crash

Jackson, Mich., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Judge Arthur Wiggins in Municipal court this afternoon dismissed a charge of negligent homicide against C. Russell Jones, Grand Rapids furniture man. He announced that testimony by seven witnesses failed to show that Jones was in any way to blame for an automobile accident near Jackson last March 20 in which Mrs. Eva Meek of Hinsdale was killed. Automobiles driven by Jones and Louis R. Flood, Hinsdale, collided. Mrs. Meek was a passenger in Flood's car. Mr. and Mrs. Flood testified that in their opinion Jones did everything within his power to avert the crash.

Shell Workers Decide Not "to Strike at This Time"

Members of the Lake County Oil Workers' union met in Hammond, Ind., last night to vote on whether or not to call a strike at the Shell Petroleum corporation's refinery in East Chicago. After three hours of wrangling the workers "decided not to strike at this time," M. B. Roberts, union secretary, announced. About 800 men would have been affected by a walkout.

40 FREED AFTER BOOKIE RAIDS.

Forty men seized in handbook raids in and near the loop were freed yesterday when Judge Eugene Holland upheld motions to suppress evidence on the ground that police had no warants for the arrest.

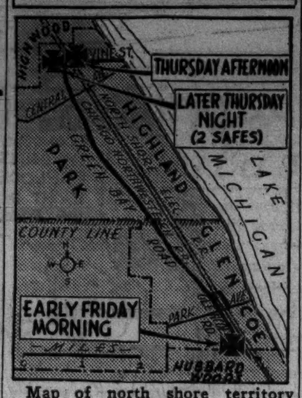
4 Safes—Loot $5.85



Map of north shore territory visited on Thanksgiving by safecrackers who, after toiling in afternoon and far into the night, netted $5.85 from four strong boxes.

YEGGS TOIL MANY HOURS, CRACK 4 SAFES, GET $5.85

Then They Go Home in Tears.

A perspiring trio of safe crackers reaped a total of $5.85, less than $2 apiece, for their labors on a very busy Thanksgiving day.

They cracked four safes, held a young woman prisoner for nearly three hours, severely beat a man, and finally left the scene of their last raid in bitter tears, partly from disillusionment and partly from the effects of a gas bomb.

Three of the jobs were not discovered until yesterday when the places reopened after the holiday. Two safes at the Reliable Laundry and Dry Cleaning company at 618 North Green Bay road, Highland Park, were pried open by the band for the total loot of $2 in stamps.

Cut Through 8 Inch Walls.

In Glencoe the same gang opened the offices of the Mercer Lumber company at 85 Glencoe road. There they cut through a reënforced brick and concrete vault with 8 inch walls, making an opening 1½x2½ feet. They knocked the combination off the safe inside the vault with a sledge hammer.

The safe was protected by a tear gas device, which went off and forced them to flee. In their rush to escape the fumes they left behind a lether jacket and a burlap bag they had stolen from the Highland Park laundry, and their sledge hammer.

Bind and Gag Girl.

The first place robbed by the gang was the Mutual Coal company in Highland Park, where the three yeggmen seized Miss Muriel McEwen and held her bound and gagged while they ransacked the place. Joseph Spano, who came to the coal yard in search of his wandering cat, also was pulled into the place by the burglars and badly beaten. The burglars got $4.85 from the coal company's safe, $1 of which they gave Miss McEwen to replace the ice cream she was carrying and which had melted while they kept her prisoner.

G-MEN TRACE $10 BILL FROM ROSS RANSOM

Federal agents here yesterday were investigating a report that a $10 bill passed recently in northern Illinois was part of the $50,000 ransom paid for Charles S. Ross, retired Chicago manufacturer, who was kidnaped two months ago and is still missing.

Mrs. Mabel C. Ocock of Union, in McHenry county, said she received the bill on Nov. 19 from the Union State bank and was attracted by a penciled number on its margin. She jotted the number down along with the serial number before spending the bill.

Five ransom bills have previously appeared since Ross was kidnaped Sept. 25, west of Chicago. The others were passed in two loop stores and in the vicinity of the far south side of the city.

MERRY FAHRNEY WINS ROUND IN DIVORCE BATTLE

Judge John Prystalski yesterday denied a motion to dismiss the divorce suit of Merry Fahrney Berlingieri, heiress to a patent medicine fortune, against Baron Arturo Berlingieri of Italy, her third husband, whom she married July 31 at Harrison, N. Y.

Dismissal of the suit was sought by the baron on the ground that the baroness' residence was the same as her husband's, which now is Los Angeles. Attorney Benjamin H. Ehrlich, for the baroness, introduced testimony to prove her legal residence is in Illinois.

Judge Prystalski directed that the baron answer the divorce suit, which charges cruelty, within 20 days.

A PANIC MADE BY STATUTES.

The average price of 50 leading stocks on Aug. 14, 1937, was $135.49. This was the high point from which the decline started. On Nov. 24, three months and ten days later, the average was $82.51. The drop figures out to be 39 per cent.

The same 50 stocks sold for an average price of $311.90 on Sept. 19, 1929. This was also a peak from which a decline began. On Dec. 29, 1929, three months and ten days later, the average was $201.14. This was a decline of 36 per cent. [A recovery which got under way at this point reduced the loss to 23 per cent.]

Thus the rate of fall to date in the Roosevelt bear market, as measured by the average of 50 leading stocks, has been greater than in the Hoover bear market. Since the previous recession in stock prices was commonly referred to as the worst in all history, the latest one must have broken a record.

Bulls can be compared by some of the same tests as bears.

The 50 leading stocks averaged $50.44 on April 1, 1933. This was the bottom [to date] for the Roosevelt administration, and was lower than at the resumption of trading immediately following the moratorium. On Nov. 10, 1936, the stocks sold for an average price of $144.44. This was the highest since Mr. Roosevelt took office. The journey from the bottom to the top took three years, seven months, and nine days. The advance in that period amounted to 186 per cent.

The 50 stocks averaged $311.90 on Sept. 19, 1929. Three years, seven months, and nine days earlier was Feb. 10, 1926, when the average was $137.20. The rise in the three years, seven months, and nine days of the Coolidge-Hoover presidential terms amounted to 127 per cent.

So far, therefore, the fluctuations in stock prices, both up and down, have been more violent in the Roosevelt administration than in the preceding administrations. The increasing violence of price changes, reflected also in commodities, has had a disturbing effect upon business generally. Orders are piled up at one period when rising prices are imminent, and business virtually collapses when price recessions appear to lie ahead. The fall in steel operations from 83 per cent of capacity to 31 per cent of capacity has taken place in about two months and a half. As we have before indicated, this is about 12 times as fast as in the 1929-'31 period.

The rapid changes in prices make for stagnation in capital investment. The capital goods industries, notably building construction, have not gotten out of the depression, which accounts for the persistence throughout the recent high price period of a nearly record amount of unemployment. Capital investment, on which a return can be had only over a long period of years, can be made only when there is confidence in the future. How can any one with means regard the future with the certainty that would justify investing for a return in it, when one day prudence seems to indicate the purchase of equities to escape an impending inflation, and two months later it is obvious that equities must be sold quickly to escape ruinous losses in deflation?

The removable hazards of loss of capital are the causes of the daily mounting volume of unemployment. Thousands are losing their jobs because capital investment has been rendered unsafe and unprofitable.

Thus our economic world is in a panic because of evil laws forced upon a confused congress. Congress can stem the tide of depression by an immediate repeal of these laws. But every day's delay will make this increasingly difficult.

FAIR PLAY FOR COACHES.

If a young person is exposed to the benefits of an institution of higher education four years and is found ten years later in a confused mental state no one fires a professor. All the alumni might shake themselves and discover nothing but rattling and dislocated mental parts without then demanding a faculty purge. The football coach at the end of a bad season may reflect upon the inequities with some bitterness.

In these days the coach may be a member of the faculty. He might but he does not remark to a professorial brother that the other had taught a young person Latin, math, chemistry, logic, or whatnot and what the young person knew of any of them the professor could stick in his eye without feeling it. The finished product of the coach must appear before many thousands of people some eight or nine times a year, show up as a success or failure, pay for the stadium, and win the old grad's bets.

Two years of failure will start a question of the coach's worth on the faculty. Four will make him a bum and the fifth will get his job. The other professor may say that he never heard any one giving three cheers when his product makes good and anyway he is responsible for the quality of the instruction and not for the use made of it. Still there is a discrimination and some of the rough edges might be taken off it if there were an exchange of coaches, at least within such associations of higher learning as the Big Ten, a rotation of instructors. Then the football member of the faculty might be happy in the thought that bad luck at one school would be followed by good luck at another.

B. M. B. OR BOOZE MONEY FOR BUMS.

We have a new government activity. The overstrained relief facilities of Chicago are furnishing money for men to get drunk. Apparently it isn't a matter of a few sots taking the semi-monthly check and turning it in for liquor, depriving their families of the necessities of food, clothing, and shelter. Commissioner Leo M. Lyons of the Chicago Relief administration and Chief John Prendergast of the uniformed police agree that if all the offenders were to be arrested both the police and the courts would be overworked.

Under prohibition the government tried to exterminate the drunkards of one generation and raise another which knew nothing about intoxicants. Now government seems to be supporting the drunkards at the expense of their families. The derelicts are known to the relief administration. What else is needed? The form of relief and the manner of distributing it can be changed when necessary to stop abuse. If the man is besotted and the wife is dependable an order for supplies can be placed in her hands. It may be inadvisable to give cash at all when misuse is known.

MAKING FACES OVER THE BACK FENCE.

The French embassy in Rome has a reinforced Italian police guard because an Italian polemical writer says a French cabinet minister insulted Italy. Gayda, Italy's firebrand, is generally regarded as Mussolini's spokesman. The minister who is said to have offended and who says that the statement attributed to him is pure invention is Cesar Campinchi of the navy.

Gayda quotes Campinchi verbatim as telling the crew of the steamer General Bonaparte on Oct. 23 that everything Italian was held in contempt, that war was fatally bound to come, that France would be victorious and would nail the skin of Fascism on the wall of the barn. The retort was that Campinchi was a sectarian madman with criminal leanings, a renegade Corsican who had lost himself in the Parisian political slums, and that the French Popular Front government in which the renegade was minister was the half-witted servant of Russian communism.

The French newspapers published Gayda's compliments to the French government and its minister, and the Italians, of course, read what Campinchi is accused of saying about Italy. The Italian writer invited the French minister to bring on his cohorts and discover how tough the skin of Fascism was and take a licking in the most tremendous war humanity has ever seen. Campinchi is entitled to his denial that he uttered any of the words attributed to him, even if it might be suspected that they were made at a family gathering on a French ship and that the speech was postprandial. The name of the vessel, the General Bonaparte, might readily lead the remarks to Corsica as a land which Italy lost and which France possesses.

People may not start wars by calling names over the back fence, but as a diplomatic habit it is violently contradictory of old school diplomatic habits which were assuaging rather than inflammatory. We can't say that the new habit is one exclusively of European and Asiatic hot tempers and unrestrained tongues, because savagely critical words often drop from high places over here. It hasn't been apparent of late that any good has come from public platform utterances resented by national pride elsewhere or that statesmen have made their task easier, if it be their desire to get along without war, by remarks about the character and personnel of other governments with which ostensibly they are trying to get along with as little conflict as possible.

The responsibilities needed in international relations are weighty and should be on the shoulders of mature persons who discipline themselves against the faults, prejudices, and passions of the average fellow. He can let himself go and blow off steam without doing any particular injury to anybody else. But a combination of heavy responsibility and juvenality is one of the things from which a troubled world might be spared.

A SHOW WITH A MORAL.

The International Live Stock show opens today at the yards. It ought to be unnecessary in this place to say that the annual exposition here in Chicago is absolute tops. It has no rivals. All the other stock shows the world over are secondary. Many of them are merely preliminaries to the Chicago show; in these minor league affairs the inferior animals are eliminated and only the best among the best come here for a final judging.

There are still many intelligent people in this community who think that a stock show is something that holds no interest for them. They ought not to discount their own capacity for observation and enjoyment. They have been told that nature is abundant and with her increase rewards patience and intelligence. City men know these things to be true, but in an environment of pavements, machinery, grocery stores, and books on economic theory the source of our riches is easily forgotten.

Of recent years parents have been giving their children, as a special treat, a trip to Washington to see the capital of their country. The educational value of such excursions may be great, but we venture to say the value of a visit to the stock show is considerably greater. No child who visits the stock show is likely to think that the nation's wealth is created at the mint. Those who go to Washington see where the nation's wealth is dissipated. The amphitheater, in contrast, offers a matchless exhibition of wealth creation.

WHEN THE SHARK SUCKER hangs himself upon the wall of his tank in the Shedd aquarium, where we take you today, he's only making himself at home. He does his traveling that way, where he comes from, stowing away by attaching the sucking disk at the top of his head to a shark, swordfish, or even a boat. Although he can't choose where he's going, he knows the meals will be good if it's a shark or swordfish, because it'll get hungry and go fishing. When it catches anything he disengages himself and helps eat. IF THERE ARE magic carpets, they must look like the summer flounder, so flat and translucent, and resembling a brown rug when he's on the bottom. He really doesn't swim, but shimmies. Being so wide and so flat, he'd have to turn himself over to use the other eye if nature hadn't put them both on the left side of his head. He's the only flat fish who doesn't wriggle.

THE DAY WE were there common eels sat dejectedly upon their tails, with their heads half way up the tank and bowed, as if they resented being called common. PRETTIEST OF THE EELS are the congers, with their veil-like tails. THE PINK SNAKE EEL looks like something you imagined. THE ELECTRIC EEL truly can give you quite a shock. Scientists don't deny it, but look down their noses, when they hear the fish story brought back from Brazil by a sedate one of their number. It was that he found natives driving horses into water where the electric eels were. The eels would shock them and shock them until they ran out of electricity, and then, weak and timid, would come to the water's edge, where the natives would catch them in safety. Don't take our word. See Encyc. Brit. SEA HORSES, that look so much like horses' heads, just can't learn to swim well; currents are always washing them away from home. To prevent, they've learned to coil up their tails and cling to seaweeds. Know who has the babies? Pop Sea Horse. He hatches them out in an egg pouch he carries. The big SPOTTED JEW FISH, long as a man, poses most of the time, suspending himself half way up in his tank like a statue. He's none too shrewd, for fishermen catch fellows like him with little trouble, and, because they're so big, keep them alive in a tank until they need them for food. Your tortoise shell glasses come from relatives of those hawksbill turtles.

MUNCIE FINDS A HOME.

Michigan avenue bridgetenders worried all day because they knew their bridge wasn't making those plaintive cries. One of the three kittens they'd seen strolling on the lower level with the mother cat must have been caught on the bridge when it went up, and then fallen into the water filled 40-foot pit into which the north leaf descends. The electrician said he couldn't go home without knowing. He clambered down and found the kitten stranded on a tiny island of mud. In boots the bridgetenders dropped him he rescued her, and she now takes her meals with August Carlson, in the harbor master's tower at the northeast corner, although Muncie—no one knows why they named her that—calls all four towers home.

WHEN BACTERIA TRESPASS.

THE old term "nasal catarrh" nine times out of ten means infection of one or more of the sinuses—those mysterious caverns which lie—for the most part—within the bones of the face. Bacteria are so minute—we can house several million on the head of a pin without crowding—that they can invade almost every crevice, nook, and cranny of the body. Every breath of air which we inhale probably carries dust particles laden with organisms. Thus we plant microbes upon the mucous surfaces of the nasal passage. Fortunately, only occasionally will these enemies of health do damage. We throw them off with the outpouring of mucus. But whenever the nose is dry, clogged, or irritated they may abide with us, propagate, and generate toxins.

We now are in the season when stragglers from the army of germs may take advantage of lack of resistance—which follows a common cold—and penetrate to these areas. Despite the fact that we deny that we have rooms for rent within the skull, bacteria apparently do not understand. Against a weakened reserve they set up inflammation. Physicians have observed that those who are less careful as to the essentials of hygiene are more likely to be stricken and, unfortunately, once planted, a well entrenched infection is routed out with the greatest difficulty.

Many victims will harbor foci of disease in this region for life, compelled every now and then to combat an acute flare-up. These are the persistent nose blowers and spitters, inasmuch as there is liable to be a drip downward along the the back of the throat.

The discharge which means trouble may be thin, watery, mucilagelike or thick, yellowish, and puslike. If the openings of the ducts from these hollow spaces are free and drainage is unimpeded symptoms will not be annoying. On the other hand, if the outflow channels are obstructed, headache, fatigue, frequent colds, and disturbances of both smell and taste will be the rule.

Those who are heavy eaters, who lead indoor lives, get little exercise, and who permit themselves to become constipated are ready prey. Sometimes environment is responsible. There may be so much dust or so little humidity that healing is impossible. We have all seen cases which have cleared promptly with a change in surroundings or of climate.

Most acute attacks will subside naturally, that is, as the patient improves in strength the mucous membrane will gain in fighting power and destroy the invaders. But enough reserve should be accumulated to make certain that this will happen; otherwise a low grade but chronic infection may persist for months or even years.

Recently I had an interesting chat with a lawyer, who had suffered repeated winter colds with sinus inflammation. He was faced with a protracted session in court. As a result, he lost sleep, ate irregularly, and at the end of ten days came down with a severe involvement of the right maxillary space. Within twenty-four hours he was ablaze with an acute infectious arthritis. The whole business was traced to a hemolytic streptococcus within the antrum. Fortunately, he made an excellent recovery, but it was necessary to drain the chamber and cleanse it daily to eradicate the seat of the malady.

We can conquer most of these episodes if we will give the system a chance, provide enough rest, eat simple food, and not too much of it, and breathe nature's ozone. More strict attention to the common cold will pay high dividends. A neutral oil or, better yet, a bit of white vaseline inserted into each nostril will do more to discourage bacteria than quarts of some irrigating fluid.

OUNCE PACKAGES.

A. R. writes: In your article on treatment of burns you recommend a 5 per cent solution of tannic acid. When people are excited they want to know how many teaspoonfuls per pint or quart of water. They have no time to figure percentages.

REPLY.

Purchase tannic acid powder in one ounce packages. When an emergency presents itself, dissolve the contents of one package in a pint of water. Stir the liquid until solution occurs.

MAY BE TONSILS.

R. G. writes: Is it true that inflamed and infected tonsils may be the cause of having one's heart beat too fast? I am 16. Our physician urges their removal as he believes that this is probably the cause. Is this true?

REPLY.

Infected tonsils can cause disturbances of the heart. If your tonsils are diseased, by all means have them out.

BENDING HELPFUL.

W. B. writes: What is the best form of exercise to reduce a "bay window?"

REPLY.

Bending the trunk on the hips forward and backward. Massage will be of value at the beginning of treatment. Use this exercise for 10 minutes night and morning: Heels together, body erect, hands on hips. Bend forward [keeping legs straight] as far as possible, then backward. Resume erect posture and repeat.

PATIENT'S OWN BLOOD.

D. C. M. writes: In a recent article you wrote of injections for psoriasis. What kind of injections? Where is such a treatment available?

REPLY.

The patient's own blood is reinjected. The family physician can do this. I have talked with several physicians who are enthusiastic about the results of this treatment.

BUSES VS. TRAINS.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Why is our mayor trying to stuff us all into buses?

Where in any large city are buses used successfully for fast mass transportation? They do nicely in small towns. Is it Mr. Kelly's intention to make a one horse town out of Chicago?

The new double deck motor company's buses are cramped, the seats are too small, the aisles too narrow, the ceiling too low. The lighting is poor and the ventilation is bad. The ride is so rough that it's hard to read. The entrance and exits are small and one man drives and collects fares, and consequently loading and unloading is slow. The stairs from the upper deck are winding and dangerous. All these defects are necessarily inherent in this type of vehicle. Contrast this with the new Madison street cars or a modern six door, 67 foot subway car holding 200 people and capable of 50 m. p. h. speed. Ten of these cars are handled by three men. It would take twenty-five buses and men to handle this load. Compare the cost per passenger, which eventually must be paid by such passengers.

Exhaust carbon monoxide gas is bad in the streets where the buses now run. Increase their number and a very unhealthy condition is created.

Express buses are now run north from the loop over the wide outer drive where there is no cross trafic interference most of the way. This should give an idea of what speed could be expected on elevated highways. During the evening rush hours these buses moving north on State street take twenty minutes to go from Adams street to the Michigan avenue bridge, another eight minutes to Oak street. From there they run express to Foster and Sheridan road, taking fourteen minutes. In spite of these favorable conditions they take fifty-one minutes from Adams street to Loyola. Contrast this with thirty minutes on the "L" between the same points.

New York is quoted as an example of the use of elevated highways. They have been building elevated railways and subways there for the past sixty-five years, and have spent over a billion dollars on them. At present they are engaged in a tremendous program of subway building. They recognized this as the only practical way to handle mass transportation in a large city. Only in the last seven years have they built an elevated highway.

The west side lines of the "L" that it is proposed to abandon carry a great number of people into the loop in cars during the rush hours. These cars move steadily into the loop and out again with no interference or danger to surface trafic. To carry this trafic would take many more buses. They would descend to the streets west of the river and would add to the congestion, confusion and danger that now exist on the downtown streets in the rush hours. In addition to this, it is expected to bring in thousands of additional private cars over the elevated highways.

Why doesn't your great paper have a real investigation of this report made by a competent and experienced engineer and publish the facts?

E. N. RIDLEY.

THE DUKE AND HIS DUCHESS.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Don't you think your reading public has about reached the saturation point on news and tidbits concerning the duke and duchess of Windsor?

The duke and duchess are neither exalted beings nor martyrs; if the latter statement be disputed, remember that any so-called martyrdom is self-inflicted.

It cannot be denied that the duke was a popular figure due to a lot of publicity of one kind or another, and it is equally true that a year ago in December he made excellent copy. The world loves a romance. However, one cannot help but feel that he would rather be let alone by the press at this time.

It is perhaps a good thing for two reasons that their contemplated trip to this country was canceled; first, we would have been served the duke and duchess by the papers morning, noon and night; secondly, the trip would have been a "personal triumph tour" for the duchess. Being a woman myself I can sense an ambitious woman when I see one.

Now, why not let us continue to view the duke and the way he managed his life with tolerance—which can so easily become intolerance, thanks to the press?

MRS. V.

RELIEF OR WORK?

Chicago, Nov. 23.—In our town hardly any of the housewives can get maids. There are thousands of families in Cook county who would be glad to employ household help, which they cannot obtain. The reason is the relief. Girls and women in families receiving relief frankly ask why they should do maid service when they can live better on the relief roll without working.

If relief dispensation were other than for a political purpose an employment bureau adjunct would be associated with relief headquarters. When applications for maid service or any other type of help came in, persons in families on relief would be selected by lot or otherwise to fill the jobs. If they did not accept the relief would be cut off or reduced.

Such a plan would be beneficial to every one, including taxpayers, with the exception of New Deal politicians—and they would probably find it better for them, too, in the long run. J. M. G.

REFLECTION for Saturday. So little is what it seems. Miss Chili Bouchier, dark-eyed British movie star who went through Chicago yesterday on her way to Hollywood, turned out to be from Roehampton on the outskirts of London, despite her peppery name. . . . The zippers on the woolen gloves from Vienna in a department store window are only knitted decoration. . . . A dish called city chicken on a downtown restaurant menu is alternate pieces of pork and veal on a skewer, dipped in egg and broiled under the flame. . . . Perfume comes in miniature dress forms and stockings are named for vintage wines. Pocketbooks and gloves to match in a mahogany shade named for an eighteenth century English cabinetmaker. Everything imitates something else. It is all very confusing.

* *

SOME other British film stars beside Miss Bouchier were in town yesterday. That handsome young six footer with blue eyes and dark hair you may have seen dashing into the Blackstone hotel was Bruce Lister, a native of Johannesburg. With him was James Stephenson, who until six years ago was a cotton shipper in Manchester and who has appeared in seven British movies this year. Both are Hollywood bound, under the wing of Irving Asher, to whom everybody points and whispers, "He discovered Errol Flynn."

"How did you happen to discover Flynn?" we asked Mr. Asher.

He grinned.

"Well, he sat around the studio for three months waiting for a chance, that's how I discovered him," was his nice, un-pompous answer.

* *

CHATTING with the British imports at the Blackstone was blonde, lovely Binnie Barnes, in yellow suede with a button off her jacket. Co-star with Gary Cooper in "Adventures of Marco Polo," she said she did a heavy job of vamping Mr. Cooper while he whispered to her about his new baby. Those slant eyes you will see in the picture were achieved by little strings glued to the skin near the outer edges of the eyes that were then pulled up and tied in a knot on top of her head under her wig. Painful, but a pretty swell Chinese effect, she said.

Cable to Uncle Tells Marriage of Alice Gade

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES GARFIELD KING had a cable yesterday from his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gade, announcing the marriage of their only daughter, Alice, to "Holmbo, Norwegian minister to Iceland."

This was the only information in the cable so the Kings do not know just when the marriage is to take place or whether it already has been solemnized, but they do know that Mr. Holmbo and their niece have known each other for about ten years. They met when Mr. Holmbo was secretary of the Norwegian legation in Washington, D. C., and Mr. Gade was there on official business for Norway.

Mr. Holmbo's full name is Egil Anker Morgenstierne Holmbo. The Norwegian consulate in Chicago says he has been vice consul at Reykjavik, Iceland, and attaché at Warsaw. He and his bride will not live in Reykjavik, however, while he is minister to Iceland for that position carries with it residence in Copenhagen.

Miss Gade has visited here many times since she and her parents left Lake Forest in 1910 and Mr. Gade entered the diplomatic service of his native country. He was in Rio de Janeiro for some years and then after numerous diplomatic missions, he retired and since then has been living with Mrs. Gade, formerly Alice King, and their daughter at Mesnil, St. Denis, France. Their son, Gerhard Gade, is with the American embassy in Rome.

Ethel Burnham Kelly Becomes Bride in East.

Another marriage announcement of interest is that made by Mrs. M. B. Kelly Stower of Providence, R. I. Her daughter, Miss Ethel Burnham Kelly, was married on Thanksgiving day in Providence to Erminio A. Scapicchi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Americo Scapicchi of Chicago.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Daniel Hudson Burnham, eminent architect of Chicago, and Mrs. Burnham, who now lives in Pasadena, Cal.

Hubert and Daniel Burnham, the bride's uncles, still live in Chicago. Her father was the late George T. Kelly, a lawyer who resided here. Mr. Scapicchi, an artist, and his bride will spend this winter in Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Miss Mary Rowland Bride of Dr. W. H. Sweet.

Still another wedding announcement this morning comes from Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Rowland of Salt Lake City, Utah. Their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, was married yesterday to Dr. William H. Sweet, son of Mrs. Paul H. Sweet and the late Dr. Sweet of Centralia, Wash.

The wedding took place in the presence of the immediate families at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Edward Rector, at 4917 Greenwood avenue, where the bride has been making her home.

The bridegroom was educated at Magdalen college, Oxford, and is a graduate of the Harvard Medical school, class of 1936. He is a member of the resident staf at the University of Chicago clinics. After a short wedding trip east, Dr. Sweet and his bride will be at home at 4917 Greenwood avenue.

Reveal Engagement of Pauline B. Smith.

Mrs. H. Linsly Johnson of Colorado Springs, Colo., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Pauline Starbuck Byron Smith, to Harrison Crowell Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison B. Freeman of Hartford, Conn.

Mrs. Johnson and her daughter were in Chicago on their way west from their summer home on Nantucket Island, at the time of the wedding of Mrs. Johnson's niece, Miss Joan Smith, to Corwith Hamill, and at that time Miss Smith told her Chicago uncles, Walter B. and Solomon A. Smith, of her engagement. Mr. Freeman was graduated from Yale in 1926, and is engaged in business in Hartford.

At a Thanksgiving dinner at their home, 56 East Elm street, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin O. Griffenhagen announced the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Christine, to Dr. Elbert Newton DuPuy, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. S. DuPuy of Beckley, W. Va.

Miss Griffenhagen, who is a graduate of the Girls' Latin school and Smith college, and Dr. DuPuy met on board ship while going abroad last summer. He did post-graduate work at Rotunda hospital in Dublin, Ireland, after receiving his medical degree at Duke university. No date for the wedding is set.

Miss Carol Bullard to Be Bride Today.

The week-end does not belong to the debutantes alone, for a wedding in Highland Park's Trinity Episcopal church, that of Miss Carol Bullard to Richard Hubbard Howland, will claim the attention of many. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sellar Bullard of Santa Barbara, Cal., who have come back to Highland Park, where they lived until two years ago, especially for their daughter's wedding.

Following the ceremony at 4 o'clock today, at which the Rev. Christoph Keller will officiate, Mr. and Mrs. Bullard will give a reception in the Malcolm D. Vail home at 190 Lakewood place, Highland Park, which they are occupying until next month.

The bride will be attended by her married sister, Mrs. Charles A. Storke II. of Santa Barbara, as matron of honor, and Miss Jean Bullard will be the maid of honor. Mr. Storke was unable to come east for the wedding. The bridesmaids will be Miss Janet Bard and Miss Margaret Smith of Highland Park, Miss Adelaide Ball of Winnetka, and Miss Leigh Fletcher, Miss Janice Sprague, and Miss Elizabeth Ridgely of New York.

A ballot to permit readers to participate in the selection of a Movie King and Queen will appear in The Sunday Tribune tomorrow. Readers will vote for their favorite three actors and three actresses in a one day election to determine preferences of the film fans.

All-Time, All-American of Show Business

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 26.—Eddie Cantor walked up and down the room deep in rugs and perplexity: "You want me to name what I'd consider the all-time, all-American team of show business, the eleven persons who have contributed most to our profession? Say, that's a big order, Ed."

He paced up and down some more. "Hey, this may ruin me. What about Christmas business at my antique shop?" But the question was an interesting one, and Cantor finally sat down. For an hour he drew up lists of names, considered each one of them carefully before accepting or discarding it. At first he suggested two teams, but voted that down. Here is the team he named finally:

L.H.	Q.B.	R.H.
Irving Berlin	Charlie McCarthy	David Warfield

F.B.
George M. Cohan [captain]

"I want to explain those selections," said Cantor, seriously. "Chaplin qualifies because he brought the most laughter to the most people. His pantomime was universally understood. He typified the peasants, the humble people of the world.

"Caruso was the most important singing voice of our times. They say everybody can be replaced, but nobody has taken his place or filled his shoes.

"I know of no one in our profession who has contributed so much as Walt Disney through the medium of animated cartoons.

"Will Rogers, or so it always seemed to me, was a kindly policeman patroling the American national beat, ridiculing pomposity and forcing the bigwigs to be themselves.

"Sarah Bernhardt was the world's greatest actress; so great that when she came to America our audiences understood her plays and her art, although she talked in French. That is genius of unbelievable depth.

Nijinsky, poetry in motion.

"Paderewski, great pianist, I think, did more in my time to spur an interest in fine music than any single figure. As an artist his effect on culture was incalculable.

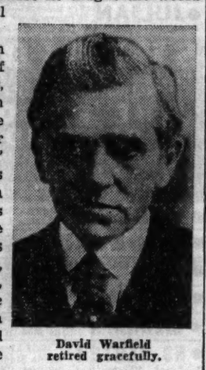
"Nijinsky was poetry in motion, the greatest male dancer the world ever has known. The interest he created in dancing was a vital contribution to show business.

"Irving Berlin was the words and music of the world, a composer of popular pieces who fed the musical appetite of millions of people and entertained them with his harmonies.

"Charlie McCarthy I include because he symbolizes the illusion of the theater and is a symbol of radio entertainment. I don't think any of us in radio will begrudge him the honor of representing the radio profession. McCarthy is more than a comedian; he is the brick that knocks off the high hat. Radio must be represented on this team, and I don't know of a better representative than this amazing dummy.

"David Warfield I select because he was the greatest character actor of our times, and he gave theatergoers the good cry that they need to supply emotional balance. I include him, too, because he taught the world how to retire gracefully, the most difficult of all fine arts.

"I don't think I have to explain my selection of George M. Cohan as full back and captain of this all-time team of show business. Cohan is, you might say, the American theater and, in football parlance, a triple threat—he can write hit songs, he can dance, he pens musicals or dramas, he can produce them, he can act in them."



David Warfield retired gracefully.

It is to be doubted that there will be serious disagreement with Cantor's selections. No one can stand up in meeting and say that the personalities he has nominated DON'T BELONG. Some of those he considered, and who lost out by inches for this all-time array, were Pavlowa, Houdini, Thurston, Helen Hayes, Nora Bayes, Chaliapin, Al Jolson, Bert Williams, Paul Muni, Eleanor Duse, Maude Adams, Jack Benny, Katharine Cornell, Jascha Heifetz, Eugene O'Neill, John McCormack, Fred Astaire, Bill Robinson, Gracie Allen, George Gershwin, Fannie Brice, and Lillian Leitzel.

The one he regretted most in dropping was Noel Coward. Cantor has a tremendous regard for this talented Britisher, who, in his estimation, is one of the most important citizens of the international theater.

I asked Cantor if he didn't belong to this powerful array of performers. "Say, with that team I'd be content to carry the water bucket," he said, and seriously. And then, as an afterthought: "Anyhow, I don't want to play. I'd rather sit up in the stands and wear a raccoon coat.

"For graduate manager of this team I'd name the late William Morris," said Cantor. "For the back field coach I'd name Florenz Ziegfeld; for line coaches, Darryl Zanuck and Max Reinhardt."

Pastel Tinted Dresses Ideal for Fur Coats

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The brightest arrivals for immediate wear under fur coats are the clever new pastel tinted wool dresses. And these have modest price tags. Such refreshing looking shades as soft beige, cornflower blue, pale chartreuse green, a rosy coral red and yellow gold are obtainable.

Some are made in one piece style with short above the elbow length sleeves. One especially attractive model buttons down the front with the buttonholes centered in square cut scallops.

Others stress the snug, snappy lines of a two piece suit effect, the tops cut with youthfully short sleeves and choice of three or four unusual necklines to complete their demure charm. They're all simple and well tailored, with slightly flared short skirts, depending upon the unusual colors for distinctive contrast.

One piece dresses in rough pebbly crêpes are stunning alternates for these two piece outfits and the button down the front models. These rough crêpes are made in interesting afternoon models with softly draped bodices and high swathed necklines. Sleeves either stop above the elbow or are shirred and almost reach the wrist. One model has a dropped shoulder yoke effect trimmed with tubular scroll design with the scroll repeated at the hemline.

Another even rougher crêpe has a full skirt achieved with unpressed pleats and a tucked and folded bodice with longer sleeves.

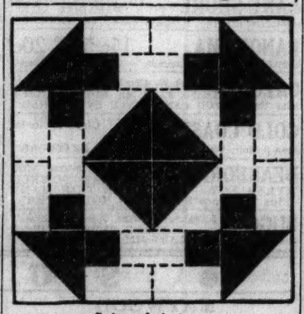
Holiday Guests Set Record at Chrysanthemum Show

An all-time record for attendance was set by 25,646 Thanksgiving day visitors to the annual chrysanthemum show at the Garfield park conservatory. This boosted the total attendance since the show opened Nov. 10 to 125,000, Chicago park district officials said.

Religious Theme Pervades Early Colonial Quilt



Ruins of Jericho.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

There is no doubt regarding the religious principles of the early Americans which found expression in their quilt designs. The "Ruins of Jericho" is a beautiful pieced pattern which was a ranking favorite with the early colonists, and all the children were familiar with the story of the ancient city which was so miraculously destroyed when attacked by Joshua. The block is not difficult to piece because the patches are of a type which lends itself to quick sewing. Measuring ten inches square, these small blocks are set together to form an all over design bound with a one-half inch bias binding for a border.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Lovers of variety had a great time at the opera last night. There were things to laugh at, to tingle to, to be amazed by. Some episodes seemed weirdly reminiscent of that deathless Marx brothers production, "A Night at the Opera." Others rose to climaxes of a power and beauty which any company in the world might envy.

The piece was "La Gioconda," which cannot fail to turn occasionally into a finished burlesque of grand opera. Every gesture, turn, and shout which has ever appeared in caricatures is sure to turn up at least once in each scene.

A major climax came in the second act when Laura was down near the footlights giving her vocal and histrionic all. A property moon began to behave in a most eccentric manner behind Enzo's anchored ship. Instead of setting in a series of straight down jerks it rolled a prodigious distance to the left and threatened for a moment to continue its journey along the horizon until it should reach the wings.

Earlier in this same act came an episode which made even the most hardened doubter believe that opera —even "La Gioconda"—is really a thrill packed institution. It was a performance of "Cielo E Mar" by the great Italian tenor, Galliano Masini.

In quite the most sensational display of fine vocalism which he has so far vouchsafed the United States, Mr. Masini strengthened his right to be called a wearer of the mantle of Caruso. He has in his voice that glorious easy ring which was such a valuable endowment of his great predecessor. Also a delectable smoothness of delivery, the power to tear one's heart out by deft handling of a phrase, and a pianissimo which should set excitable hearts beating like a roomful of triphammers.

Masini's acting is in the grand manner of Italian opera, with countless statuesque poses, semi-pompous about-faces, and a fine, heroic swagger. And he is blessed with great good looks. You had best make a mental note of his name and see whether its owner does not land on some pretty high plateaus during these next few years.

Gina Cigna did something last night to better the impression she made at her debut last Monday [the nervous evening when her leading man had to be brought by plane from New York considerably after the last possible minute]. Yet, even now it is hard to account for her reputation, for the voice seemed tight and parsimonious, not at all the fluent, effortless, majestic sort of voice which we associate with dramatic sopranos. And Mme. Cigna's acting is neither easy nor natural.

There are changes in curtain time for both of today's performances. "Tannhäuser" will start at 1:45, "Lakmé" at 8:30.

$150 SEATS AT 'MET'

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The last pair of desirable orchestra seats for Monday night's opening of the Metropolitan opera were sold by a speculator in front of the opera house today for $300, an all time record.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Roaming through the shops, lining up Christmas loot for you all, we completely lost our heart to some soap angels. You've never seen anything so cunning—three demure little snowy angels with golden wings, each kneeling reverently. These will be marvelous for table decorations, even though they are made of soap, or for Christmas tree ornaments. And if we were 80 we'd like to find one in the toe of our stocking on Christmas morning. Children will be mad about them.

They're beautifully carved, these little figures. Even the chubby, babylike feet are perfect to the tiniest toe. These come three to a box and are miraculously inexpensive. And if you do give them to a child you needn't fear for the blandness of the soap. It's of excellent quality.

You'll see lots of little soap figures this Christmas—colorful ones to hang on the tree and cunning ones to intrigue the imagination of the child who must be lured into the tub. Personally, we think they're wonderful gift ideas for shoppers who don't wish to spend much.

And one of the biggest of our fine beauty houses has special packages this year for the infant. There is a bland milk powder to be used in the baby's bath and a downy powder to be used for his dusting afterward. These are in adorable boxes—blue with bright eyed babies bounding all over the surface. The boxes alone make your fingers itch—and it's a whole new idea in remembrances for the baby. They catch them young these days to start them on the road to good looks.

The puffs are big, beautiful ones in the powder boxes. Perfume is very faint, but very pretty. And both are good for baby's tender skin.

George R. Carr Entertains for His Daughters

One of the gayest parties of the season was given at the Casino last night by George R. Carr for his daughters, Miss Katherine and Miss Martha Carr. The latter who is a debutante, wore white finely plaited net, girdled in silver, and carried lilies of the valley. Her sister, a debutante of two years ago, wore brown tulle with a bodice of gold sequins.

The Misses Carr and their father were assisted in receiving by his brother Robert F. Carr, and by Mrs. Jacob Mortensen of Pasadena, grandmother of Miss Katherine and Miss Martha. Mrs. Mortensen, who has spent the last few weeks in Chicago is returning to California next week. Her granddaughters were educated abroad and came to Chicago in October with their father to be here for the winter.

The debutante festivities will continue tonight with a dinner-dance at the Onwentsia for Miss Mary Seymour Adams. This party is being given by her uncles and aunts, the Solomon A. Smiths and the John Stuarts. There will be a luncheon in Lake Forest tomorrow for Miss Adams at the home of another uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Shumway.

Miss Cynthia Cleveland, debutante daughter of the Paul W. Clevelands yesterday entertained at cocktails for Miss Katherine Dole Baird, the debutante daughter of the Warner G. Bairds.

This afternoon there will be an interlude in the gayety for the debutantes, for no young people at all are being invited to the tea Miss Mary Pomeroy Green is giving in the old Green home at 1149 North La Salle street for her grandniece Miss Baird. The party will be patterned after debut teas of a generation or more ago when young women entering adult society were introduced to their parents' friends rather than to their own contemporaries. Miss Baird is to have a formal debut in the present day meaning, a tea-dance at the Fortnightly on Dec. 23, to which her own friends will be invited.

Mrs. Baird has asked several friends to pour, among them her aunts, Mrs. Andrew Dole and Mrs. Arthur Dole, and Mrs. Arthur Dole Jr., Mrs. Eugene Kimbark, Mrs. Peter Lutkin, Mrs. Carman Lutkin, Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Arthur Galt, Mrs. Chester D. Tripp, Mrs. A. Charles Goodrich, Mrs. William Dean, Mrs. Rollin Keyes, Mrs. Thomas Hair, Miss Ruth Fargo, Mrs. Maurice Leigh, Mrs. Victor Remy, and Mrs. Robert DeGolyer.

The Green family came to Chicago from the east in 1855 and bought property at the northeast corner of La Salle and Elm streets. The original house burned in the Chicago fire, and the present house was built two years later, in 1873. There in the Victorian drawing room from 4 until 7 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Baird, the debutante and Miss Green, the chatelaine of the house, will receive. The tea table will be in the back parlor, and the punch bowls will be placed in the dining room.

Miss Baird will return to her studies at Pine Manor college tomorrow. John Baird who is at Williams, and Warner Baird Jr., a student at Wesleyan, returned home for Miss Green's tea.

'Hold 'Em Navy' Has Appeal for Any Audience

"HOLD 'EM, NAVY!"

Good Morning!

The movies are being generous with those who love to contemplate life as it is lived at Annapolis. "Hold 'Em' Navy," spins another tale localed at the United States Naval academy.

The background and routine activities are familiar. We watch the boys parade. We are with them in their dormitories. We observe them at football games. And we've done all that before. But the story sports one big difference. The hero doesn't win the game on the field. BUT—

He actually does win it. . . . Having been thus cryptic and, I hope, spurred your curiosity to that "guess I'd better see the picture" point, we'll go on to discussion of other things.

Tommy Gorham—for instance. He's the hero. Also somewhat of a smart aleck and a good deal of a ladies' man. But at heart the boy is gold. . . . Caught A. W. O. L. by Upper Classmate Baldwin, for whose girl, Judy, Gorham is—successfully—making a play, he's kicked off the plebe team. . . .

A hard year follows. Gorham and Baldwin still aspire fiercely for the favor of little Judy. Differences between them, their courtship, and Judy's grandma's advice lead up to a pretty kettle of fish. . . .

Then comes the Army and Navy game. [Mentioned before, you know.] On this day you learn a bit about Baldwin you hadn't learned before—and leave the theater rooting for a number of folks.

The picture is crisply acted, dialoged, and directed. It's well staged and photographed, and has enough surprise, suspense, and laughs to insure it favor with any audience.

See you tomorrow.

RUN!

By Patricia Wentworth

[Copyright: 1937: By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.]

SYNOPSIS.

Delivering a new car to a customer James Elliot, lost in the fog, finds himself on some one's estate. Groping his way to the dark house he stumbles over a bicycle. The front door is ajar. Entering, his flashlight reveals a girl who commands him to "Run!" A shot whistles after them as they flee to hide in the hayloft. The girl tells James she was searching for a necklace her dying Aunt Clementia had told her was hidden in the house. James cannot believe the tale. The girl vanishes before James can learn more. At a party at his cousin Daphne's, James is taken to meet a girl with green eyes.

INSTALMENT VI.

THE GIRL OF HIS ADVENTURE.

"Here he is, Sally," said Daphne in her high sweet voice—"James Elliot. He sells cars. I can't swear he won't step on your feet." And with that she was gone.

James had another look at the eyes. Of course, they weren't really green. They just looked green because she had on a green dress. They had very soft black lashes, as black as soot. But her hair wasn't quite black, though it was very dark. It was done up in rows of little curls across the back of her head.

The green eyes were lifted to his, and a very soft voice said:

"Have I got a smut on my nose?

James blushed a little. It didn't really show, but he could feel himself doing it.

"I'm afraid I was staring."

She nodded.

"You're quite sure I haven't got a smut?"

"O, yes, quite."

She looked modestly down. Her lashes were really very black, indeed. James wondered whether the color was natural, or whether she put stuff on them.

He said rather suddenly, "They're just going to start again. Would you like to dance?" And she said, "No, I don't think so."

"I don't really step on people's feet."

She said without looking up:

"I love dancing, but I've hurt my foot. Do you think we could find somewhere to sit?"

This appeared to be a rhetorical question because she was able immediately to lead the way to two very comfortable chairs on a half-way landing. She sat down, heaved a sigh of relief and inquired:

"Why did you stare at me like that? Did you think you'd seen me before?"

James shook his head.

"I'm quite sure I haven't." And then in the most disturbing way his certainty wavered. "At least——"

"There—you're not sure!"

"Yes, I am—I'm positive."

"Why?"

"I should remember your eyes."

Something was bobbing up and down in his mind and he wanted to catch hold of it. He said:

"How did you hurt your foot?"

And she said:

"That blighted bicycle, I shouldn't wonder."

There was a silence. James grabbed at the thing that had been bobbing up and down in his mind and caught it. This girl was the girl who had clutched him in the dark and said "Run!" And some one had started taking potshots at them, and they had run like the dickens. And she had borrowed his handkerchief to tie up a cut on her foot, and when he asked her how she had hurt it, she had said, "That blighted bicycle, I shouldn't wonder." She was that girl.

Nonsense! She couldn't be. He stared at the girl with the green eyes and said in an explosive voice:

"What bicycle?"

The girl looked down at her toes, which were encased in pale green slippers of the rather sketchy sort which consist chiefly of a heel, and a strap, and a diamond buckle. "Encased" is perhaps the wrong word because a good deal of the toes showed through. They were pleasantly shaped and extremely flexible. She appeared to be twiddling them.

She said without looking up.

"It was the housemaid's really, but I borrowed it. She'd have been frightfully sick if I hadn't brought it back because she saved up for it for two whole years. She put all her tips in a savings box. Her name is Gladys White, and she's got a young man in the motor trade. He's a mechanic—horribly oily except on Sundays, but most attached and steady. Gladys says they're all very steady in the motor trade. She ought to know. She says she tried six other trades before she settled down with Albert Wilson for her regular boy. They're thinking of getting engaged in the spring."

This was all with a gentle deliberation, a bit at a time, with some toe-twiddling in between.

James felt a just anger. If she thought she was going to put him off in that way . . . He gave an unwilling glance at his hands. Had she meant anything by that "horribly oily," or hadn't she? The hands were all right. He hoped she hadn't seen him look at them. He said firmly and plainly:

"That's not answering."

"You did ask me what bicycle, you know, but perhaps you've forgotten. You forget rather easily, don't you?" The words were impudent, but the tone was the merest murmur, and she never looked up.

James had never felt angrier with any one in his life, but at the back of the anger there was the horrid niggling fear that she really might be Sally something and a total stranger, and not yesterday's sol-disant Aspidistra Aspinall, in which case he was making a fool of himself and she was probably thinking he was a lunatic. He hesitated on the brink of a direct question, steadied himself there, and plunged.

"Do you mind telling me your name?"

He saw the green eyes for a bright moment. The brightness might have been laughter, or devilry. There was only a flash of it and the sooty lashes were down again.

"Didn't you hear Daphne call me Sally?"

"Sally what?"

She gave a very faint laugh. He could swear that he had heard it before—in a hayloft.

"How fast you go! I've known people for months without bothering about their surnames."

"Is yours Aspinall?"

She looked up at him as innocent as a kitten.

"O, no."

"What is it?"

He wasn't sure that she hesitated. He thought so.

She said, "West—Sarah Elizabeth West. Only I've never been able to get them to call me anything but Sally."

"Not Aspidistra Aspinall?"

"Aspidistra Aspinall? What a peculiar name."

"Very."

"It doesn't sound real to me."

James spoke with whole hearted conviction.

"It isn't."

"Then—I'm afraid I don't understand."

Suddenly James was quite sure. There wasn't anything to make him sure, but all at once he stopped being afraid that he might be making a fool of himself. He also stopped being angry. He met the innocent green eyes with a friendly grin.

"All right," he said, "nobody's ever heard of Aspidistra. She's a washout. Done. Dead. Buried. You're Sally West. I'm still James Elliot—and the only person who ever called me Jimmy got a thick ear. Now how do we go?"

Hair Tinted Brassy Shade Is Unflattering to Face

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

About coloring your hair:

Don't, whatever else you do, let an operator turn you out a yellowish blonde. I mean that bleached touchup with a strong brassy tone to it. One still sees plenty of it, and it is simply devastating even to a young thing without a line in her face. On an older woman it is cruelty personified. Everything wrong with the face is shown up. The light in the eyes is dimmed, for no normal, natural skin or eye color can take on that brassy color without bitter competition.

Besides, it isn't being done any more. A Hollywood scene of eight or ten years ago would have portrayed any number of the shiny-brass-hued tresses. Not any more, however, and I see a good many of them. Some actresses color their hair, to be sure. They lighten it, but what they now get are variations of soft beige tones, never a shade with the cheap brass tint to it. There is a new shade I happened across the other day, called Bacardi blonde, which I notice is adopted by a number of women who go in for light hair coloring. It is a nice warm beige shade, a color that is soft and will not present one's other coloring in sharp contrast.

If hair is drab and lusterless, and sort of discouraged looking, why not give it a lift with a tinting? There is a certain psychological value in the performance, when the hair is transformed from drabness to something else again. It puts new courage in women. Of course, this has nothing to do with the younger women who simply change the hair coloring because they feel like changing it, and change back again when they get tired of it. It being their own heads, who but they will dictate what may be done with it?

There are so many different hair preparations on the market today. I speak of rinses particularly. In some cases these actually are mild dyes. There are rinses that brighten the blonde hair that turns dark with the passing years. There are rinses offering a reddish glow to discouraged looking mousey brown hair. And there are rinses that silver a perhaps rusty gray or yellowish gray head. But you take your rinses at your own risk, no matter what form of tinting you choose to adopt. Better be sure of the absolute reliability of the manufacturer, however, before you plunge your head into any rinse. Sometimes, you know, after continued use of certain rinses, you have the cumulative effect of actually hair coloring. Not that I am against rinses, understand. Just want you to know something about them, that's all.

This Couple's Income Ample for Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am 19 and have gone with Bill, who is 21, for four years. Of course, during this time I have gone out with other young men while Bill spent his time as he liked. His preference, however, is for men's company, as he is very athletic-minded. But going out with others has simply served to convince me that there is no other, never was another, and never will be another for me.

"Now my question is: Do you think that we are too young to get married? We would like the marriage to occur next October, nearly a year away. I will be 20 then and Bill will be 22. At our present rate of saving we will have enough between us to furnish an apartment [simple but nice] and go on a honeymoon.

"Also, do you think we could get along on our present salaries? I am a secretary making $25 a week and my Bill makes $25 also. I intend to work a few years after marriage unless, in the meantime, Bill hits an income from a side venture on which he is working and which does look extremely promising.—Peggy."

Our comment, Peg, would be that if you aren't ripe financially, lovingly, and sensibly for marriage by next October, no young couple ever was or will be.

Your combined incomes, believe one in a position to know on what meager incomes young folks today are taking the matrimonial plunge, would appear to certain of these less financially fortunate ones as more than ample. With money enough saved for apartment furnishings and for a honeymoon you are by way of being an unusually lucky young couple. The fact that you have saved up that much money indicates you will be no idiots with your combined $50 weekly income.

brother's best man, and ushering will be four Chicagoans, Peter Fortune, Robert Childs, Samuel and Russell Holmes, and Marshall Miner, a cousin of the bridegroom, of New Haven, Conn.; William Wallace of Boulder, Colo., and Joseph Shelley of Orange, N. J.

Mr. Howland and his bride will live in Greece for the next year, for he is a Fellow of the Agora Excavations in Athens. It was while Miss Bullard was studying in Greece two years ago that she and Mr. Howland met.

The bridegroom arrived from Athens last month, and on Wednesday he and his bride will sail back to Greece. They will be in New York until they sail.

Rugby Club Meets Toronto Tomorrow.

Will the rugby team of the University of Toronto avenge last month's victory by the Chicago Rugby club tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 o'clock on the field at New Trier High school? That is the question in the minds of the Service club volunteers who have sponsored the game. The proceeds will go to the club's welfare projects.

Service club members have planned an enjoyable week-end for their Canadian guests. Sunday afternoon Miss Mardi Burnham will entertain at tea at her home in Evanston and Sunday night the Service Club Volunteers, whose chairman is Miss Susan Ballard, and the Chicago Rugby club, headed by Peter Fortune, will entertain at a dinner at the Lake Shore Athletic club before the Canadian team leaves for home.

Entertain for Hocky Players.

The 150 women who are taking part in the National Field Hocky association tournament being played in Winnetka will meet for dinner tonight at the Skokie club. Following the banquet the association's annual business meeting will be held.

Miss Lucy Jane Hedburg is president and Miss Harriet Leonard is vice president of the North Shore Hocky association, which will entertain at cocktails preceding the dinner. A breakfast will be served following the final games of the series tomorrow morning at the Skokie playfield. Today's matches will be played at the New Trier High school.

Mrs. James S. Baggot Jr., Mrs. Harry Powers, Mrs. Charles A. Schreiner, Miss Joanna Fortune, and Mrs. Frank Gordon are some of those who have taken tables for the benefit card party the Cenacle guild is giving in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Henry Murphy is president of the guild.

Children to Hear Own Voices at Play.

The children who will be in the audience at the Grand Opera house this morning for the Chicago Junior league's performance of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" will have an unusual and thrilling experience. During the first long intermission boys and girls will be asked a series of questions about the play, and their answers will be recorded. During the second, a shorter intermission, the records will be played, and the youngsters will hear themselves as they sound to others.

A gay place to dance tonight is at the Mary Crane league's annual Snowball ball in the Grand ballroom of the Drake hotel. Seven pretty young girls will sell cigarets and flowers. They are Miss Dorelle Moulton, Miss Katherine Wenter, Miss Carlotta Lagorio, Miss Nadine Kinney, Miss Patty Jillson, Miss Virginia Lee, and Miss Helen Jene.

A number of cocktail parties will be given before the dinner-dance. Proceeds of the ball will be used for the support of the Mary Crane Nursery school which the league maintains at Hull house.

Feast of Haggis to Be Held Tonight.

Tonight at the Stevens hotel when the Haggis is piped into the banquet hall on the shoulders of Highlanders escorted by bagpipers, the Illinois St. Andrews society's Feast of the Haggis will have reached its climax.

This annual dinner commemorates the ancient clan feast of Haggis on St. Andrew's eve when clans used to gather on hills to feast and give a tithe of their goods to the poor.

The Haggis has been sent over to America from Scotland and consists of the hearts and livers of sheep, chopped up and mixed with onions, meals, and herbs, and cooked in the stomach of a lamb. The board of governors who are planning the banquet are James B. Forgan, president; James Simpson, James G. MacMillen, James B. McDougal, Arthur Fulton, R. Douglas Stuart, and Robert Black.

Mrs. Philip B. Maher left Chicago yesterday to accompany her husband on a business trip to Washington, D. C. She expects to spend a few days with her sister, Mrs. Festus Foster, before returning to Chicago next Thursday or Friday.

Miss Rose Dickinson of 1366 Dearborn Parkway has returned from an extended tour of Mexico.

WEDDINGS

Mrs. George Ambrose Bevan of 7310 Luella avenue announces the marriage on Nov. 20 of her daughter, Irene Mary, to Arthur Lennox Johnson of Bay City, Mich., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson of Collinsville, Ill. The bride is a graduate of Loyola university. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Illinois. After Jan. 1 Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will be at home in Bay City.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Freeman, 119 North Long avenue, announce the marriage, to take place today, of their daughter, Phyllis Mary, to Dr. Edward Charles Sheehan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sheehan, 4859 West Adams street. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast will be held at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Unusually Chic House Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' HOME FROCK.

It is seldom that a frock for home wear has the chic that this one possesses. Everything about this model is tailored along the lines of the smartest street dress.

The version at the left has a V neckline and contrasting collar. The sleeves are long and a row of buttons is employed down the front of the bodice. A plait in the center front, near the hem, furnishes width.

The version at the right has a high and collarless neckline, short sleeves with contrasting bands to match the belt, and a slide fastener instead of buttons. Two large patch pockets are added for dash and practicality.

All of the smart washables will make up well in this model, and plain shades and prints are equally suitable.

Style No. 2025 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material, with three-eighths yard of 39 inch contrasting for the short sleeved dress.

If you'd like to embroider a smart counterpane, you might be interested in embroidery pattern No. E-11177. It's available for 10 cents extra.

Crusts Shorn from Sandwich Annoy Reader

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

A gentleman reader took his pen in hand upon reading a recent column of mine describing party sandwich making. Why recommend cutting crusts from bread to make sandwiches? he asks. It's much healthier to leave them on, says he.

I think so, too. But party sandwiches are of a special kind. They must be neat. They must be dainty and they must be easy to eat. Often they are rolled or cut into pretty shapes. All these qualifications call for removal of crusts. But the luncheon, supper, or picnic sandwich, and particularly the sandwich which goes into the school child's lunch box, shouldn't be de-crusted. It's healthier, heartier, and more fun to eat with the crust left on.

A rather unusual telephone request the other day concerned the preparation of fresh snails. These are a great delicacy with the French. Few Americans have learned to fancy them, although they do make a fine appetizer course. I've eaten them served in the shell in French restaurants. I believe that canned snails often are used for this dish. They are chopped, combined with butter and seasonings, including chopped chives, and placed in the snail shells. These are heated in a bed of coarse salt and served just that way.

To prepare the fresh snails, this is the method to use:

Soak snails in salt water for half an hour, then wash in several waters and scrub the shells clean. Crack shells, drop snails into boiling, salted water, using 1 teaspoon salt per quart of water, and cook 15 minutes. Drain and pick flesh from the shells. Prepare snails in any desired manner. They may be sautéed in butter with a little minced onion, and served with lemon juice.

Two other unusual foods about which readers have asked us recently are plantain [the tropical fruit, not the weed] and pawpaws. The latter are common in the south, but a rather unusual fruit in this part of the country. They taste something like avocados, only are less oily, and may be used in almost any combination of fruits for salad or appetizer, to answer that perpetually recurring demand for something "just a little different."

"Years ago," writes a reader, "you printed a recipe for steamed carrot pudding, which was very good. I've lost mine, so will you reprint it, please?" Yes, with pleasure, for this is the kind of pudding which is popular at this season of the year, and perhaps other readers will want it.

Steamed Carrot Pudding.

1 cup ground raw carrots
1 cup ground raw potatoes
½ cup shortening, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ cups raisins or currants

Add carrots, potatoes, shortening, and vanilla to combined and sifted dry ingredients, into which the raisins or currants have been stirred. Stir all together and pour into greased pans or cans. Cover tightly and steam for 2 hours. Serve hot with hard sauce or lemon sauce.

It's not always easy to remove lipstick stains from lingerie. Grease spots, too, have a way of remaining when they're not wanted. But there is a grand preparation that will come to your aid. It's a powdered soap intended expressly for fine laundering and for removing spots and stains.

For travelers there's a neat little package containing packets for eight launderings. For family use there is a large box, enough for fifty applications.

Little One's 'No' Just a Signal Light

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"I have a darling of two who is starting something that looks like stubbornness. His answer to about half the things I say to him is "no"—sometimes a blithe "no," but often an apparently determined one. Yet he'll turn right around and do what he's said "no" to. I have a little niece of five who's as stubborn as a young mule and I don't want to go through the scenes they do, when my son is older."

Provided you understand and don't give too much importance to it, this NO habit is not the forerunner of stubbornness. It isn't a prophecy of chronic contrariness, though by misunderstanding it and making much of it, you easily could force it into being just that.

Sometimes it's funny that bland little "no"; sometimes it's cunning but sometimes, when you're tired or in a hurry, your patience and sense of humor topple and you ride roughshod over it.

Try not to. It's only a phase. It doesn't mean a deliberate resistance, a pitting of a two year old will against yours. It isn't that important. And if you'll just get a line on the reason for that "no" your annoyance will vanish. So:

First, tell yourself it will pass, because it will.

Next, comfort yourself with the thought that most children acquire this habit around the age of two; yours is not particularly naughty or mismanaged.

And last, recognize its meaning. "No" usually is not a flat denial but a sort of traffic signal: "Wait a minute—I'm not quite ready—I can't hurry," or "I don't like the idea very much, but I'll get used to it in a minute." Of course the young child can't explain all this, but that is usually what he means.

Mrs. Bevans' column also appears in The Sunday Tribune.

First P.-T. A. Club Is Organized at Vocational School

The new interest in vocational education was reflected yesterday in an announcement of the formation of the first parent-teacher organization to be founded at a strictly vocational school, the Washburne Trade and Continuation school, Division and Sedgwick streets.

Organized on city-wide lines to admit all who have an interest in vocational education, the group elected temporary officers under the leadership of Mrs. F. Russell Lyons, president of the District No. 24 Parent-Teacher association. They affiliated with the state and national P.-T. A. organizations.

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I have read with avid interest the hands sent in to you by correspondents from far and wide, depicting their various tales of woe. But if you were to run a contest offering a prize to the writer of the most harrowing story, I am positive I would win said prize in a walk, and a slow walk at that. I maintain that I was the victim of the most atrocious bid ever made in a bridge game, but I know you will agree with me after you read the details of the following hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♦ Q J 5 3 2

SOUTH
♠ A J 10 8 3 2
♥ K 9
♦ A K 7
♣ 10 9

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 diam'ds	3 clubs!!!
3 diamonds	4 clubs	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

"You have my permission to publish this hand on one condition. The three exclamation marks must be kept intact after the three club bid.

"In all fairness, Mr. Culbertson, have you ever seen a worse overcall? Two secondary half tricks, and possibly three winning tricks, constitute the whole hand. I, as an opponent, shudder to think what would have happened to East had I held West's clubs as part of my opening bid! Yet this blankety-blank bid proved to be my undoing and the means of setting the final four spade contract. West, whose playing ability was head and shoulders over his partner's bidding, decided that the quickest way he could get his partner on lead was via the club suit. He underled the club ace-king and East won with the jack. It did not take much imagination on East's part to realize that his partner wanted him on lead for an urgent reason, and that the reason must be the diamond suit.

"The rest is history. West ruffed the diamond return, put East back on lead by once more underleading the club ace-king, and one more diamond ruff set the contract. Down one on a hand that should be just a wheeze and a breeze for five odd!

"Needless to say, on the very next hand East-West made a small slam and won the rubber. That always seems to be the corollary.

"There must be something wrong with the game of bridge when such things can happen. I'm about ready to give it up and start a back-to-childhood-games movement. Do you have any good books on charades or dominoes?

"Disgustedly yours,
"A. M. S.—Los Angeles, Cal."

Now, now! Why pick on bridge as the source of all unfairness? How about a fumble at football recovered by one of the fumbler's own teammates and carried to a touchdown? All types of games, and life itself, are filled with these little ironies.

Write your bridge troubles and problems to Ely Culbertson, care of this paper, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Adventurers' Club Marks Silver Jubilee; T. R. Once Its Head

One hundred fifteen men who have satisfied their itch for excitement by combating nature in one way or another last night celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Adventurers' club with a banquet at the club's rooms, 14 North Michigan avenue.

Many old timers were among those who reminisced upon hunting, fishing, and exploration trips. The speakers included John T. McCutcheon, CHICAGO TRIBUNE cartoonist and a founding member of the club, of which Theodore Roosevelt was the first president; Edmund Heller, director of Fleischacker zoo, San Francisco, and a member of Roosevelt's African expedition, and Edward Shackleton, president of the Oxford Exploration club and son of Sir Ernest Shackleton, who froze to death in the Antarctic.

Two others present were J. W. Clarke, 85 years old, the oldest member of the club, member of a Brazilian railway survey expedition, and Brendon Phibbs, 21, the youngest, a member of the recent McMillan Arctic expedition.

Some are cast in the versatile and flattering role of suits. Others are fashioned into swanky topcoats. Incredibly soft flannels, chiffon-soft wool jerseys and equally soft tweed and wool mixtures are featured in a fascinating range of colors from cornflower blue to brilliant jackrose red.

MAYOR PROMISES TO END DRINKING WITH RELIEF CASH

Calls Parley Next Week to Perfect Plans.

Mayor Kelly will act early next week to stop reliefers from spending relief money for liquor. He said yesterday he will call Commissioner Leo M. Lyons of the Chicago Relief administration into conference to devise methods of ending drunkenness among the reliefers.

"I will stop the drinking," the mayor promised. "It can be done and it will be done. I am not going to have women and children suffer because husbands and fathers drink up money that the taxpayers provide for food."

Coöperation Pledged.

The mayor made this statement after being told that Lyons believed law enforcing agencies must handle the problem. The relief commissioner said he and his staf will cooperate in every way possible in any plan the mayor develops.

"Until I talk to Commissioner Lyons I won't be able to say what will be done," the mayor said. "We can't make nursemaids out of policemen by arresting all drunken reliefers, but it may be necessary to stop giving relief to all drunkards."

Convictions May Be Difficult.

James P. Allman, commissioner of police, said reliefers who showed evidence of drunkenness could be arrested under the disorderly conduct ordinance, but that it might be difficult to secure convictions if the reliefers had not been guilty of disturbing the peace. He said there is no statement about drunkenness itself in the city ordinances.

The commissioner said he would not order the police to take any action against drunken reliefers until Mayor Kelly decides on the best plan of solving the problem.

Lyons said about 10 per cent of the relief cases, individuals or families receiving relief as a unit, are now given disbursing orders which cannot be converted into cash directly but may be exchanged for supplies and rent. He asserted that it is policy to substitute these orders for checks when there is drunkenness or other wasting of relief funds.

Swap Groceries for Liquor.

"Disbursing orders won't keep a man from drink, though," Lyons said. "He will take groceries and swap them for liquor. The clients did that under the Illinois Emergency Relief commission when everything was done on a disbursing order basis."

Lyons said it is more expensive to give out disbursing orders than checks. One check can be made out in place of several disbursing orders and the books of the merchants handling the orders must be audited by the relief commission.

Hard Winter?

Bath, Ill., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Herman R. Lippert made a tour of his farm south of Bath today and came back to the house with the prediction that we are going to have heavy and lasting snows this winter. Lippert said he found woodpeckers have been storing acorn meat in all available cracks in telephone poles, fence posts, and tree trunks. "And," said the farmer, "you can't fool a woodpecker."

ARRAIGN DOCTOR FOR FAILING TO PAY $740 ALIMONY

Dr. Michael Nelson, 63 years old, 1624 North California avenue, was arraigned yesterday in the Superior court of Judge John J. Lupe for failing to pay $740 alimony to his ex-wife, Evelyn, who also charged him with arbitrarily cutting her $80 monthly alimony payments in half.

Through his attorney, Harry X. Cole, the physician countered with a petition for custody of their son Norman, 15, a military academy student. Dr. Nelson said the boy complained that his mother was cruel to him.

Attorney Cole said Dr. Nelson reduced the alimony payments because the boy has lived with him since June. Mrs. Nelson, who lives at 4333 North Troy street, obtained a divorce Nov. 30, 1935.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Flora of Chicagoland

[Highbush Cranberry.]

November 26, 1937.

IN the fields and woods of the experimental farm are many plants, trees, and shrubs which provide fruits and berries for the farm kitchens to turn into jars of delicious jams and preserves. Several of these fruit-bearing trees, such as the plum and the crab, are rather plentiful on the farm.

But there is one shrub which isn't nearly common enough to suit the farm women. This is the highbush cranberry, which matures clusters of bright red berries every autumn. Delicious jelly may be made from these berries, as one of the farm women discovered a few weeks ago when some of the fruit was brought into the kitchen and made into a bright red jelly quite different from anything stored in the fruit cellar.

Bushes too Scarce.

So far we have found only a few of the highbush cranberry bushes on the farm. [They were 8 to 10 feet high.] From these only enough berries were gathered to make three or four small jars of jelly.

The name of the highbush cranberry [Viburnum opulus] is rather misleading, for it is not related to the true cranberry. On the contrary, it is a relative of the elderberry and is a member of the well known honeysuckle family. It gets the cranberry name because its fruit looks and tastes somewhat like the cultivated cranberry. But with that the similarity ends.

It has a number of other names, some of which are quite descriptive, such as crampbark tree, wild guelder-rose, cherry-wood, red elder, rose elder, love rose, May rose, squaw bush and witch-hobble. All of these names have a meaning to those who know the shrub, for they are all related to some aspect of its history, uses, or appearance.

It is quite evident that the herb doctors must have thought up the name of "crampbark." They believed that if you boiled the bark of the cranberry the liquid was an excellent remedy for stomach aches.

Related to Snowball.

The highbush cranberry, although useful and decorative, isn't nearly as well known to some of its relatives. For example, nearly everybody knows the snowball bush, that ornamental shrub which usually is covered with round white flower clusters around Decoration day. [Some suburban homes have extensive hedges of snowball bushes.] This shrub is closely related to the highbush cranberry.

Northern Illinois and northern Indiana are the southern limits for the highbush cranberry, since it prefers the colder areas of the north. A resident of Chicagoland who spent his youth in Canada recently told us how his grandmother used to transplant highbush cranberry bushes from the woods to her back yard so that she would have berries for making jelly each autumn.

The shrub thrives even in northern Saskatchewan, 500 miles north of the American border. It is rather common in the New England states, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, and states where the winters are rather severe.

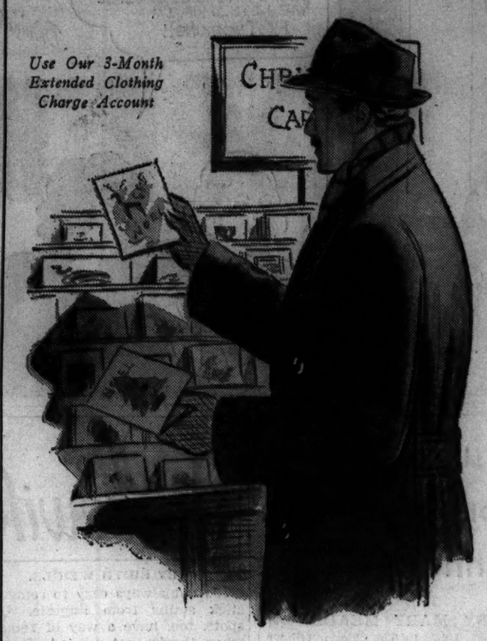
THE MEN'S STORE—MONROE AT WABASH



The Wear-Weev Ulster

That Possesses a Rugged Durability Is Woven of Fleece That Is Soft and Warm

$50

A big burly coat that rests lightly on your shoulders—a coat capable of giving you comfortable protection against the bitterest winter cold, and in spite of its big coat styling, has the elegance of a Chesterfield. Wear-Weev's noted qualities originate with the use of long strands of imported wool that, before weaving, are tightly twisted. This not only provides the basis of unusual wear, but provides, too, the curl and luxurious nap to the fleece.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Austin High, for the second straight year champion of the Public High school league, is ready for this afternoon's big battle at Soldiers' field. Leo, Catholic champion, is just as highly keyed for the engagement. Both coaches, Bill Heiland of Austin and Whitey Cronin of Leo, said after workouts yesterday that their respective outfits are in the pink and forecast a great football show for the 85,000 expected at the event.

The series, first game of which was conceived and sponsored by Mayor Kelly in 1934, has been growing in popularity ever since the high school champs started playing for the benefit of Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit fund. The first game drew $36,000 and last year's attraction, a 19 to 19 tie between Austin and Fenwick, drew $87,000. More than $100,000 will be derived from today's spectacle.

Leo Blanked Twice.

Leo has played in two of the three games of the series and has yet to score a point. Lindblom beat the south siders by identical scores, 6 to 0, in 1934 and 1935. Leo is proud, also good enough, to end the zero business this afternoon, Lions followers on the south side and elsewhere predict. Austin has the prestige of 19 points scored in last year's game and thinks that tabulation, with the addition of a touchdown or two, will be just about right if Leo can be held to precedent, viz: 0.

Of course, what the boys think they are going to do and what actually happens this afternoon are not related matters necessarily.

Both squads are hoping for a fast, dry turf. Such footing, of course, always makes for more fancy stuff, and both Austin and Leo are full of fancy stuff. Each team has a big, fast, and smart line. If it becomes necessary to resort to fundamental, smashing football there still will be a good show. But the hope is for a fast track. The lines then can show what they know about blocking and each will be bent on shaking loose one of the fleet backs for long runs, either from scrimmage or passes.

Others May Steal Spotlight.

Much is expected, of course, from the greatly publicized left half backs, Bill De Correvont of Austin and Johnny Galvin of Leo. Many of the plays are built around these sprightly stars. But Bill and Johnny are far from being the entire works and friends of the other fine youngsters have not given up hopes that their pets will steal the spotlight from the printers' ink kids.

Weather forecasts did not promise as good a day as Chicagoans have enjoyed throughout the week. But a dry field is assured. There may be a light shower some time in the afternoon, but there's the chance that the game will be over before the precipitation gives down. Slightly colder weather is forecast, but nothing like the blizzardy stuff that marred so many games a week ago.

Entertainment for Early Birds.

A crowd of anywhere from the estimated minimum of 70,000 to the estimated maximum of 85,000 will tax the trafic facilities of the Soldiers' field area, of course. But every arrangement has been made to facilitate the flow of auto and pedestrian trafic.

All parking lots in the vicinity of Soldiers' field will be available. The capacity of these lots is 9,000 cars.

The kickoff will be at 1:30 o'clock, but there will be much entertainment for early arrivals, including a concert by a band of 1,000 pieces, led by Paul Whiteman. Bands from ten high schools will make up the consolidated organization.

Fight Decisions

At Baltimore, Md.—Harry Jeffra beat Indian Quintana [10].

DRAKE MARCHES 45 YARDS; BEATS MIAMI U., 7 TO 0

Miami, Fla., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Drake university staged a forty-five yard touchdown march to defeat the University of Miami, 7 to 0, in a football game tonight.

Drake's attack started to work late in the third quarter. A fifteen yard dash by Bud Suter and short line thrusts by Pug Manders and Bob Underwood took the ball to the 11 yard line, from where Suter cut through tackle to score. Phil Manders place kicked the extra point.

John Henry Lewis Stops Salvatore Ruggirello

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 26.—(AP)—John Henry Lewis, world's light heavyweight boxing champion, scored a four round technical knockout victory over Salvatore Ruggirello, Los Angeles, here tonight.

Moon Mullins of Chicago won a six round decision over Paul Lee of Indianapolis in a semi-windup. Frankie Saglio of Chicago was too rugged for Jimmy Legrone of Des Moines, and won a six round decision.

Report Giants Get Medwick for 3 Players

New York, Nov. 27.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—The Daily Mirror in a copyright story says today it learned "from an exclusive source" that the New York Giants have acquired Joe [Ducky] Medwick from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Mel Ott, Hal Schumacher, and Gus Mancuso.

"Official announcement of the deal is expected tomorrow or the day after," the Mirror says.

Medwick, who came up to the Cardinals in 1932 after seasoning at Houston of the Texas league, won the 1937 National league batting championship and was named the league's most valuable player by the Baseball Writers' association.

Ott, an outfielder converted last season to third baseman, is a holdover from the John McGraw régime of the Giants. He has been with the National league pennant winners since 1925. Mancuso has been the Giants' first string catcher since he was received in trade from the Cards in 1932. Schumacher, right hand pitcher, also has been with the club since 1932, coming up from Bridgeport in the Eastern league.

GRIMM WANTS HIM, TOO

Charles Grimm, manager of the Cubs, arrived in town last night from his St. Louis home, preparatory to moving on to Milwaukee, where the minor league convention will be held next week.

Grimm had no news to offer except that he will concentrate his trading efforts on an outfielder able to hit in the pinches. The club still is gunning for Joe Medwick, the Cardinals' ace, but the latter club has asked too much in return. Reports are that the Cards insisted on Second Baseman Billy Herman as No. 1 man in the deal.

BREADON DENIES IT

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 26.—(AP)—President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals tonight denied the reported deal with the Giants involving his star slugger, Joe Medwick.

MYSTERY TO RICKEY

Columbus, O., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Branch Rickey, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball club, said early today he knew "nothing at all" about the reported trade of Joe [Ducky] Medwick to the New York Giants in exchange for Mell Ott, Hal Schumacher, and Gus Mancuso.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26.—This usually sedate Quaker city, scarcely recovered from yesterday's touchdown deluge by which Cornell whipped the University of Pennsylvania, 34 to 20, is preparing to serve as host to Army and Navy, which will meet tomorrow in the thirty-eighth game of the nation's most colorful football series.

Municipal stadium, where Gene Tunney won the world heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey, will be packed with more than 102,000 spectators. All tickets have been sold for weeks and today speculators were asking three times the purchase price of $4.40 for tickets which scarcely would furnish a better view of the pageantry and contest than if one sat on the steps of Field museum to see a game in Soldiers' field in Chicago.

No Title? Don't Be Foolish.

There is no championship at stake other than the question of supremacy of the Middies over the Cadets, but to these rival service schools and to the men of the Army and Navy, this, after all, is the only championship that counts.

Because of its military setting, with generals and admirals, as well as second lieutenants and ensigns, stumbling over the football peasantry, and because the West Point corps of 1,700 and the personnel at Annapolis will attend, the game has an appeal transcending the contest itself. Socially, with the annual Army-Navy ball tomorrow night, there is nothing with which to compare it.

New York and Washington long since have adopted this game as their own, and this interest accounts for the tremendous demand for tickets. Pennsylvania railroad officials estimated today that 25,000 will be transported from New York on thirty-three special trains, twenty-eight of which will run directly to the stadium on sidings completed this afternoon. In addition there are six regularly scheduled trains during the morning hours.

Train Business Sets Record.

This movement by rail will set an all time record for football transportation.

While the academy students will not arrive until tomorrow morning, the Army team encamped late last night at Green Hill Farms hotel, just outside Philadelphia, taking over just as Cornell's victorious squad vacated. The Cadets drilled today briefly at Franklin field.

Navy's football squad will not leave Annapolis until tomorrow morning and will arrive at the stadium at 11:45. The kickoff is scheduled for 12:30, Chicago time.

Army has been beaten by Yale and Notre Dame this season. The Middies lost to Notre Dame, Pennsylvania and Princeton, and were tied by Harvard. Records mean nothing, but they have served to set up Army as 2 to 1 favorite over Navy. Actually comparative scores, because of Harvard's victory over Yale, and Navy's far more brilliant game against Notre

Clan O'Connell Wants C.Y.O. Title for Joe

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

If you chance to be wandering along West 64th place one of these winter nights, and you hear sounds of thumping emanating from the basement of No. 3452, you'll know that the Clan O'Connell is going through its evening workout.

The Clan O'Connell is not conducting this nocturnal drill solely for exercise. There is a definite objective for one member, and the whole family is pitching in to make sure that he succeeds in attaining it. That member in question is 18 year old Joe O'Connell, and the goal is a championship at the finals of the Catholic Youth organization's seventh annual boxing tournament next Wednesday night at the Chicago Stadium.

Joe will tell you that there is not a better home made gymnasium in all Chicago than the O'Connell basement. And the designer of same was no less than the head of the clan, Pa John O'Connell himself.

It's Serious Business.

Pa O'Connell, a board of education engineer who is stationed at the Haines school on the near south side, has not contented himself with the problems of design. He contributed a sand bag, a punching bag, a rub down table, canvas and mats, and a shower, but didn't pause there. He promptly fastened on a pair of gloves and went to work to show his sons, Joe and Ed, how to deport themselves in a ring.

The elder O'Connell was well adapted as a tutor, for he had done considerable boxing as an amateur in his youth. And there was the maternal grandfather, Pat McGurn, who had been quite some shakes as a puncher during the Columbian exposition of 1893.

Both Joe and Ed proved apt students, not only at the C. Y. O. center drills, but also in the homework classes held by their dad. Joe will be fighting Willie Goldsmith, colored southpaw, for the 135 pound open title next Wednesday night.

He's Used to Winning.

Last year Joe won his second pair of spurs by taking the 126 pound novice crown in a decision from Jack Goodman. Joe took himself a weight allowance in that victory, for he had first announced himself to C. Y. O. followers as a 135 pounder in winning the 1935 juvenile title.

Meanwhile, Brother Ed was doing right neatly himself, winning the 118 pound title in the 1935 juvenile tournament and in the 1936 novice class. This year Ed was eliminated and Joe is downright determined to see that at least one O'Connell will be an open champion.

Joe has had one of the best records of all of the C. Y. O. finalists. He has had 75 bouts, winning 71 of them, and 22 of same by knockouts. As a warning to Master Goldsmith, his opponent of Wednesday, Joey has yet to lose to a colored boxer.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 26.—Notre Dame and Southern California, whose annual games have produced some of the brightest chapters in football history, will end their season tomorrow in Notre Dame stadium before a crowd which is expected to exceed 40,000.

Tomorrow's engagement, which marks the twelfth time the schools have met in a dozen years, also stands as the jubilee anniversary of football at Notre Dame. Scores of players whose exploits helped to lift the Irish to the lofty position they now occupy in national esteem will be in the stands.

The 1937 battle between Southern California and Notre Dame possibly lacks the glamor that surrounded their contests a few years back when more than 100,000 packed Soldiers' field and nearly that many crowded into the Los Angeles Coliseum. Those were the days of huge crowds, huge receipts, huge spectacles. The game still might attract almost that many to Chicago's lake front, but Notre Dame now has a stadium of its own and there is no reason for moving the game from the campus, unless you are among the skeptics who contend intercollegiate football is entirely commercial.

How They've Fared.

While some of the luster may be gone from the setting, the competitive fires still burn as high as ever. A victory over Southern California would give Notre Dame a season's record of six triumphs, two defeats, and a tie. Victory is even more important for the Trojans, who have come up to the game with a record of three triumphs, three losses, and two ties. This is the way the teams have fared to date:

Notre Dame, 21; Drake, 0.
Notre Dame, 0; Illinois, 0.
Notre Dame, 7; Carnegie Tech, 9.
Notre Dame, 9; Navy, 7.
Notre Dame, 7; Minnesota, 6.
Notre Dame, 6; Pittsburgh, 21.
Notre Dame, 7; Army, 0.
Notre Dame, 7; Northwestern, 0.

Southern California, 40; Col. of Pacific, 0.
Southern California, 0; Washington, 7.
Southern California, 13; Ohio State, 12.
Southern California, 34; Oregon, 14.
Southern California, 6; California, 20.
Southern California, 0; Washington State, 0.
Southern California, 6; Stanford, 7.
Southern California, 12; Oregon State, 12.

Players of National Rating.

The Notre Dame-Southern California relationship is the longest continuous intersectional series between a Pacific coast team and an opponent from any other section of the country. It is the only series of its age in which at least one athlete generally recognized as All-American has played each year. Tomorrow's contest will be no exception. Ambrose Schindler, Southern California's brilliant back, and Chuck Sweeney, Pat McCarty and Ed Beinor, Notre Dame line men, are nationally acclaimed as leaders in their positions.

Twenty of Notre Dame's thirty-three ranking players will end their collegiate careers against the Trojans. They include from the first team, Sweeney and Skoglund, ends; Ruetz and Kuharich, guards; McCarty, center; Puplis, quarter back, and McCarthy and McCormick, half backs. The second team loses Zwers, Emanuel and Marshall from the line and O'Reilly and Arboit from the back field. The third string losses are Clifford, Murphy, Ely, Race, Foster, and Fogel from the line, and Gleason from the back field.

No Letdown for Irish.

If you can believe what you read in the papers, Southern California will be without the services of two or three regulars, among them the versatile Schindler, but there was no noticeable letdown in Notre Dame's preparations this afternoon, despite reports of the Trojans' anaemic condition. Coach Howard Jones' boys always have looked pretty robust on Notre Dame's field, where they have won two of the last three games. The series stands six victories for the Irish, four for the Trojans, and there was one tie, 13 to 13, at Los Angeles last fall.

Notre Dame has its full man power available. Some of the players, notably McCormick, Beinor and McCarty, are showing the effects of

DOBBIN IS KING; HOLDS COURT AT AMPHITHEATER

Week's Reign Starts with Tonight's Program.

Classes for exhibitors living in Chicago and vicinity will feature the opening program of the International Horse Show tonight at the International amphitheater, 42d and Halsted streets.

Eleven classes are to compete, including a competition for horses most useful in stockyard work. Seventeen cowboys at the yards have nominated horses they use in their daily work. The horses will be shown at the gaits necessary in every day pursuits and will be required to open and close a gate.

Boy Riders Compete.

Leading contestants in the class for harness horses, 14 hands 2 inches or over, will be Happy Way farm, Heyl Pony farm and Nan-Su farm. In the class for saddle horses or ponies to be ridden by boys over 12 years and not over 17, the contestants will include C. B. Goes Jr., Edward Von Herrimann Jr., and James Tatman Jr.

Entries have been filed in the class for stallion, mare or gelding, 15 hands 2 inches or over, to be shown at walk, trot or canter, by H. Leslie Atlass, DeLaine farm, John H. Victor, Fair Oaks farm, Mary McGuire and Mandalene farm.

The class for saddle horse or pony to be ridden by girls over 12 years and not over 17, will bring out a number of daughters of families well-known in horse show circles including four McGuire sisters—Frances, Josephine, Betty, and Julia—Lucille Lorber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Lorber; Marjorie Holton, Nancy Miller, Georgia Kelly, and Phyllis Ruth Thompson.

This Should Be Interesting.

The largest entry of the evening is that for the hunter class with performance only to count. Among those who have listed entries are Mrs. D. A. Crawford, Happy Way farm; Stanley Luke, 124th Field artillery; Mrs. E. F. Potter, Mrs. Ethel Kendall Weil, Col. E. N. Wentworth, R. G. Alt, Col. P. W. Evans, Mrs. Herman A. Kellner, Otto W. Lehmann and the Fort Sheridan Horse Show association.

Polo Teams Meet.

The first contest in the round-robin tournament for the horse show polo championship will be an added feature with the Evanston Polo club opposing the 122d Field Artillery.

Novelty events on tonight's program will be an exhibition in sheep herding by a champion sheep dog, rodeo stunts by the Grahams, a sheep shearing demonstration and an exhibition of draft horses in harness, including six-horse teams.

Few Jockies to Switch Bosses During 1938

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 26. — [Special.]—Few changes will be noted on the American turf next year in so far as contract riders are concerned. The only switches of importance will see Sonny Workman riding for Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and Charley Kurtsinger wearing the colors of Hal Price Headley.

Workman, for years in the employ of th Whitney establishment, signed with Vanderbilt for 1937 after C. V. Whitney sold all his horses this fall and decided to retire temporarily as an owner. Sonny will begin his new job at the Santa Anita meeting, where Vanderbilt will be represented by a powerful string of horses.

Eddie Arcaro has renewed his contract to ride for Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable, while Wayne D. Wright will be seen astride the horses owned by Joseph E. Widener. He har given second call to George D. Widener.

Nick Wall, one of the best riders around, remains with William J. Ziegler, while Jimmy Stout again will work for William Woodward, owner of the Belair stud. Johnny Longden stays with the Wheatley stable, and has given second call on his services to Mrs. Denemark for the Florida season.

Mrs. John D. Hertz, Chicago sportswoman, again signed the clever Lester Balaski, while Harry Richards will continue to handle the horses of Walter M. Jeffords. William du Pont Jr., owner of the Foxcatcher farm, has signed Maurice [Moose] Peters again.

Robertson Stays With Milky Way.

Johnny Gilbert, who rode so well for John Hay Whitney this year, will be back with him in '38. Alfred Robertson has renewed his contract with Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, owner of the Milky Way farm, while the veteran Charley Corbett will remain with Anthony Pelleteri. Vernon Thompson stays with Norman Church's stable; Basil James, leading rider in 1936, is still under contract to the Tranquillity farm, and Irving Anderson is with the Calumet farm of Warren Wright.

EX-BEARS WILL SEE SUCCESSORS AGAINST RAMS

Chicago Seeks to Clinch Division Title.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Former Chicago Bear stars from as far back as the days of the Staleys in the dark ages of professional football will gather at Wrigley field tomorrow to see their successors clinch the Western division championship in the National league.

Cleveland, the freshman member of the league, will provide the opposition tomorrow and the Bears, fired by their 13 to 0 triumph at Detroit Thursday, expect to establish sole ownership of the championship by beating the Rams before a score or more of men who stood out as football's greatest players in the days when Coach George Halas was pioneering the professional game in Chicago.

Halas Is Host At Banquet.

Others are Dr. Clarence Spears, former Dartmouth star and Wisconsin coach; Duke Haney, ex-Indiana end, who played on the north side 10 years ago; Don Murray, former Wisconsin line man; Paddy Driscoll, the first of the nationally known professional back field stars, and now head coach at Marquette; George Trafton, the first of a long line of great Bear centers; Tarzan Taylor, a guard who assists Driscoll at Marquette, and numerous other ex-Bears of more recent vintage, including John Sisk, Carl Brumbaugh and Dick Nesbitt.

A program of ceremonies has been arranged in connection with the homecoming. After the game, the old timers will be guest of Coach Halas at a banquet, which it is hoped will also serve as a victory celebration in honor of Halas' fifth western division champions.

Thursday's triumph at Detroit, which swept the season's series with the Lions, saw the Bears reach new defensive heights. Although they made only four first downs to Detroit's ten and were outgained, there was no time during game when they did not hold the upper hand.

Bears Outstanding on Defense.

Detroit had the ball four times in each quarter. It was forced to surrender it on its own 22, 21, 29 and 16 yard lines in the first period. In the second it was stopped on the Bears' 22, 25 and 26 yard lines and on its own 42 yard line.

In the second half when the Lions made their chief offensive gestures, the Bears threw them back on the 2, 8 and 24 yard lines and twice stopped them on the 18.

It is against this defense that Cleveland must advance tomorrow to prevent the Bears from qualifying for the league championship playoff. The prospect is not encouraging to Coach Hugo Bezdek and his Rams, but they have assured Halas they would be at Wrigley field on time.

ROSE BOWL FOE FOR CALIFORNIA STILL MYSTERY

Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP)—California's board of athletic strategy fiddled today while the country yerned to find out who will be selected to play the Golden Bears in the Rose Bowl New Year's day.

Ken Priestley, California's graduate manager and chairman of the board, got off a train from Berkeley and sidestepped all queries regarding the main issue.

"Whale of a Battle."

Priestley did comment that the Alabama-Vanderbilt clash yesterday "must have been a whale of a battle," but no particular importance could be attached to that observation.

He indicated no decision has been made regarding a foe, and probably no invitation has yet been extended to any school. He said he would announce the selection without delay when negotiations had been completed.

Awaiting Today's Results?

It seemed plausible to believe that the invitation might be divulged late tomorrow after the returns are in on the Pitt-Duke and Fordham-New York university games.

Usually the announcement of the selection is made here as a courtesy to Tournament of Roses people, but Priestley grinned and said, "It might not be ready until next week." He does not plan to come back here until Thursday.

SUGAR BOWL, TOO

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Joe Cousins, president of the Midwinter Sports association, which promotes the Sugar Bowl game New Year's day in New Orleans, said here today nothing definite has been done toward naming competing teams for the post-season engagement.

"The Sugar Bowl committee will meet early next week, when an announcement will be made," Cousins explained.

PASTOR'S TITLE DREAM FADES; LOSES TO MANN

New York, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Bob Pastor's championship aspirations were shattered tonight when Nathan Mann, New Haven heavyweight, gave him a beating before 6,600 at Madison Square Garden. Mann weighed 185¾ pounds, Pastor 183.

The ten round decision was unanimous. There was slight doubt of the result after the middle of the first round, when Mann dropped Pastor to one knee with a chopping right.

The crowd, remembering the fight in which Pastor dodged Champion Joe Louis for ten rounds last winter, were pleased by the defeat of the former New York university athlete.

SNYDER TO DRIVE A NEW CAR AT ARMORY RACES

Jimmy Snyder, a leading driver who has been enjoying little success of late, will report in a new Duesenberg car for the auto races tomorrow night at 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

Snyder will set out to overtake Marshall Lewis of Los Angeles, current point standing leader, and Johnny Ritter of Detroit, second place holder, if his car performs up to expectations. Other stars listed in the entries are Ted Duncan, Ray Richards, Myron Fohr, Cowboy O'Rourke, Ted Tetterton, Emil Andres, Ralph McDaniels, and Tony Willman.

Ten events have been scheduled for cars in the Class A and Class B groups. The program is the same that brought spirited competition last week, when Ritter set three track records.

SOUTHEAST WINS AGAIN IN FIELD HOCKY MEET, 8-0

The defending champions, the Southeast team, moved nearer to another national women's field hockey title yesterday by defeating the Great Lakes firsts, 8 to 0, in the second round of play at the New Trier High school field in Winnetka. The tournament continues through tomorrow.

In other games, the Midwest seconds defeated the Northeast seconds, 2 to 0; the Northeast firsts defeated the Southeast seconds, 5 to 0, and the Midwest firsts defeated the Great Lakes seconds, 9 to 0.

CANADIAN TEAM ARRIVES TODAY FOR RUGBY GAME

The All-Star Canadians' Rugby team will arrive this morning for their game with the Chicago Rugby club team tomorrow on the New Trier High school field in Winnetka.

The game was scheduled as the result of a challenge from the Canadians which followed a 10 to 0 defeat of the University of Toronto recently by the Chicago team. After the game the Canadians gathered the finest players in Quebec and Ontario to avenge the defeat.

2 JOCKIES THROWN AT FAIR GROUNDS; ONE BADLY HURT

New Orleans, La., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Jockies George Rose and Bobby McCarty were thrown from their mounts in the fifth race at the fair grounds today in a pileup at the first turn. McCarty, 17, suffered a possible leg fracture and was taken to Charity hospital for an examination. Rose escaped with a shaking up.

The spill killed the chances of Garden Message, the favorite, and Vitamin B, second choice. Both had to be taken up and lost much ground. Charming Sir with an apprentice up, sailed under the wire first to pay $24.20 for $2.

PIRATE LINEMAN GETS DIVORCE ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—John Perko, member of the Pittsburgh Pirates football team, obtained a divorce today from his wife, Gloria. Perko, a husky lineman, charged cruelty. They were married in Wellsburg, W. Va., two years ago.

"She refuses to live with me," Perko told Judge Thomas M. Marshall. "She slapped my face and she thought I was an ignorant football player and would never amount to anything."

102,000 Will Watch Army Battle Navy

Capt. Gar's a Trifle Vague.

For one who is coaching the public choice, Capt. Gar Davidson who will send his fifth squad against Navy, and who will be seeking the rubber victory in this series, today seemed a bit vague and apprehensive. He hoped that Army would win, and thus justify his retention as coach for one year beyond the customarily alloted four year period. He admitted Army is not at peak condition and he was a bit frightened at Navy power, discounting Navy's surprise defeat by Princeton, a game he scouted.

While Lieut. Hank Hardwick, Navy coach, was not present to decry his eleven's chances, in view of the under dog position assigned Annapolis, it may be assumed he would scoff at Davidson's pessimism. These rival coaches played in the memorable 21 to 21 tie between the academies in Chicago in 1926, one of the three ties in the history of the series which started fourty-seven years ago.

Army now has twenty victories to Navy's fourteen. Last year Navy won, 7 to 0.

Navy's loss of its best tackle, Al Bergner, lends support to the belief that Army will win, for Bergner not only was outstanding on defense, but he had been expected to drop back from the line to handle the kicking assignment. Bergner's loss by injury thus adds this assignment to the passing and running duties of Lem Cooke, Navy back, who did not participate in the Princeton game.

These Are Probable Starters.

Woody Wilson and Huey Long are expected to pair at half backs for Army. Jack Ryan, quarter back, and Jim Schwenk, full back, complete the Army quartet of backs.

Not the least prominent in the ceremonies preceding the game, when the academy men march on the field, will be the Navy goat, Bill VIII., and the Army mascot, a minature mule, recently presented to the West Point team by a gentleman of Ecuador whose two sons now are at the academy. The mule has been named Poncho, and his adoption ends the old Army custom of impressing into service for a day the nearest available army mule.

Illinois' representation in the starting lineups tomorrow will be evenly divided between the two teams. The Middies will have Harry A. Stella of Kankakee at right tackle and Charles J. Long of Rock Island at right half back, while the Army will start Irwin F. Fike of Normal at left end and Arthur Franks Jr. of Harrisburg at quarter back.

The other eighteen starters come from the following towns:

Nertz Is Right.

With so much unemployment talk coming up again I am wondering just where DO all those nice shiny automobiles come from? It's hard enough to find parking space now. What would it be like if things were booming? From the newsreel shots of the football stadia overflowing with fans we at least know where the unemployed hordes spend their Saturdays in such depressing times. But do they go in on passes? And have you tried to get into a movie theater on Saturday or Sunday night? My, my, aren't things awful? It's just too, too depressing. Nertz! —Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

It seems there are a lot of Janes around. There's the one sought by the Substitute and you couldn't expect me to omit my own. The Substitute should have less reason to kick than I have. Making touchdowns should draw 'em faster than writing contributions for the Wake. My Jane doesn't care for footballers, though. Her taste runs to Hemingway, poetry and wine. When I become a millionaire I bet
Jane will be sorry that she turned me down,
For when the sap she married falls in debt
And can't get credit in his own home town
She'll see me in my Rolls and wonder why
She didn't have the brains to stick with me,

But I'll be colder than dry ice and close
My ears to every plaintive hubbubboo,
I'll make the fickle girl pay through the nose
For the two-timing that she used to do.

For if I made that hypocrite my wife
I'd be an eight-ball trailer all my life.

Among the celebrities who have made reservations are Bob Zuppke of Illinois, Bo McMillin of Indiana, Tug Wilson and Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, Gus Dorais of Detroit, Frank Thomas of Alabama, Francis Schmidt of Ohio State, Pop Warner of Temple, Mal Elward of Purdue, Dr. C. W. Spears of Toledo, Daniel J. Doherty of Woburn, Mass., national commander of the American Legion, and Hunt Stromberg, Hollywood, director and producer.

SAY SCHINDLER'S OUT

Ambrose Schindler, Southern California quarter back, will be unable to play against Notre Dame, Dr. Packard Thurber, Trojan team physician, said yesterday following the team's arrival in Chicago.

A knee injury suffered in the Southern California-Oregon State game two weeks ago has not yielded to treatment, and Dr. Thurber advised that Schindler be kept out of action.

"Schindler probably wouldn't last more than a minute or two even if we did let him start," Dr. Thurber said.

Coach Howard Jones indicated Sophomore Grenville Lansdell would start at quarter back. He also shifted Oliver Day, reserve full back, to the quarter back list to fill another vacancy caused by the illness of Nick Pappas. The latter contracted influenza en route to Chicago and will not be in uniform.

The Trojans went out to the University of Chicago fieldhouse yesterday afternoon for a brief limbering session. They will leave for Notre Dame this morning.

Notre Dame and So. California Series Extended

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 26.—[Special]—The Notre Dame-Southern California football series has been extended through 1941. This was announced today by Director of Athletics Elmer F. Layden. Notre Dame will play at Los Angeles Dec. 7, 1940, and the Trojans will play here Nov. 22, 1941. Dates for 1938 and 1939 were previously announced.

Chicago Blackhawks at New York Americans.

New York Rangers at Montreal Canadiens.
Montreal Maroons at Toronto Maple Leafs.

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks, fifteen strong, arrived here this afternoon led by Manager Bill Stewart. They are scheduled to clash with the Americans for the first time this season in New York tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden.

Red Dutton's men won, 3 to 0, when the teams first met this season in Chicago. In the 1936-'37 schedule the Blackhawks led the Americans in the season's play, winning three and tying two games of the six played. Strangely enough, the teams participated in two of the highest scoring games of the season, the Americans beating the Hawks, 9 to 4, and the Hawks defeating the star spangled crew later, 9 to 0. Both games were played in New York.

New York will get its first glimpse of Left Winger Vic Heyliger, former University of Michigan captain, who turned pro in the Detroit-Hawks game Thursday.

Both teams need a victory badly. For the Americans there is the possibility of dropping to last place should the Montreal Maroons and the Canadiens vanquish the Maple Leafs and the New York Rangers, respectively, tomorrow. The Hawks, only a point ahead of the Detroit Red Wings, would like to pull a full game ahead of the champions, who are in last place and are not booked for a game Saturday.

DEXTER FELLOWS OF CIRCUS PRESS FAME IS DEAD

Complications Follow Typhoid Attack.

Hattiesburg, Miss., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Dexter W. Fellows, the man who spent most of his life telling the world of the multiple attractions under the big top, died here tonight.

Dexter W. Fellows.

Fellows, who began visiting newspaper offices at the age of 21 with circus copy, was stricken with typhoid fever on Oct. 7 while preparing for a performance of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus here. He was believed on the road to recovery when he suffered a setback a week ago. Physicians said a kidney ailment contributed to his death. He was 66 years old.

At his bedside was his wife, the former Signe Eugene Von Breitholtz, whom he married in 1913.

The Boston born press agent had written more circus stories and probably knew more figures connected with the show business than any of his contemporaries.

His first press agent job was with Prawnee Bill's wild west show, followed by nine years spent building up Col. William F. Cody as "Buffalo Bill."

Fellows then abandoned the wild west shows to cast his lot with Ringling Brothers and later with Barnum and Bailey, with whom he remained for a quarter of a century before rejoining Ringling Brothers after they had consolidated most of the big time circuses.

POLITICAL FOES UNITE AT RITES FOR MacDONALD

Honor British Leader in Westminster.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Funeral services were held today in the Warriors' chapel of Westminster abbey for James Ramsay MacDonald, the Scottish farmer lad who became prime minister as head of the Labor party he built.

Even Labor leaders, who maintained that MacDonald was a "traitor" to their party because he joined Conservatives in forming a national government in 1931, honored him as a national figure by serving as pallbearers.

Political Foes Unite.

Maj. Clement Atlee, leader of the Labor opposition, and Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the Trades Union congress, took their places as pallbearers with Conservative Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Stanley Baldwin, McDonald's closest associate in the coalition government and his successor as prime minister. The duke of Gloucester represented his brother, King George VI. of Great Britain.

The warriors' chapel was stilled for a moment at noon and then the chanting choir walked slowly through the nave, followed by the coffin, draped in a Union Jack. The bier stood at the foot of chancel steps, on which lay twelve wreaths, chosen from many.

Ashes Sent to Scotland.

One was from the cabinet. Another was from the crew of the cruiser Apollo, which brought MacDonald's body home from Bermuda.

After the pomp of Westminister and cremation, only his sons and daughters accompanied MacDonald's ashes by train to Scotland for burial tomorrow at lonely Lossiemouth, where he was born the son of a farm servant.

MRS. O'CONNELL, MOTHER OF HEAD OF DE PAULU., DIES

PULLMAN ASKS FARE INCREASE OF 10 PER CENT

Plea Based on Rise in Taxes and Costs.

An increase of 10 per cent in all Pullman fares has been asked by the Pullman company in a petition filed with the interstate commerce commission, George A. Kelly, vice president of the company, announced yesterday. The proposed increase would apply to all sleeping and parlor car fares and charges.

George A. Kelly.

In asking the higher rates the company contended an increase is necessary if the company is to maintain a fair rate of return on its property investment, and cites as the basis of this necessity "a pronounced uptrend" in taxes and operating costs "beyond its control."

No Trafic Loss Expected.

The petition asserts that the effect of the proposed boost in rates is not expected to affect trafic adversely, declaring that more than three-fourths of all Pullman travel is in accommodations "requiring a present rate of $4 or less." More than two-thirds of such travel, the petition adds, requires a present rate of $2.50 or less. An increase of 10 per cent "is not of such moment as to discourage occupancy of Pullman accommodations," the company said.

Among the costs "beyond its control" the company's petition cited:

1. Increased wage payments to employés. This increase was estimated at $3,247,991 for 1937, with the pay roll estimated at $34,203,624 this year.

Lists Increased Taxes.

2. Increased taxes under the social security and state unemployment compensation laws and the carries' taxing act.

3. Increased costs of materials and supplies.

4. A total increase in 1937 operating expenses and taxes for the foregoing three requirements of $5,856,923 over what these items required in 1936.

The petition asserted that the company's income, total revenues from the sale of Pullman accommodations and charter of cars for 1937, as nearly as can be estimated, will be $59,009,424. A 10 per cent increase on the basis of this would produce an estimated $5,900,942, or approximately the amount of the increased costs set forth. This was assuming that the volume of trafic would remain the same.

Part Goes to Railroads.

However, not all of this proposed increase would go to the Pullman company because, under its contracts, certain percentages of average gross earnings per car in excess of stated amounts must be paid to the railroads to encourage use and care of equipment. It was estimated that when these payments are deducted the proposed increase would leave the Pullman company $4,307,688 as the actual increase it would receive from the rate change.

The petition said that, with the increased revenue, the company probably would realize 2.132 per cent on investment and 3.567 per cent on value, on the basis of Dec. 31, 1936, property investment.

Since the establishment of sleeping car service in 1867 the Pullman company has had only one general increase in rates. That was the 20 per cent boost authorized in 1920 and made effective May 1 of that year. In 1911 rates on upper berths were cut 20 per cent and reductions were made in a large number of rates for lower berths, the petition said.

Need Same as Roads'.

Kelly said that the increase was asked "on the basis of the same sort of revenue need put forward by the railroads in support of increases asked in their passenger and freight charges."

Kelly recalled that in June, 1936, the so-called Pullman surcharge was eliminated in the last of the areas affected by it, but he said this surcharge was one involving revenues which went to the railroads themselves and not to the Pullman company.

The company will seek authority to apply the proposed increase to intrastate as well as interstate travel, the petition said.

PRICES OF EGG FUTURES RISE; BUYING ACTIVE

Egg futures advanced ¾ to ¾ cent a dozen at the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday in aggressive buying attributed to fairly large withdrawals from storage, smaller arrivals here, and forecasts for cold weather and snow in some producing areas. Short covering also contributed to the advance.

November contracts closed ¾ cent higher at 18¾ cents a dozen; December contracts ¾ cent higher, at 18¼ cents, and January contracts ¾ cent higher at 18 cents. In the cash egg market, graded fresh declined one cent, but poorer grades were unchanged.

In the butter market November contracts closed ¾ cent a pound higher, at 34 cents; December contracts ½ cent higher, at 33¾ cents, and January contracts ¼ cent higher, at 33½ cents.

More Railways Earning Less than Year Ago

Another group of important railroads yesterday reported smaller October net operating incomes than in the corresponding month a year ago. A number of roads also had recessions in October gross revenues.

Net railway operating income of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe receded to $1,248,651 from $2,460,907 in the same 1936 month, and $2,341,269 in October, 1935. October gross revenues were $15,620,661, against $15,271,319 in the same month last year, and $13,758,018 in October, 1935. Operating revenues for the ten months ended Oct. 31 were $15,895,902, against $13,350,565 in the corresponding 1936 period.

Baltimore-Ohio Earns Less.

The Baltimore and Ohio reported a decline in October net railway operating income to $2,456,860 from $3,456,674 in the same month last year. October gross revenues receded to $14,518,066 from $15,893,214. In the ten months ended Oct. 31, net railway operating income was $23,308,322, against $24,603,252 in the corresponding 1936 period.

In reporting its October gross revenues, the Baltimore and Ohio disclosed that freight revenues had fallen to $12,552,603 from $14,002,082 in the same 1936 month, but passenger revenues had increased to $1,062,321 from $961,038.

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific had October net operating income of $984,518, against $1,849,172 in the same 1936 month. Gross revenues declined to $9,996,171 from $10,458,585. In the ten months ended Oct. 31, gross revenues were $90,698,530, against $90,440,357 in the corresponding 1936 period, and net operating income totaled $7,806,215, against $6,803,182.

Rock Island Shows Increase.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad reported an increase in October net operating income to $531,693 from $477,395 in the same 1936 month. October revenues increased to $7,173,202 from $6,973,542. In ten months ended Oct. 31 gross revenues totaled $68,848,981, compared with $64,690,739 in the corresponding 1936 period. Net operating income for the ten months was $3,762,584, compared with an operating deficit of $386,131 in the same period a year ago.

The Rock Island report showed October transportation expenses were 11 per cent higher than in the same 1936 month due to increased wages and higher prices of supplies. Cost of operating the road also was increased by added taxes for retirement and social security. These increased costs in October were partially offset, it was said, by economies.

FORMER LABOR AID ELECTED TO RCA UNIT BOARD

New York, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The election of Edward F. McGrady, former assistant secretary of labor, as a director of the RCA Manufacturing company, Camden, N. J., was announced today by David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America.

McGrady, who gained prominence as a government "trouble shooter" in labor disputes, resigned from his federal post last September to become director of labor relations for RCA.

Within a month he negotiated a contract with the United Electrical and Radio Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate, covering the 10,000 employés at the Camden plant.

STOCKS CLIMB; CHANGE IN U. S. POLICIES SEEN

News from Capital Cheers Traders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 26.—Stock market prices soared 1 to 5 points today, with fresh buying enabling practically all sections of the list to participate in the upturn. Starting higher following the holiday, the list continued on the upgrade during the forenoon in the face of intermittent profit taking. However, fresh demand appeared in the afternoon and prices moved to their best quotations of the day.

Volume for the day was 1,187,520 shares, compared with 987,240 shares Wednesday. The scope of the upturn was illustrated by the Dow-Jones averages, which showed a 4.62 point rise for 30 representative industrials, a 1.33 point increase in 20 rails, and a 1.13 point increase for 20 utility shares.

Wall Street More Cheerful.

A distinct improvement in sentiment was reported in Wall street today, despite the fact that concrete developments in the business situation were far from favorable. Improvement in sentiment was traced to Washington, where President Roosevelt was reported to have indicated a willingness to go along with congressional efforts to stimulate industry by advocating tax revision.

Reports of other governmental efforts to spur industry, including a large scale housing program and a cut in federal road spending, also received pleasant receptions.

Pivotal Issues Buoyant.

Pivotal shares led the upturn in the industrial sector. U. S. Steel common advanced 2⅞; Bethlehem, 3½; Chrysler, 2⅞; General Motors, 2¼; American Smelting, 3⅝; General Electric, 2⅝, and Westinghouse, 4⅝ points.

Building shares found steady demand, reflecting the better feeling engendered by talks of reviving the industry. Johns Manville, up 5, and U. S. Gypsum, up 6⅞, were in the forefront.

Shares of electric companies were bright spots throughout the session. Indications that the dispute between public utility corporations and the President has been settled appeared to be taken at their face value.

Consolidated Edison and North American were outstanding in that section, rising 2⅝ and 1⅝ points, respectively. Substantial increases were made by Electric Power and Light, American Water Works, Standard Gas and Electric, and Commonwealth and Southern. Preferred stocks rose proportionately.

Rail Issues Buoyant.

Giving their best performances in some time, carrier shares turned buoyant with the remainder of the list. First Atchison, then New York Central led the improvement with gains of 2⅝ and 1⅝ points, respectively. Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, and Pennsylvania also made good gains.

Copper shares were strong, as were farm equipment stocks. Advances in these groups ranged between 1 to almost 4 points. Douglas and Boeing each appreciated more than one point in the aviations. American Telephone, up 2¼ points, featured the communication group.

LEWIS ASSAILS PROPOSED PACT WITH BRITAIN

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—The forthcoming negotiations with Great Britain to formulate a reciprocal trade agreement with this country were attacked on the senate floor today by Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois as unjustified and dangerous.

He held this view, he said, because Great Britain is in default in its payments on the war debts owed to this country and because it discriminates against the United States in its trade with colonies and dominions.

Joining France and other war debt defaulters in his blanket indictment, Lewis warned that "in the orient and in Europe changes are taking place within nations which may prompt them to make their relations with the United States react to their benefit."

CHARGES TVA OFFICIAL ADVISED 'TAXING HELL' OUT OF POWER FIRM

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 26.—(AP)—W. E. Wilkerson, former Chattanooga city commissioner, told a three judge federal court today that David E. Lilienthal, Tennessee Valley authority director, advised Chattanooga city officials seeking a TVA contract in 1934 to survive private utility competition by "taxing hell out of them—or words to that effect."

Wilkerson, a witness for the 18 power companies challenging constitutionality of the TVA power program, explained that "a group of Chattanooga city officials were conferring with Lilienthal in Knoxville about the feasibility of putting in a municipal distribution system here."

"Lilienthal said it would be necessary for us to have 50 to 75 per cent of the Chattanooga business in competition with the Tennessee Electric Power company and said it would take from four to five years to get that business," Wilkerson testified.

"I asked how we would survive that period and he said, 'Tax hell out of them,' or words to that effect. I asked if we could do that and he said the Supreme court had recently held we could."

Crown Cork's Profit Lower in Nine Months

The Crown Cork and Seal company yesterday reported net income of $1,922,121 for the first 9 months of 1937, equal to $2.98 a share. Its net income was $2,016,586 in the corresponding 1936 period, equal to $4.54 each on the smaller number of shares then outstanding.

The company reported that its new can making subsidiary lost $741,983 in the 9 months, paring down the parent company's profit. The subsidiary began production of cans Jan. 1 this year. Crown Cork branched into the can field after introduction of beer cans began to cut into its business.

Cunningham Drug Gains.

Cunningham Drug Stores, Inc., reported net income of $606,616, equal to $3.05 a share on the common stock after preferred dividends. Net income was $568,572, or $2.50 a common share, in the preceding year.

Stockholders will vote Dec. 6 at the annual meeting on a proposal to increase the authorized common stock to 400,000 shares from the present 200,000 shares. The purpose of the increase was not disclosed.

Net income of $417,721 for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31 was reported by Sherwin Williams company of Canada. Net income was $262,213 in the preceding year.

U. S. SHIPS MORE GOLD FOR FRANCE IN LAST WEEK

Shipment of an additional $5,000,000 in gold to France was disclosed yesterday by the treasury department. The metal was shipped last Tuesday but did not become publicly known until treasury figures issued yesterday showed a decline in the inactive gold fund.

Tuesday's shipment brought total gold exports since Nov. 10 to slightly more than $30,000,000, of which France has received $25,000,000 and England $5,000,000. Prior to Nov. 10 the United States had shipped no gold abroad for nearly eighteen months.

Figures issued yesterday by the department of commerce showed that the United States imported $11,109,-376 in gold in the week ended Nov. 19, mostly from Japan and Colombia.

The value of the dollar rose moderately in relation to foreign currencies yesterday. The British pound declined ⅝ of a cent to $4.99½. The French franc closed 0.00375 lower at 3.395 cents.

Judge Sets Dec. 24 Limit for Utilities Power Plan

Federal Judge William H. Holly yesterday set Dec. 24 as the time limit for filing a new plan of reorganization for Utilities Power and Light corporation. He also set Dec. 17 as the date for a postponed meeting of the corporation's stockholders at Richmond, Va. A temporary order which restrained soliciting of proxies from stockholders of the corporation and the Public Service Securities corporation without submission to the court for approval was made permanent.

RESERVE FEEDS MORE CASH INTO BANK SYSTEM

Pursuing its policy of trying to encourage business expansion by piling up bank reserves, the federal reserve board last week added 10 million dollars more to the government security holdings of the central reserve banks. It was the third consecutive week in which the reserve banks, at the board's direction, made extensive purchases of government securities in the open market. During the period the purchases totaled approximately 38 million dollars.

Each purchase of government securities by the reserve banks pours more money into the member banks which, theoretically, should encourage more bank lending for commercial purposes.

Surplus Reserves Gain.

The surplus reserves of the member banks increased 40 millions in the week ended Wednesday, partly as a result of the board's credit manipulation and partly because of a decline in deposits during the week.

The increase in the bank reserves, however, failed to bring an expansion in bank loans in New York and Chicago. The bank statements of these two cities were released along with the reserve system statement. Data on other cities is not issued until Monday. Chicago banks reported that loans to commercial borrowers on Wednesday were 7 millions lower than a week earlier and all types of bank credit declined 14 millions. New York banks showed a decline of 29 millions in commercial loans and 34 millions in all loans and investments.

Brokers' Loans Larger.

Brokers' loans of the New York banks increased for the first time in several weeks, gaining 17 millions compared with a week earlier. The total loans of New York banks to brokers stand at 718 millions compared with a little more than a billion dollars before the stock market began to decline in September.

The reserve system statement showed a decrease of 15 millions last week in monetary gold stocks. Currency in circulation gained 20 million dollars, reflecting increased holiday season usage.

FREIGHT TRAFIC SLUMPS AGAIN; BELOW '35 LEVEL

Railroad freight trafic declined more than the usual seasonal amount in the week ended Nov. 20, totaling only 647,251 cars, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday. This was a decrease of 42,363 cars, or 6.1 per cent, from the total of the preceding week, and was 142,521 cars, or 18 per cent, below the corresponding week of 1936. Loadings for the week were 0.1 per cent below the comparable figure in 1935 and 17 per cent below the same week in 1930.

All classifications of commodities except grain showed smaller totals than in both the preceding week and the like 1936 week.

Last week was the first time this year that loadings were below the corresponding week of 1935. During the last month freight trafic has been consistently below that of comparable weeks in 1936, however.

U. S. SPENDING ABOVE 3 BILLION IN FIVE MONTHS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Total expenditures of the federal government in the current fiscal year passed the 3 billion dollar mark on Nov. 23, when they reached $3,005,890,211, the treasury disclosed today. Expenditures are about $182,000,000 above the total on the corresponding date last year. The fiscal year began July 1.

Due to an increase in revenues from $1,606,251,600 last year to $2,256,206,364 in this fiscal year, the deficit has amounted to only $747,683,846 this fiscal year, against $1,212,520,119 last year, despite the larger expenditures.

Commodities Rise; Hope U.S. May Relent

Hides, cocoa, wool tops, cottonseed oil, and copper futures rallied briskly yesterday on short covering and a moderate amount of new buying attributed to strength in security markets and hopes of favorable political developments in Washington.

Most other commodity futures also moved moderately higher, and cash prices generally improvad a shade, although both zinc and hides for immediate delivery were marked down. The Dow-Jones commodity futures index finished 0.57 higher at 52.60 and the Associated Press index of 35 cash staples gained 0.02 to 76.14.

Hide futures finished 0.63 to 0.70 cent a pound higher after 6,640,000 pounds, heavier than usual volume, had changed hands.

Shoe Company Buys Hides.

In the Chicago cash hide market, the Endicott Johnson corporation, shoe manufacturer, purchased 20,000 branded cow hides at 9 cents a pound, or 2½ cents below the preceding transaction in that grade Nov. 13.

Sale of more than 60,000 calfskins also was reported in the Chicago market. Transactions were made on the basis of 14 cents a pound for heavy skins and 12 cents for light skins, unchanged from sales earlier this week but well below prices which have prevailed until recently.

The price of zinc for immediate delivery was cut ¼ cent by a leading smelter to 5.25 cents a pound, East St. Louis delivery. This followed a cut of ¼ cent a pound on Monday. Zinc futures in New York finished unchanged to 0.05 cent a pound higher.

Wool Top Futures Rise.

Wool top futures climbed 2.9 to 3.2 cents a pound and wool tops for immediate delivery advanced 2 cents to 82 cents a pound. Rubber futures closed 0.02 to 0.07 cent a pound higher. Crude rubber for immediate delivery, however, slipped 0.03 cent to 14.63 cents a pound.

Silk futures rallied to close ½ cent to 2½ cents a pound higher. In the cash silk market, crack double extra grade silk fell 3 cents to $1.56½ a pound.

Cocoa futures advanced 0.23 to 0.26 cent a pound on sales of 9,621 tons. Cottonseed oil, also actively traded, climbed 0.13 to 0.15 cent a pound.

AUTO OUTPUT DIPS IN WEEK; FORD HAS GAIN

With most of the Detroit automobile factories operating only three days, this week's production in the United States and Canada fell sharply to 58,955 units, Ward's Automotive Reports said yesterday. Last week's production was 85,757. A year ago output was 102,399 units.

Ward's said that many of the Detroit plants will run on a four day basis next week instead of five. It was said that the four day schedule, coupled with the increase in the Ford output, will keep the December weekly totals above this week's level.

The output of General Motors this week dropped to 24,075 units from 41,022 last week; Ford moved up to 7,960 from 3,525, and Chrysler fell to 16,020 from 26,700, Ward's said.

In Washington, D. C., the department of commerce announced that factory sales of automobiles manufactured in the United States in October totaled 329,876 vehicles against 171,203 in September and 224,688 in October, last year. Of October's sales, 31,214 were trucks.

GEN. ELECTRIC TO PAY RECORD WORKER BONUS

Schenectady, N. Y., Nov. 26.—(AP)—General Electric company workers of five or more years service will receive this year more than double the amount paid to them in 1936 under the company's profit-sharing plan and 60 per cent more than the $3,600,000 distributed in 1929, the previous high mark.

President Gerard Swope said the $3,700,000 recently announced as available for distribution on Dec. 20 would bring the total bonus payments for the year to $5,800,000. The latest payment is 7.2 per cent of workers' earnings.

Aluminum Co. Votes Dividend to Cut Arrears

Directors of the Aluminum Company of America yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the preferred stock and an additional dividend of $2.25 to apply on arrearages on the issue. Accumulations after these payments will amount to $3.75 per share. Similar dividends were paid Oct. 1.

The Jewel Tea company voted a final dividend of 75 cents on the common stock, bringing the total for this year to $4.75 a share. The current dividend is payable Dec. 20, along with the quarterly dividend of $1 declared earlier this month to stockholders of record Dec. 9.

Montgomery Ward & Co. declared a dividend of 50 cents on its common stock, the same as was paid in previous quarters, and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the class A stock.

Package Concern Pays Extra.

An extra dividend of 6¼ cents was ordered by directors of Pictorial Paper Package corporation, together with the regular quarterly disbursement of 8¾ cents on the common stock. This makes a total of 45 cents on the common in 1937.

Directors of the Long Island Lighting company and of Queens Borough Gas and Electric company each declared dividends yesterday of only half of the regular quarterly amounts on their preferred shares. The Kings County Lighting company declared the usual quarterly dividends.

This is the first time either of the companies has failed to pay its full dividends when due. Sharply higher taxes, labor, and other operating costs were given as the reasons for the reduction. The three companies are affiliated.

Northwest Engineering Special.

Northwest Engineering company declared a special dividend of 75 cents on its capital stock, supplementing its regular quarterly payments which totaled $1 a share this year.

An extra dividend of 25 cents and the usual quarterly payment of the same amount were authorized on the common stock by Lion Oil Refining company. A similar extra was paid in July.

Lima Locomotive Works, Inc., voted a dividend of $1.50. The last previous payment was $1 on Aug. 20, marking resumption of dividends.

An extra of 25 cents and the usual quarterly disbursement of 20 cents were announced by Art Metal Works, Inc.

The Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation declared a dividend of $1 on the common stock, making a total of $2.50 for this year compared with $2 in 1936.

An initial dividend of $1 was ordered on the common stock of Helena Rubinstein, Inc.

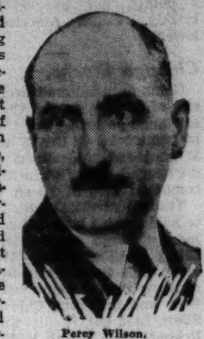
Pullman Gets Large Order for Rail Passenger Cars

Orders for more than 100 railroad passenger cars have been placed with the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, it was announced yesterday. The cars will be of all-steel welded construction. The orders were placed by the New York Central and the Pennsylvania railroads.

CHICAGO FAST BECOMING U. S. MARKET HEART

Location Big Factor, Says Percy Wilson.

Chicago, due to its geographical advantage and the westward growth of population and purchasing power, is rapidly becoming the market heart of American commerce, Percy Wilson, treasurer of Marshall Field & Co., said yesterday at the dedication of the new Merchants and Manufacturers' club in the Merchandise mart.



Percy Wilson.

With no major markets for finished goods across the Pacific and lessened international markets east of the Atlantic, he said, both New York and the west coast are becoming increasingly dependent upon the Chicago market.

Takes Lead from Old World.

"Since the world war this country has assumed an initiative in many things for which it formerely relied upon the leadership of the old world," Wilson said. "Less than a generation ago, Paris was considered the only acceptable source of feminine apparel styling. Since the war it has been replaced by New York—and now Hollywood is speedily gaining in popular style prestige and west coast designers offer a definite threat to New York's primacy.

"Both New York and San Francisco are obvious misalignments from the country-wide distributing and consumption standpoint. Long established, but out of distance and isolated market places are losing out all along the line. The startling change in consumer and retail buying habits, brought about by such factors as radio, the automobile, and the moving picture, has made it imperative that manufacturers get closer to the markets they sell.

Mills Move Near Supplies.

"In the battle of logic versus custom, we see logic winning eventually. People of the east have seen cotton mills move closer to their source of raw materials, and here in the middle west we are seeing the steel industry concentrating on our own south side, closer to the source of supply and central market.

"It is the breaking up of old customs and outworn and illogical prejudice, in the face of our westward growth of population and purchasing power and geographical advantages, which is making Chicago the great market center that is now being fed from both coasts.

"Chicago possesses terminals of 40 per cent of the railway trackage in the United States, and 45 per cent of the truck and bus lines traveling the nation's highways, 19 per cent of the wholesale food and drug markets, 25 per cent of the country's textile markets, and 70 per cent of the furniture and house furnishings."

Club to Open Monday.

The club, constructed at a cost of $125,000, will open Monday on the second floor of the Merchandise Mart. Modern decorative treatment has been given the lounge, dining room and garden café and bar. There are eight private dining rooms arranged with moveable partitions to accommodate large parties or small meetings and luncheons. Shaw, Naess & Murphy were architects.

Hanford Airlines Asks Boost in Mail Service Pay

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Hanford Airlines, Inc., has petitioned the interstate commerce commission for an increase in air mail compensation on its route from St. Paul to Kansas City. At present the airline is receiving 18 9-10 cents per airplane mile on this route.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 26.—Although trading volume continued small, the bond market developed strength today, led by the rails and utilities. The fact that the interstate commerce commission will begin on Monday hearings on the railroads' application for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates was said to have encouraged the carrier division.

Rail issues which displayed a better tone were the Baltimore and Ohio, Erie, New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific, and Lehigh Valley.

Dealings in United States treasury issues again were small, but prices were higher on expectations that the reserve board statement would show another gain in the system's holdings of government issues.

Some of the utilities gained up to 3 points on good demand. Industrials showed some irregularity, but gains exceeded declines.

Foreign bonds also were uneven. Japanese issues showed losses of 1 to 2 points, but French loans rose briskly. South Americans tended lower.

Chicago Stocks.

Gains outnumbered declines at the end of trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday for the first time in two weeks. Of the 76 issues traded, 37 advanced, 12 declined, and 27 held unchanged. Sales were 33,000 shares, compared with 31,000 on Wednesday.

Trading favorites which gained up to half a point included Armour common, Chicago corporation common, Cities Service, Middle West capital stock, and Berghoff Brewing. Gains of more than a point were made by Bliss and Laughlin, Chicago Flexible Shaft, Lion Oil, Noblitt Sparks, Sears Roebuck, and Zenith Radio.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks were mostly firm yesterday. First National and Continental Illinois shares advanced $2. Chicago Title and Trust $3, and American National and Harris Trust $5. Northern Trust stock was $3 lower.

WORK AND WAGES LOWER IN STATE DURING OCTOBER

Trend of Industry Also Sags in Midwest.

Employment in Illinois during October decreased 1.8 per cent and total wages declined seven-tenths of 1 per cent as compared with the preceding month. This was disclosed yesterday by the Illinois department of labor. At the same time the current business review by the Chicago Federal Reserve bank revealed a downward trend in industry but a larger volume of merchandising trade for the month in the entire reserve district.

The October decline in Illinois employment from the September level was larger than seasonal, but the employment index still represented an increase of 7.9 per cent over October, 1936. Likewise the total wages paid, although representing a contra-seasonal decline from September, was 17.1 per cent larger than for October, 1936.

Industries Less Active.

The federal reserve review indicated that the trend of industry in the district was downward with few exceptions in October and into November.

In the merchandising field, most branches showed a larger volume of trade in October than for the same period last year, but the margins of gain were pared, and in most groups larger than seasonal declines or less than usual gains were shown in the monthly comparison.

Both manufacturers and merchandisers demonstrated a definite tendency to reduce their inventories.

Despite the general downward trend of industry, total industrial employment and pay rolls in the district in mid-October were higher than a month earlier, but this was attributable mostly to an increase in automobile production.

Building Shows Increase.

Building contracts in October increased fractionally over awards for September, and also were slightly above the figures for October last year.

Department store sales gained in October as compared with September and with October, 1936, but due to one less trading day in the current period, the daily average sales average showed a greater percentage of gain than did the month's total sale. The gain in October over September was 1 per cent. Chicago department stores boosted sales 6½ per cent above the figure for September, but a sharp drop in Detroit reduced the district average. Chicago stores sold less in October than they did a year ago.

Wholesale trade conditions in the district showed a less favorable trend than in October, the report said.

MOST LIVE STOCK AND MEATS RISE ON LOW SUPPLY

The markets for most live stock and meats, with the exception of beef and live cattle, responded to the influence of higher receipts yesterday. Wholesale prices for beef were mostly steady, and tendency in live costs of cattle ruled lower again, but rather sharp upturns were registered in other kinds.

Gains of $1 per hundred pounds were quoted in wholesale veal and lamb meat. Pork recovered 50 cents of the recent severe losses, with the clearance the best in some time.

Hogs advanced mostly 10 to 15 cents, with prices highest in eight days. Spots in light weights that got most of the action were as much as 25 cents higher than on Wednesday.

Lambs rose 25 to 40 cents to the highest levels since Tuesday, last week, under lively competition.

With the exception of about 100 carloads of prime fat cattle culled from the show that enjoyed a market of their own yesterday, practically all bovine stock met the usual narrow Friday trade. Most sales were weak to 25 cents lower.

Up to $17.50, the extreme top of the market, was paid for prime steers rejected from the car lot exhibit of the show. Others sold from $14.50 to $17.25.

FEDERAL BARGE LINES INCLUDED IN RATE HEARING

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—The interstate commerce commission today broadened the scope of its rail rate hearing to include rates on the Federal Barge Lines.

The Inland Waterways corporation, operating Federal Barge Lines, had applied to the commission for such an extension of the investigation, and asked the commission to grant proportional relief to the barge lines similar to the 15 per cent rate increase sought by the class 1 railroads.

Inland waterways asked the commission to note, however, that the "existing relation of barge-rail to corresponding all-rail rates will be preserved only when the increases are made by the percentage method. In cases where the increases are made in flat amounts, the application of the same increase to both the barge-rail, as to the all-rail rates, will result in departures from the present relation of the barge-rail to all-rail rates."

Atlantic Coast Line Places $2,500,000 Rail Orders

New York, Nov. 26.—[Special.]—Orders have been placed for 60,000 tons of rail to cost more than $2,500,000, by the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and its controled Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis and Clinchneld railroads, Lyman Delano, chairman of the Atlantic Coast Line, announced today.

WHEAT REGAINS EARLY DECLINE; CLOSES HIGHER

Buying Wave Causes Shift in Price Trend.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

	Yest.	Wells.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .80¼	$ .80¼	$1.16½
Corn	.56½	.56½	.89¼
Oats	.29¾	.29⅝	.44⅜
Rye	.67⅝	.67½	.91¾
Soy Beans	.94½	.94¼	1.52⅜

Wheat futures declined nearly 3 cents a bushel in the early trading yesterday, reflecting the sharp break in foreign markets on Thursday, when the Chicago market was closed. However, the selling movement quickly ran its course and a rally followed which carried the December delivery nearly 4 cents a bushel above the low figure. Closing prices were within fractions of a cent per bushel of the top, and showed gains of 1 to 1¼ cents.

Aggressive buying of wheat futures credited to houses with eastern connections, combined with rust reports from the province of Entre Rios, Argentina, strength in securities and a marked improvement in the export demand sent prices soaring.

Winnipeg Prices Recover.

Deferred deliveries of wheat at Winnipeg more than recovered the ground they lost on Thursday, and at the close showed net gains of ⅞ to 1 cent, but the nearby futures were as much as 1⅛ cents lower. Liverpool futures closed 3⅜ to 4⅜ cents lower than on Wednesday, with all deliveries at new low levels for the season.

Despite the weakness in foreign markets export sales of 1,100,000 bushels of North American cash wheat were made to Europe, being about equally divided between domestic and Canadian grain.

Corn Recovers Early Dip.

A fractional dip in the price of corn futures carried the deferred deliveries into new low ground for the season, but the market rallied later in sympathy with wheat and closed with prices unchanged from Wednesday. Commission houses were credited with buying on the early decline, and short covering assisted in making the upturn of about 1 cent a bushel from the low point. Export sales of 500,000 bushels were reported.

Only 269 cars of cash corn were inspected at Chicago yesterday, which was regarded as extremely small for this season of the year.

Tampa Electric.

Investors' Guide: My brother and I hold 54 shares of Tampa Electric company stock as an investment. Is it reasonably safe?—T. B.

Answer: Tampa Electric common stock is rather high grade and the preferred deserves a top rating. The company has an exceptional record for stability of gross revenues and earnings. The smallest net income of the last 12 years was $1,256,000 or $2.00 per common share in 1933 and the highest was $1,569,000 or $2.75 a share in 1930. Net for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1937, was $1,436,000 or $2.41 a share.

There are 567,155 shares of no par common and 10,000 shares of $7 dividend preferred stock outstanding. Sale of 31,508 shares, now being offered to stockholders to pay for new equipment, should change the picture little. There is no funded debt.

The common has paid dividends of 56 cents quarterly for six years, prior to which the rate was 50 cents.

The company serves a population of 175,000 in Tampa and nearby communities. Almost 85 per cent of revenues are derived from sales of electricity and most of the rest comes from transportation operations.

Par and Market Values.

Investors' Guide: At the close of the market Nov. 10 a stock was listed as 24⅞. Par value of this stock is $50 per share. What price per share must I pay for this stock and what does the term par value mean? —S. J.

Answer: You pay the market price. Par value is the value at which the company carries the stock on its balance sheet. Par value has little to do with market price. The latter represents the value investors place on a stock. It usually is determined by earnings or prospective earnings of the corporation whose stock is involved—together with general market and business conditions.

Dividends.

Investors' Guide: A company declares a dividend to all common stockholders on record as of Dec. 20, payable on Jan. 20. Could I share in said dividend if I purchased said stock before Dec. 20?—M. S.

Answer: You probably would not receive the dividend unless you bought the stock on Dec. 16 or earlier. This is because it usually requires two or three days—longer when a week-end or holiday precedes the record date—in which to have stock transferred to your name so that you may be a stockholder of record by the record date for the dividend payment.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET EXTENDS ODD LOT TRADE

The Chicago Stock exchange's system of filling odd lot orders in issues also listed on the New York Stock exchange will be expanded Monday to include ten more stocks, bringing the total to twenty-seven issues, officials of the exchange announced yesterday. The move was another step in the Chicago market's campaign to increase trading.

The system calls for executing odd lot orders of one to forty-nine shares of dually listed stock on the basis of either the next Chicago round lot transaction or the next New York Stock exchange round lot trade, depending on which takes place first, or on whichever sale the customer specifies when placing an order. A round lot is fifty shares in Chicago and 100 shares in New York.

New issues to be added are Butler Brothers common and preferred, Chicago Yellow Cab, Hupp Motor, Illinois Central, Pennsylvania railroad, Peoples Gas, Standard Gas, Union Carbide, and United States Gypsum.

Japanese Seize All Communication in Shanghai Area—International Live Stock Exposition Will Open Today

POLISHING THE HORNS—OR PART OF BEAUTY TREATMENT FOR A COW—Bruce Robertson, herdsman of the Harrisdale farms, Fort Worth, Tex., giving horns of Prince Domino Premier, a Hereford, a polishing at the International amphitheater, where the 38th International Live Stock exposition opens today. Thousands of farmers and stock owners were toiling yesterday to make their animals appear sleek and healthy in the quest for some of the $100,000 prize money being offered. (Story on page 1.)

EARLY CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS THRONG THE LOOP—An evening scene at State and Washington streets yesterday as shoppers started home with their day's purchases. The warm weather, combined with the fact there was no school due to Thanksgiving holiday, brought large throngs to the downtown stores. (Story on page 5.)

AND THEN COMES THE COMBING AND BRUSHING—Bill Bartlett of the Sni-A-Bar farm of Grain Valley, Mo., putting the finishing touches on Golden Wreath, a Shorthorn yearling entered in the stock show. Approximately 13,000 animals are ready for display. The exposition is expected to draw a record attendance of 500,000.
